SENATE BATTLE RAGES AROUND 'BI-PARTY DEAL'

Campaigners to Go Downstate Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Disputation raged between Ruth Hanna McCormick and Senator Charles S. Deneen last night over the combination of Deneen Republicans and Cermak Democrats whereby Howard W. Elmore was elected sanitary district president last year and over the recent break between Elmore and the Deneen group.

Senator Deneen in speeches at noon and night declared that by linking up with Cermak he "helped prevent control of the board by trustees who were indicted" and aided the election of Elmore as president and the dismissal of 1,500 pay rollers. Mrs. McCormick repeated her inquiry of Thursday as to what caused the Elmore-Deneen split and elaborated it by asking whether it was caused by a refusal of Elmore's part to put one of "Diamond Joe" Esposito's clan "back on the job" on the sanitary pay roll.

Lewis Will Speak Today.

Today the two main Republican candidates for United States senator will travel downstate, leaving Chicago to James Hamilton Lewis, former senator and candidate for the Democratic nomination. Mr. Lewis makes his first Cook county address at a luncheon at the Sheridan Plaza hotel to be given by the women of the 48th Ward Democratic club.

Mrs. McCormick is to speak at Rock Island and Moline tonight and Senator Deneen at Peoria, a city on which both are concentrating much effort. In addition to their meetings the candidates were on the air last night, Mr. Deneen over W-G-N and Mrs. McCormick over WJJD.

"The lid will be off on Monday," was announced from the Deneen manager last night, which gives prospect of a feverish closing week in the campaigning.

Deneen's Franking Under Fire.

Mrs. McCormick late yesterday sent a message to Postmaster General Walter Brown saying the Deneen speeches are being sent out under congressional frank. The McCormick telegram read:

"It has been called to my attention that Senator Charles S. Deneen, who is a candidate for renomination in the Illinois primary, is sending thousands of campaign speeches to Illinois voters under government frank.

"In view of the fact that the postal department is operating under a growing deficit, do you regard it as desirable that the department take over the large expense of mailing campaign literature, thus placing the burden upon the taxpayers?"

Senator on "Bipartisan Deal."

The controversy over the "Deneen-Cermak bipartisan deal" started off briskly at noon and was going strong at night. Senator Deneen said:

"Mrs. McCormick in her speeches in Chicago and throughout the state has charged that I advised the reorganization of the sanitary district board of trustees without regard to party lines. She says that I entered into a bipartisan deal to that end. The facts are these:

"In 1928 our group pledged the people that if our candidates were nominated the sanitary district board would be reorganized, in the elimination of waste, the discharge of needless employés, and the letting of contracts on business principles. Mr. Elmore, a Republican, and Mr. Woodhull and Mr. Berger, Democrats, were elected.

Recalls Sanitary Inquiry.

"When the time came to organize the board an investigation was being made which led to the indictment of four Republican members of the board and two Democratic members. In the effort to carry out the pledges of our group, I urged the election of Mr. Elmore as president and of Mr. Woodhull as chairman of the finance committee on condition that the pledges made in our 1928 primary contest be carried out. They have been carried out. About 3,500 needless employés were discharged and other economies have been effected. The pledges have been kept.

"Mr. Snow, acting chairman of the group with which Mrs. McCormick is affiliated, insisted that Mr. King be named as president. Mr. King was among those who were indicted. I helped to prevent the organization of the board under the leadership of Mr. King and his associates. Of this Mrs. McCormick complains. Messrs. Snow, Owen, Barrett, and others of Mrs. McCormick's leaders immediately cried out that the board had been organized on a bipartisan deal and Mrs. McCor-

MODERNISM IN MUSIC COSTS COLLEGE USE OF A $1,000,000 FUND

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—A note of modernism—in music—injected into the teachings at the Schola cantorum, established just a few months ago at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C., has cost the university the use of a million dollar fund given by Mrs. Justine B. Ward of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

It was learned today that much discussion has been precipitated in Catholic circles by Mrs. Ward's recent withdrawal of financial support from the new school of liturgical music founded by her at the Catholic university. But it was said the fund will be used in various schools that are interested in the Gregorian chant.

COP IS JAILED AFTER SHOOTING; WOMAN HUNTED

Policeman William Lawler, 31 years old, member of the auto detail of the Maxwell district, was locked up at the Maxwell station last night. He was held for questioning concerning a shooting in the New Grant hotel, 575 South Halsted street, in which the hotel proprietor, Fred Petmezas, 40 years old, was critically wounded, allegedly by the policeman's woman companion.

The hotel janitor, Harry Agriotathes, 31 years old, told Lieut. Thomas Duffy that Officer Lawler and a resident of the hotel, Eva Doherty, a Mexican, entered the place about 9 p. m., Lawler waving a flask and apparently being intoxicated. The couple went to the woman's room and were quarreling there when the landlord entered, according to the janitor.

The Doherty woman wrested Lawler's gun from the holster, the janitor said, and fired four shots, one of which struck the landlord in the abdomen. The landlord and Lawler, who was knocked unconscious and stripped of his star in the ensuing fight with the woman, were taken to the Bridewell hospital. The woman, who fled before the police reached the hotel, was being sought early this morning. Lawler, who has been before the trial board several times, according to his superiors, was unable to describe the shooting coherently.

2 SHIPS GROUND OFF CALIFORNIA; 65 ARE ABOARD

San Francisco, Cal., March 28.—(AP)—Two ships went aground tonight, the steam schooner Claremont grounding inside the harbor entrance, and the tanker Rhine Maru piling up at Point Sur, about 100 miles south of here. Fifty men and officers are aboard the tanker and fifteen men on the Claremont.

The steamer H. M. Storey, only six miles away from the Rhine Maru, reported she was speeding to the disabled ship's assistance. The tanker La Brea also was reported close to Point Sur and proceeding to the aid of the Rhine Maru.

Men of Science Cheer for Trip to Wet Canada

Six hundred distinguished scientists and their wives, gathered from all over the United States for the annual sessions of experimental biologists, applauded loudly last night when their president announced that their next convention would be held in Montreal, Canada.

When the tables had been cleared from the big ballroom in the Shoreland hotel and the chairs were drawn about facing the speakers' table, the assemblage took seats and waited attentively for the remarks of their president, Prof. W. J. Meek of the University of Wisconsin. He began in the conventional manner.

"I wish to announce," said he, "that the next meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology will be held in—ah—Montreal."

Hearty Cheers Follow.

There was a pause and then a low murmur swept through the room. Polite smiles appeared on the faces of the men at the speakers' table. Finally a timid "hooray" came from one corner of the ballroom and for the next few minutes professorial restraint gave way to hearty laughter and loud applause.

One professor turned to the man at his elbow and remarked: "If you were to ask me, such a demonstration is more authentic and infinitely more convincing than a poll on prohibition could ever be."

A reporter tapped him on the shoulder.

"May I have your name, sir? I'm from THE TRIBUNE. I'd like to use your remark in print."

"Certainly you cannot have my name," he answered good naturedly. "If you printed it I would be guilty of offending the government by speaking disparagingly if its laws."

For Several Reasons.

When President Meek was allowed to go on again, his remark, "We are going to Montreal for several reasons," was the occasion of another round of applause and laughter led by Dr. A. B. MacCallum, a ruddy faced, whiskered professor from Toronto.

"The poll of the Literary Digest and editorials in the press seem to indicate that there is a little unrest among us and a little fear that we are losing our personal liberty," said Dr. Meek, enumerating the reasons for next year's trek to Montreal.

And again, when the president remarked, "there are 600 of us here and I can't help wondering where we are going," one of his colleagues whispered. "We are going to Montreal," setting up a third demonstration of hearty approval.

Art as Opposed to Science.

The art of surgery, as opposed to its science, was defended, following the president's talk, by Prof. Dallas B. Phemister of the department for cooperation between the experimental scientists and the surgeons. He pointed to the need for such coöperation and continued:

"The science of plastic surgery, for instance, can be learned in a comparatively short time, but a successful operation on a face to replace a part of it can be done by only a few of the surgeons who have a real gift for the art. It is more difficult to make a pretty face out of flesh than it is to make it out of marble."

Important discoveries which throw new light on the causes and cures of human ailments were reported in 99 papers read by leading biologists before the various sessions of the convention at the University of Chicago during the day. In addition to the papers 50 demonstrations were performed in the university laboratories.

Clew to Blood Disease.

Dr. Bernard Steinberg of Toledo, O., reported the finding of a germ which he said might be the cause of aleukemic leukamia, a disease of the blood, whose cause has long puzzled doctors. The disease shows itself chiefly in the abnormality of white corpuscles. Dr. Steinberg said he found the germ in the marrow of a bone of a patient dying from the disease, injected it into animals, and produced a condition which was similar to the human disease.

Drs. M. Juhn and R. G. Gustavson of the University of Chicago told of producing female characteristics in male fowls by injecting certain hormones under the skin.

BEES BEFUDDLED BY BOOTLEG BOOZE BUZZ BACK BUSILY

Raleigh, N. C., March 28.—(AP)—C. L. Sams, extension apiarist of North Carolina State college, today charged that "the family life of bees is being broken up in many sections of the state by bootleg whisky."

"Stills," he reported, "are located much easier by bees than by revenue officers. The bees taste the mash, tell their friends and come back for more.

NEW YORK AIR POLICE START DAILY PATROL

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—New York's first air police patrol of the city was made today, following the christening of two police amphibians by Col. James Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Ruth Elder Camp at the North Beach seaplane base.

A Savoia-Marchetti amphibian, taking off from the water of Flushing bay, flew up the East river, the Harlem, south over the Hudson, and back again to the police air squad base at North Beach.

From now on an air patrol will be flown over the city daily between the hours of 9 and 12 and 2 and 7 by three Savoia-Marchetti amphibians. The Loening amphibian, the fastest of the four police planes, will be held in reserve at the seaplane base.

IRISH PRESIDENT OUT; EXPECTED TO BE RECHOSEN

See Little Hope for De Valera to Win.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 28.—William Cosgrave, who announced his resignation from the presidency of the council of the Irish Free State to the crowded dail at noon today, is expected to be reëlected next Wednesday. His resignation followed the government's defeat in the dail yesterday over the old age pension bill.

Sean O'Kelly, representing Eamon De Valera, former president of the Irish republic and leader of the opposition, objected to postponing the election until Wednesday, as Mr. Cosgrave had suggested. He argued that it was not fair to the country to leave a matter of state consequence in uncertainty for so long. However, Speaker Hayes, after the sitting had lasted only eight minutes, adjourned the dail until Wednesday. Under the Free State constitution, the resignation of a government does not necessarily call for a general election.

Tremendous interest was taken in today's proceedings. The deputies' benches were filled, as were also the public galleries.

Confident Cosgrave Can Win.

Lobby gossip in regard to the crisis indicated that Mr. Cosgrave would be reëlected if he decided to be a candidate. For some time there has been a report that his health is not good, and that he would welcome a rest. In that case, Ernest Blythe, vice president and finance minister, will be nominated by the government party, with good chances of victory.

The Fianna Fail will nominate Mr. De Valera. T. J. O'Connell, leader of the Irish Labor party, will also be put in the field. Mr. De Valera's only chances of winning depend upon a swing of the Labor deputies to his candidacy.

Question De Valera's Eligibility.

The question has arisen whether Mr. De Valera, who is now in Chicago, could be elected president during his absence.

The suggestion was made in the lobbies that Mr. De Valera could make the journey by airplane. One rumor actually had it that Maj. James Fitzmaurice, who with two Germans flew across the Atlantic and who is now in America, has been engaged, to pilot Mr. De Valera back to Ireland by the air route.

Under the Free State constitution, candidates for president of the executive council must be voted on by the dail until one obtains a majority. The government party has 63 deputies, De Valera's republicans have 57 and the Labor party 13. The Independents, made up of smaller parties, number 19.

Wants Pension Bill Dropped.

It was learned tonight that if he accepts the nomination Mr. Cosgrave will make it clear that his acceptance is with the understanding that the bill over which his defeat occurred will be dropped. The measure, if passed, will cost the taxpayers about $1,500,000 annually for old age pensions. Mr. Cosgrave holds that this is not justified, particularly as a great part of the beneficiaries will be people not really in distressed conditions.

The Fianna Fail hopes to achieve much popularity in its various constituencies as a result of last night's vote. But this popularity will largely lie with those people who hope to benefit from the bill. The Cosgrave party, however, hope for the support of the taxpayers who will be saved a substantial sum by the defeat of such a bill.

DE VALERA EYES "BIG CHANCE."

Eager but incredulous, hopeful but wary, Eamon De Valera spent yesterday in a suite at the Hotel Sherman, taking account of events of the last forty-eight hours in Ireland, which may provide the fateful prologue to a return to power of the Irish republican leader. While he deprecated the idea that the wheel of fortune was about to whirl him back into the leadership of the nation over which his one time friend and present enemy, President Cosgrave, has ruled for the past eight years, there was no denying the suppressed excitement that prospect roused in him.

Even as he scanned the numerous telegrams of hope and congratulation handed him, all implying confidence that the De Valera forces were again on the verge of grasping the reins of government in the Emerald Isle, he smiled and said to his secretary:

"They forget that this doesn't really mean anything. That nothing will be known or decided until Dail Eireann

Chicago Wet Six to One in Digest Vote

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Chicagoans voted six to one against strict enforcement of existing dry laws in incomplete returns announced today by the Literary Digest in its nation-wide prohibition poll. Of the 80,702 ballots tabulated from Chicago, only 11,913 favor strict enforcement of the present laws:

The Chicago figures follow:

For repeal	43,095
For modification	27,696
For enforcement	11,913

Wetter Than Country at Large.

This showed a smaller percentage for repeal and a larger percentage for enforcement than figures for New York City, although Chicago's wetness was greater than the country as a whole, so far as the Digest vote goes.

Of twelve other cities reported on the basis of incomplete figures, three in Missouri and Iowa gave clear majorities for enforcement, and two others gave pluralities for enforcement.

The three cities giving majorities for enforcement were Carthage, Mo.; Ames, Ia., and Oskaloosa, Ia.

Rochester, Minn., seat of the Mayo clinic, gave a plurality for repeal, as did Oshkosh, Wis.; Jamestown, N. Y., and Syracuse, N. Y. In Racine, Wis., the majority for repeal was even stronger than in Chicago.

How Students Drink.

Urbana, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—A majority of the men students at the University of Illinois drink, according to a poll taken the last three days by the Daily Illini, student newspaper, and completed today. The poll revealed that the majority of co-eds do not imbibe. A total of 3,992 votes were polled on the question. The registration for the present semester is approximately 10,000.

A total of 1,372 fraternity men declared they drink, while 744 asserted they do not drink. Among sorority girls, 267 declared they drink, while 521 do not. Of men students not affiliated with fraternities, 430 drink, while 408 do not, while 36 independent co-eds drink, compared to 114 who do not. The total fraternity and non-fraternity and sorority and nonsorority votes show that a total of 2,105 students drink, while 1,787 do not drink.

In the poll 209 students favored the present prohibition situation, while 1,003 were for strict enforcement, 2,134 went on record for modification of the present laws, and 481 for the total repeal of liquor legislation.

CAPONE SPURNS BID TO GREAT OPEN SPACES

The invitation was extended to Capone by Dan Evans, president of the Rapid City Chamber of Commerce, who assured him of the hospitality of a "community practically free from crime" and quoted the scriptural admonition against throwing stones at sinners.

Gov. W. J. Bulow of South Dakota, when he learned of the invitation, announced:

"I'll cast the first stone. We don't want Capone or any of his kind in South Dakota. We have a law abiding state as far as the gang racket goes and we propose to keep it so."

Capone, when informed that the letter from Evans was in the mail, said that he appreciated the invitation but would save the governor the trouble of trying to keep him out of the state, as he had no desire to live in the Black Hills.

ENVOYS OF U. S. SEEK TO NARROW TREATY'S SCOPE

Fear Veto of 'Entangling Alliance.'

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—The American delegation to the London naval conference today found itself between two fires as the result of its undertaking to commit the United States to a European consultative pact in connection with a five power naval limitation treaty.

On the one hand are the British, French and Italians, who will be fairly satisfied with any pact which does not assure American participation in the consultation of the powers in every European war crisis. On the other hand is the opposition of the United States senate to any consultation by America on European quarrels.

This rising tide of senate opposition was disclosed in Washington dispatches today and brought to the fore the question as to just how much American coöperation in dealing with European war crises the American delegation can attempt to deliver.

U. S. Would Narrow Obligations.

Great Britain and France are now discussing an agreement on security guarantees and the reduction of the French naval tonnage demands, with the understanding that if they reach a settlement acceptable to the United States the American delegation will sign a consultative pact. But it transpired today that the consultative pact now envisaged by the American delegation, is considerably narrower in scope than the four power Pacific pact to which America is a party. That agreement not only commits America to consult with the other powers having Pacific possessions, in the event of a controversy, but to consider "the most efficient measures" for dealing with a crisis.

There is no disposition on the part of the American delegation to demand that a European consultative pact incorporating the provisions of the Pacific pact would entangle us in European affairs.

It was stated authoritatively today that the American delegation has no intention to follow the form of the Pacific pact for the reason that America does not have the tangible interests in Europe that she has in the orient. Indications are that the delegation has in mind restricting consultation by America to those European crises in which American interests are at stake.

What Are American Stakes?

What American interest might be at stake in European quarrels is left to the imagination, at present, as the American delegation does not intend to sign or even define the scope of a consultative pact unless a five power naval limitation treaty appears possible.

Inasmuch as a war in Europe might jeopardize the vast and ever growing American investments on that continent and also threaten the suspension of the payment of the allied war debts to America the Europeans have been quick to suggest that there is hardly any European war crisis in which the United States would not have important interests at stake.

DAY OF PRIVATE CHATS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—It was a blank day for the naval conference so far as open diplomacy was concerned. What was done behind closed doors was not disclosed, but there were plenty of private chats between the delegates in an effort to find some kind of a harmless formula to bring the United States into a consultative pact which will satisfy the French and at the same time meet the objections of the United States senate.

Secretary of State Stimson and Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson called on Prime Minister MacDonald. While the subject of the discussion was not disclosed, it is suggested in some quarters that the Americans sought to reassure Mr. MacDonald about the growing opposition of America to the plan to get America into the league of nations by the back door.

Deny Statement by Briand.

The British spokesman today denied the story given out by the French last night that a special political subcommittee had been appointed to hammer out a pact based on strengthening article 16 of the league covenant. According to Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, who was responsible for this story, the committee consi d of Sir Robert Vansittart, undersec-tary of state for foreign affairs; H. V. Malkin, legal adviser of the for-gn office, and R. L. Craigie; and ount Rene Massigli, French political xpert.

It was pointed out that the three ritons named are foreign office offi-ials whose duty it is to examine verything of a political nature, hether connected with the naval onference or not, and advise Mr. acDonald, and that if any such pact as under preparation it would come efore them as a matter of course. he spokesman assured that there ad been no special reference to them f any plan connected with the confer-nce at present.

SWANSON FIGHTS PACT

Washington, D C., March 28.—[Spe-al.]—The United States is not giv-g serious consideration to any plan r American participation in any con-ultative or security treaty as a basis f effecting a naval agreement at ondon, it was learned here tonight.

At the same time new senate op-osition developed to the suggestion at the United States join with the her naval powers in signing a poli-al treaty.

Senator Claude A. Swanson [Dem., a.], ranking minority member of e senate foreign relations commit-e, assailed the proposal that the nited States enter into any sort of litical arrangement as the price for aval agreement, as a violation of e Monroe Doctrine. He asserted it ould be far better to have no naval itation agreement at all than to ve one which might force this coun-y to use its naval forces in carry-g out a political pact.

Follows Borah Attack.

The Swanson attack on the security et proposals came just 24 hours ter Senator William E. Borah [Rep., aho], chairman of the foreign rela-ons committee and two other sena-rs had denounced the consultative ct idea. As it was being issued Sen-or James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], ajority leader of the senate, said he ould oppose any treaty involving nerican assurance of security in rope.

Although some confusion has arisen to the Hoover administration at-ude toward joining with other na-ons in political agreements due to e statements made in recent days Chairman Stimson of the Ameri-n delegation in London, THE TRIB-E was told today that the United ates will under no circumstances ree to sign any pact which might any way involve the United States European quarrels.

Opposes London Plan.

"If America agrees to consult and ke action in any matters strictly uropean," Senator Swanson said, "I not see how America could refuse uropean nations having like con-ltation and action in connection th affairs in the western hemi-here, which is contrary to the Mon-e Doctrine. It is far better for nerica to enter into an agreement th Great Britain and Japan for lim-tion of armament than to enter o a five power pact involving us in uropean political commitments.

"I hope the reports from London at the American delegation is con-mplating entering into a political st to secure a naval agreement is founded. I also hope the report that esident Hoover is opposed to such pact is true, and that he will adhere a decision not to enter into such pact as the price for naval agree-nt.

"If such a pact means nothing, as tended in America, it is a snare a delusion, giving fancied security European powers that the United ates has no intention of discharg-."

ITALY HOPES FOR BRITAIN AS ALLY TO FOIL FRANCE

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 29.—Italy remains skeptical about the successful outcome of the London naval conference despite the reports of the new American proposal. It is not believed that American Secretary of State Stimson's offer to participate in a consultation pact means more than a counter stroke to French diplomacy. In her diplomacy France has sought to put Uncle Sam in the rôle of constituting an obstacle to disarmament because the United States refuses to underwrite French security. France's ultimate aim is to draw America gradually into the league of nations and Europe's affairs by such security demands.

The value of the conference consists in the demonstration it has given of European political tendencies. It has shown that narrow national interests are too acute to be inclosed in any international agreement at this time.

Powers to Form Alliances.

Following the London conference, therefore, international arrangements such as the Kellogg pact, which is held to be an empty formula, will be succeeded by a grouping of powers according to their interests.

That such an Anglo-Italian pact will be embodied in a definite treaty which will be the political successor of the Anglo-French entente is being predicted in Rome.

"Such a treaty would not be an alliance in the old sense of the term but a spontaneous result of the similarity of views," announced the semi-official Tribuna. "Italy already has made herself the leader at Geneva of the small neutral powers and of those who were vanquished during the late war, and in the future there will be a close collaboration between Great Britain and Italy to offset French hegemony over the rest of Europe and the growing French armaments."

Claim Franco-British Rivalry.

Franco-British rivalry far overshadows the differences between France and Italy, according to the newspaper Il Piccolo in another article which has an inspired tone. The paper adds that "England unexpectedly finds herself confronted with a new French imperialism which is as menacing as was the Hohenzollern imperialism. England does not want to be surpassed by this imperialism and Italy does not want to be squelched."

It was authoritatively stated tonight that the desire imputed by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi a few days ago to adjourn the conference for six months in reality expressed the wishes of Prime Minister MacDonald. Sig. Grandi's informal remarks were deliberately given out by the press with a changed significance, one he never intended them to have.

SOVIET ENVOY IN PARIS FEARS FOR LIFE; ASKS GUARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 28.—Valerian Dovgalevsky, the soviet ambassador to France, tonight appealed to the French government for a heavier guard around the embassy as a result of numerous anonymous letters threatening his life.

As if to substantiate the ambassador's fears Russian papers arrived from Moscow yesterday with scare heads telling of an attempt to assassinate the soviet ambassador in France. Investigation showed that the news of the attempted "assassination" had arisen from a small affray in front of the embassy a few nights ago.

Kellogg Calls Naval Parity Without Arms Cut Futile

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, expressed a hope tonight that the London naval conference would result in a reduction of armaments, not an increase toward parity.

At the same time, in an address before the League of Political Education in Town hall, he pleaded for the entrance of the United States into the world court.

"I know that the people of this country are hopeful for the success of the London conference," he said, "but I believe it would be unfortunate if there should be a general increase in the aggregate armaments of the world instead of a decrease.

Balance of Power.

"Increase of armaments of the big naval powers will not meet the situation. It will not convince the world of our intention to keep peace. It will not meet the frequent pledges of nations since the world war to reduce armament. It will not prevent competitive building. It will go far to maintain the whole system of balance of power, of military alliance, and of maintenance of peace by increasing armament.

"In the reduction of armament there is perfect safety. No one or two nations are going to be able to dominate the world. The control of the seas by one power is now an impossible dream.

"The security of the world can only be obtained by mutual consideration, confidence and the advance of pacific settlement of disputes.

"If a five power treaty cannot be made, then I hope they may enter into a three power treaty on the basis of the tentative understanding between Great Britain and the United States with a reduction of battleships between now and 1936.

"This would be a step in the right direction and would manifestly save the United States several hundred million dollars over what we would otherwise spend under the present building program and would save Great Britain and Japan corresponding amounts."

Referring to the world court, Mr. Kellogg said:

"If the United States wishes for the creation of an international court, there is no other way than to join the one now existing and which has been functioning for years.

Will Subordinate Views.

"It cannot be expected that all the rest of the world will subordinate its views to a new creation simply to obtain the adhesion of the United States."

Mr. Kellogg referred to criticisms directed against the American administration for the part it played in the administration of the Kellogg peace pact in warning Russia and China against fighting in Manchuria, saying:

"It was certainly the business of the United States to do everything it could to prevent the violation of a treaty which it and the other nations had signed."

PEERS GIVE WET AND DRY PARTY TO NAVY GUESTS

2,000 Attend; Feast on 46 Kinds of Cake.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—A couple of thousand of folks of all colors and creeds, turned out tonight as guests to the soirée given by the house of lords, the upper house of parliament, in honor of the naval conference guests.

Lord Sankey, the lord chancellor, who wears a white powdered wig, sits on a woolsack, and gets $50,000 a year; Lord Parmoor, Prime Minister MacDonald and his daughter Ishbel, received the visitors as a giant flunkey bawled out their names and titles.

Teetotal Bar for Yanks.

A vast buffet served 17 kinds of sandwiches, 46 different sorts of cakes, and tea, coffee, lemonade and milk. There were no intoxicants out of courtesy to the members of the American delegation. But in one corner of the annex to the buffet, in the king's robing room, where the monarch checks his crown, ermine cloak and scepter after official séances, there was one wet spot.

Most of the more red nosed lords quickly scented the oasis where prewar Scotch was served in generous shots without ice; but a cordon of talcumed hair sergeants at arms wearing velvet knee breeches and wielding maces, kept the American delegates away from the filthy stuff.

Conversation was centered on the modernistic murals by Frank Brangwyn, in the royal gallery. They have raised such a howl of protest—more resembling the decorations of a night club, some say—that they are going to be ripped out.

American Lost Art Job.

Dean Cornwell, once a member of THE TRIBUNE art staff, was first selected to do the paintings for these panels. But he was hastily rejected when it was discovered that he was an American, and he suggested Frank Brangwyn.

Medals flashed and tiaras glittered. Women armed with lavallieres and jeweled periscopes deftly manipulated demi-tasses and pate de foie gras sandwiches.

The guests saw the three thrones in the house of lords where the king and queen sit on the two big ones, and the prince of Wales sits on the smaller one, like a stool, alongside his father. And before the throne they saw the red morocco leather covered benches where the noble lords sit.

LABOR WILL FIGHT CHOICE OF PARKER FOR HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—President Green of the American Federation of Labor announced tonight that the organization would oppose the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to be an associate justice of the Supreme court.

After examination of Judge Parker's decisions as a member of the federal Circuit Court of Appeals by labor officials Mr. Green said these showed "that he placed property rights above and superior to human rights."

The decision of Judge Parker in the Red Jacket injunction case was the target of labor's criticism. In this decision Green contended that Judge Parker "approved an injunction which virtually reduced the conditions of the miners in West Virginia to a point approximating industrial servitude."

Two Robbers Raid Apparel Store; Take 20 Fur Coats

Milton Miller, 3102 Douglas boulevard, was robbed of 20 fur coats, valued at $2,500, by two armed men who entered his wholesale women's apparel store at 310 South Market street at the closing hour last evening. The bandits took $15 from Miller and $25 from the cash box and then forced Miller and Isadore Rubin, 4911 North St. Louis avenue, a clerk, to lie on the floor of the office while they carried the coats to a waiting automobile.

ROBS RESTAURANT OF $25.

A gunman entered the White House restaurant at 1878 Ogden avenue early yesterday and took $25 from the cash register after threatening Harold Shanks, a waiter, who was alone in the place.

INQUIRY BARES BARTERING OF CITY HALL JOBS

State's Attorney Swanson's assistants and members of the grand jury questioned witnesses yesterday on methods used by the city hall officials into distributing job patronage in such a way as to bring forth campaign contributions or ward club donations.

Ald. Robert R. Jackson [3d] and other city hall officials, as well as many contractors who rent trucks to the city, were summoned to the offices of Assistant State's Attorneys Homer Dodge and Harold Keele or before the grand jurors. Ald. Jackson and four other officials signed immunity waivers before going into the grand jury room. Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] was to have been questioned, but a subpoena was not served in time.

Jackson Tells Methods.

Ald. Jackson told of his method of breaking up Democratic opposition by handing out patronage, the prosecutors said. He said that James M. Flanigan, 4233 South Dearborn street, a Democratic precinct captain, was given work for five teams by the city.

He denied, it was reported, that he had any interest in the teams allotted to Flanigan.

Another discovery, according to the prosecutors, was that truck owners doing work for the city do not buy state licenses at $150 each, but do purchase city vehicle tax tags. The prosecutors said that their examination of truck owners showed that few 1929 state licenses were purchased and that the same situation exists so far in 1930.

Truck Contractors Questioned.

John Citro, 1012 South Halsted street, owner of the Citro Trucking company, operates eight trucks in the 20th ward, in which Morris Eller, city collector, is Republican ward committeeman. He has not purchased even city license tags, according to the prosecutors, although they said he admitted contributing from $400 to $500 a year to the Eller political organization.

Michael D. Grace, 1505 North Artesian avenue, a Democratic precinct captain in the 34th ward, whose father before him was also a Democratic captain, operates nine trucks. He contributes, he told the state's attorney's office, about $200 a year to the organization of Thomas Brockmeyer, the ward committeeman.

Another city hall method, according to the prosecutors, is to get a contract for a city truck at $27.50 a day and then rent a vehicle from some trucking company for $20 a day, including a driver. In this manner many city hall henchmen, according to the prosecutors, are making a profit of $7.50 per day on each truck without any investment in equipment.

Street Superintendents Called.

Among those questioned yesterday were P. C. Nilles, superintendent of equipment of the street and alley department; George E. McGrath, superintendent of sewers; Joseph J. Butler, acting superintendent of streets; Loren D. Gayton, city engineer; Morris Lapkin, ward superintendent of the 2d ward, and A. G. F. Sims Sr., superintendent of the 3d ward.

The prosecutors started out to search for evidence of pay roll padding.

The sanitary district inquiry being conducted by First Assistant State's Attorney Northup was temporarily halted yesterday because a petition for a duces tecum subpoena for all the records of the U. S. A. company, electrical contractors, was not in proper form. Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle instructed Northup on drawing a new petition and said he would hear arguments on the subject today.

WIFE WIDOWED BY 'LOVE EXPERIMENT' DESIRES TO FORGET

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—[Special.]—"There is nothing to add, the thing is done and all that can be said has been said. I hope I, too, will be allowed to forget."

Mrs. Thomas J. Newton, widow of the man who experimented with love and then took his own life after Mrs. Dorothy Rowe March, his partner in the episode, had left him in Miami, so expressed herself today upon her return from Florida.

"While I knew of the affair," she said, "I did not look upon it as 'an experiment.' I did all I could to keep him and to prevent his going away.

"When I knew of the fatal ending of the affair I went to Miami and did all that duty and affection could direct. He was cremated and his ashes scattered, as was his wish."

DESTROY BEER IN FLAT RAID.

Prohibition agents yesterday raided a flat at 3808 North Clark street which they said was operated under the guise of a physician's office and the supposed fictitious name of "Dr. Henkel." Ed Lewis was arrested and 343 quarts of home brew were destroyed.

2 BANDITS BIND GIRLS IN CANDY SHOP ROBBERIES

Two well dressed young bandits were being sought by the police last night for the robbery of seven candy shops in the last two days. Five of the robberies were committed yesterday and last night, and in two of them the robbers bound the women clerks after threatening them.

The pair entered the Dutch Mill candy shop at 1039 Lawrence avenue, where one man took $30 from the cash register while the other threatened Miss Dolores Wesek, 19 years old, a clerk. A few minutes later they invaded a Fannie May shop at 6431 Sheridan road, where they took $17 after binding Mrs. Minnie Kawalewski, 4418 North Rockwell street, to a chair with curtains and wire. Miss Odette Pellipur, 5858 Cortland street, was bound in a similar manner in the next robbery at a Fannie May shop at 4050 North avenue, where the pair took $30 from the cash register.

Several hours later two bandits whose descriptions tallied with those of the north side robbers held up Mrs. Irene Shea, 6424 South Ashland avenue, in a Dutch Mill store at 863 East 63d street and took $25. They then crossed to a Fannie May shop at 820 East 63d street and took $25 from Miss Olga Holmes, 2644 West 63d street.

STATE CHANGES POLICY TO WIDEN CHICAGO ROADS

Work on Three Projects Starts This Spring.

BY HAL FOUST.

Gov. Emmerson yesterday announced that radial highways in the metropolitan area will receive seven miles of new forty foot pavement and five miles of widening under contracts to be awarded on April 11 when the state opens its 1930 road building program.

Milwaukee avenue, route 21, is to be widened from Touhy avenue at Niles out to Dempster street, a distance of 2.29 miles.

St. Charles road, route 64, will receive 1.91 miles of new forty foot pavement and 2.9 miles of widening, making four traffic lanes from 25th avenue, Belwood to the western boundary of Elmhurst.

Requirement Is Changed.

Th iswork is made possible by the governor's decision to make exceptions in built up districts to the state's requirement for hundred foot right of ways before forty feet of pavement is laid. His decision follows an opinion last week from Director Cleveland of the department of public works and State Highway Engineer Sheets that to await acquisition of hundred foot rights of way would postpone for years most of the widening promised to metropolitan district by the governor.

In explaining the difficulty of getting the extra widths it is pointed out that most of the twenty foot pavements around Chicago have been laid on sixty-six foot rights of way. Business buildings, homes, cemeteries, trees, hedges, and fences have been established along these lines.

Owners of the small parcels of land are scattered. And where they can be readily located, many of them are not anxious to have a thoroughfare at their front doors. For this and various other reasons owners refuse to give over seventeen feet from their front yards or to sell at a fair market value of the land. Thus litigation results. There is a householder near the Zoological gardens, who has fought the Cook county highway department in the courts for two years because he does not want to lose his flower garden.

Acquisition to Be Gradual.

The desirability of the wider right of way and its ultimate necessity is recognized by the state, however, and the new policy is to make its acquisition a gradual process so that the demands of the future will not prevent the motoring public from getting the necessities of today.

The state is placing a parking ban on its pavement so that property owners or villages must provide additional pavement and right of way if they want cars to be able to stand beside the traffic lanes. Furthermore, the state is insisting upon the enforcement of building lines so that there can be no future development on the ultimate hundred foot right of ways.

"Such action," said Gov. Emmerson, "will facilitate greatly the securing of the width ultimately desired. It seems that this new policy is eminently practical and is fully approved by all parties concerned."

Other Metropolitan Projects.

The wide road projects announced yesterday, supplement the original list of contracts for April 11 letting that was issued last week. In addition to the wide pavement jobs, the metropolitan area, in this initial batch of contracts, is to get two bridges over the Little Calumet river on Governor's highway, route 49, a grade separation on the Dundee road with the E. J. and E. railroad between Barrington and Dundee, .92 of a mile of twenty foot concrete on route 58, northwest of Des Plaines, and .48 of a mile of pavement on route 61 east of Crystal Lake.

"With proper coöperation on the part of the people from the metropolitan area in carrying out the policies we have outlined," said the governor in concluding his statement, "we should be able to complete during the current biennium all of the highway projects which have been made possible by the appropriations we have advocated, and should be able to expend wisely and judiciously the sum of approximately $19,000,000 which we have set aside for this important work in the metropolitan area."

Charges Desertion

Mrs. Mary Croker of Burlington, Ia., yesterday appeared before Circuit Judge Lynch to demand temporary alimony from her husband, Grover Croker, a traveling salesman, for the care of her children, Billie, 5 years old, and Marilyn, 3. The judge said he was unable to grant her petition for $60 a month because Croker had eluded service in her action. The case was continued until Monday. Mrs. Croker is seeking a divorce on a charge of desertion. She testified that she was without funds and that she had been in ill health because of her efforts to support her children.

HOUSTON WIDOW WINS A $25,000 SUIT FOR LIBEL

Fort Worth, Tex., March 28.—(AP)—Judgment of $25,000 today was awarded the widow of Temple Houston, picturesque figure of Oklahoma's pre-statehood days and son of Gen. Sam Houston, the "Texas liberator," by a federal District court jury, which held that she was damaged to that extent by a biographical sketch of her husband published by Liberty magazine.

Mrs. Houston had asked $200,000 and suits against Liberty Weekly, Inc., by four children, still pending, ask an additional $400,000. The suits charged the characters of both Temple Houston and his father were blackened by the sketch, particularly that part referring to Temple Houston as born of an aboriginal marriage. Attorneys for the magazine announced they would appeal.

The magazine article stated that Temple Houston, one time Texas state senator, was the son of Sam Houston by an Indian mother.

Don Sietz, writer of the article, admitted he erred as to Houston's birth, but denied the sketch was written with malicious intent.

DOESN'T KNOW WHERE KOESTER IS, DOCTOR SAYS

Dr. F. Emery Lyon of the Central Howard association, 608 South Dearborn street, appeared at the state's attorney's office yesterday and admitted to Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers that he did not know the whereabouts of Edward C. Koester, former convict. Koester tried to probate a will claiming the estate of Edwin B. Jennings, eccentric millionaire, who died Oct. 31, 1923. Koester was paroled to Dr. Lyon and under the conditions of the parole, according to Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, a report should be made at stated intervals as to what work the paroled person is performing and where he is living.

"It is a fine state of affairs when convicts from other states are paroled into Chicago and then the men to whom they are paroled do not know what they are doing or where they are living," commented Chief Investigator Pat Roche, when he was asked to assist in the search for Koester.

Dr. Lyon said Koester should report to him next week. He was ordered to return to the prosecutor's office the day after Koester is scheduled to report. Koester is charged in an indictment with having swindled various persons by selling an interest in the Jennings estate.

2 Firemen Killed, 2 Hurt in Crash on Way to Fire

Omaha, Neb., March 28.—(AP)—Two firemen were killed and three were injured this afternoon in a crash of two fire trucks. The trucks were en route to a fire call at a fraternity house where a fire had broken out in the furnace room.

LIGHT MIDNIGHT SNOW THROWS SCARE INTO CITY

Loop Stores Crowded as Record Drifts Fade.

A new snowfall of brief duration descended on the city early this morning a few hours after the last impeding drifts of the record breaking blizzard had been swept away. The flurry caused some apprehension that the previous storm might be repeated and snowplows of the surface lines were again put into operation in some sections of the city and held ready for service in others. At 2 a. m., however, the flakes had ceased to fall.

Partly cloudy today and fair tomorrow, with no decided change in temperature, was the prediction issued for Chicago and vicinity by Forecaster C. A. Donnel last night.

Thaw Melts Blizzard Drifts.

Intermittent sunshine and gentle west winds during the day had brought thawing temperatures which, according to Mr. Donnel's estimate, melted away approximately half the earlier snowdrifts.

At 6 and 7 a. m. yesterday the temperature reached its lowest ebb of 27 degrees for the day, leaving sidewalks ick and snowdrifts crusted hard. By 9 o'clock the mercury had climbed to 33 degrees and the thawing started. The temperatures rose steadily all day, attaining a maximum of 40 degrees in the afternoon, and again the slush was ankle deep in the many streets where shrinking drifts had not been shoveled away.

Shoppers Throng Loop.

Footing was comparatively dry in the loop, however, as the city had kept shovel squads, trucks and plows at work all night. Women shoppers thronged the streets again and crowded the aisles of stores.

Elevated and suburban roads carried their hundreds of thousands of workers to the loop on regular schedules. Busses operated on all regular routes, while the surface lines for the first time since Monday were able to assume their major share of the city's transportation burden.

School Attendance Lags.

Only the school attendance lagged. Attendance was 50 per cent of normal in the elementary schools, and from 70 to 75 per cent of normal in the high schools. Supt. Bogan instructed teachers to warn all pupils against the danger of contracting colds through wet shoes and clothing.

All state and federal trunk highways in the storm area were open last night except four in northern Indiana, the tourist bureau of the Chicago Motor club reported. The highways still impassable are U. S. 24, between Watseka and South Bend; U. S. 20, between South Bend and Rolling Prairie; U. S. 30, from Merrillville to a point five miles east of Dyer, and Indiana No. 7, from Valparaiso to its junction with U. S. 20.

Three Planes Damaged in Drifts.

Drifted snow at the Municipal airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue, caused damage to three airplanes attempting to land or take off from the field. A Ford transport of the Stout Air lines turned on its nose when its wheels struck a snowdrift while the plane was taxiing.

The landing gear of a Boeing mail plane was torn off as attendants endeavored to extricate it from a snowbank. The motor was torn from a Fokker "Super Universal" when the plane went up on its nose in the snow.

Pana Bank Survives a Run, but Reports Cash Exhausted

Pana, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—The Pana National bank was without ready funds tonight and unable to honor pay checks as a result of a heavy run on the bank which followed the suicide of Arnold O. Johnson, 55 years old, a heavy stockholder and second vice president of the institution.

C. B. Parrish, president, announced that an urgent message had been sent to Chicago for money and that the banl was solvent, but would close Saturday for examination for national bank examiners.

Denies Financial Trouble.

While Johnson's suicide was believed to be the result of despondency over financial troubles, bank officials and friends said that his suicide had no connection with bank affairs.

There was a heavy withdrawal of deposits throughout the day, but the bank remained open until 4 o'clock, the regular closing hour. At the closing time a large crowd of depositors and miners of the Penwell Coal and Mining company was still standing in line. Every depositor's check and pay roll check was honored up to closing time, but after the doors had closed Guy L. Smith, the bank's attorney, announced that the bank was out of funds. He said, however, the bank was solvent and depositors would not lose.

Withstood Previous Run.

The uneasiness in local banking circles has been increasing since the H. N. Schuyler State bank was closed on Feb. 6 by State Auditor Oscar Nelson for examination and adjustment. The Pana National withstood a run at that time with the aid of money rushed here by airplane from Chicago.

During the last few days, withdrawals had been steadily growing and when employés of the mining company appeared at the bank with their pay checks today, two days before the usual pay day, the run started.

The run was still comparatively light, however, when news that Johnson had shot himself to death in the basement of his home was circulated. Hundreds of depositors hurried to the bank and joined the already long queue which had formed at the cashier's window.

Bank Closed; $285,000 Short.

Northampton, Mass., March 28.—(AP)—The Hampshire County Trust company, suffering a shortage of approximately $285,000, closed its doors today less than two weeks after Harold R. Newcomb, manager of its savings department, was arrested charged with theft of its funds.

Newcomb, who of nights was the leader of a popular jazz orchestra, was arrested on March 17, specifically charged with the theft of $15,000. He was held in default of $30,000 bail. The disclosure resulted in heavy withdrawals of deposits, developing to the proportions of a run, which resulted in the state banking department taking over the bank's affairs.

Coolidge Among Depositors.

Former President Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge have accounts at the bank, but were not disturbed over the conditions at the institution. A statement from the office of the former President said that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had not withdrawn their money and felt that it was "perfectly safe."

Arthur Guy, state bank examiner, said the trust company has deposits of $600,000 in its commercial department and $1,575,000 in its savings department, a capital of $150,000 and undivided profits, including surety coverage, of $312,000.

FIRE ADDS HEAT TO WARD FIGHT ON SOUTH SIDE

Campaign feeling ran high last night in the 14th ward because of the burning yesterday morning of the headquarters of Howard E. Reddy, Republican candidate for ward committeeman. The fire occurred at 4960 South State street, in the Negro section of the ward, where Reddy had one of his two ward headquarters.

The family of Abner Shaw, colored, who lived over the headquarters, were aroused by the fire. Mrs. Shaw said she heard some one climbing over the fence shortly after 6 o'clock and within a few minutes the building was in flames. Reddy assembled a group of carpenters and put the hall in readiness for a meeting last night.

At the meeting he assailed his opponent, James W. Breen, assistant corporation counsel. Reddy declared Breen has a sergeant of police as a chauffeur and two more policemen for bodyguards.

Champaign County Broke; Jobholders' Pay to Cease

Urbana, Ill., March 28.—(AP)—Charles W. Dale, treasurer of Champaign county, said today that he fears county employes will not be paid again until June. Money totaling $130,000 now being collected for taxes, Dale explained, will have to be devoted to paying off tax warrants and will not be available for pay rolls.

Two Weeks of Repeating Quakes Frighten Japanese

TOKIO, March 28.— (AP) —Continuously repeated earthquakes have rocked the Izu peninsula the last fortnight. Inhabitants have become panic stricken. Although the disturbances are local, their persistency is regarded as ominous since they are near the epigene of the 1923 earthquake.

KILLED IN FALL FROM HIS ROOF.

CANADA URGED TO TAKE BRITISH ISLANDS OFF U. S.

King's Governor Makes Plea for Indies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., March 28.—Viscount Willingdon, governor-general of Canada and Dominion representative of the British king, in an address here today suggested that Canada take over the guardianship of the British West Indies, which skirt the Atlantic coast of the United States. The governor-general has just returned from a tour of the West Indies. He brought back letters from the governors of the different islands urging that Canada take them over.

"The West Indies are looking to Canada and not to Great Britain for their future guidance," Viscount Willingdon said. "They feel down there that they are the Cinderella of the British empire. They have a feeling of enormous gratitude for the steps taken by Canada following the recent trade agreement. They want to be linked directly with Canada."

Canadians Like Idea.

This suggestion may mean another great step in the revamping of the British empire. The West Indies, under such a provision, would be dependencies of the dominion rather than provinces.

While some think that the governor-general spoke too soon or perhaps indiscreetly, the proposal has already gripped Canadian imagination.

There has been a steady drift of sentiment towards Canada in the West Indies, and last year a movement was started in British Guiana, located on the South American continent, for annexation to Canada. Bringing Bermuda, the Bahamas, Trinidad, the Leeward and Windward islands and Jamaica into close political as well as trade relationship with Canada has many possibilities.

New Outlet for Liquor.

It would be a new source of export for Canadian liquor, now that legal export from Canada to the United States is about to be barred. It would be a new winter playground for Canadians. It would add to Canada all the tropical materials now lacked for its manufacturing industries and it would change the whole aspect of dominion relations with the mother country.

BRITISH ABOLISH DEATH FOR FOUR CRIMES IN ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—The Labor government has decided to abolish capital punishment in the British army for four offenses hitherto punishable by death, substituting penal servitude instead. The capital penalty is retained for mutiny, treachery and desertion. The four offenses are:

1. To misbehave or induce others to misbehave before the enemy in such a manner as to show cowardice.
2. To leave a guard, picket, patrol or post without orders.
3. Discharging firearms, drawing swords, beating drums, making signals, using words, or by any means whatever intentionally sounding false alarms.
4. A soldier acting as sentinel leaving his post.

Dr. MacFarland Found Guilty of "Error."

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, today announced that Dr. Charles S. MacFarland had submitted his resignation as general secretary of the council "with a view to relieving" the council of "embarrassment" over services by Dr. MacFarland to the motion picture industry.

The policy committee reported, Bishop McConnell said, that, "while accepting fully Dr. MacFarland's good faith in his course and in his explanation of that course, in its opinion Dr. MacFarland has committed a very great error in taking pay for services rendered the motion picture producers while acting as a salaried officer of the Federal Council.

Bishop McConnell said that Dr. MacFarland had admitted that "for a period of some months preceding July, 1929" he had reviewed films which the producers were thinking of putting before the public. For that service he received "moderate compensation."

The policy committee also reported "that it is quite certain that there are now no connections whatever between the staff of the federal council and the motion picture industry."

In a statement issued after the meeting Dr. MacFarland said, in part:

"I had originally accepted the position of counselor at a time when the relations between the Motion Picture Producers' association and the church bodies were cordial, and I secured my release before, and entirely independently of, the attacks which followed.

"My relation was entirely confined to study and recommendations regarding religious films and those implicating religion."

meets on Wednesday to elect a new president and cabinet." Then he turned to the arrangements for his address at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium tonight.

Will Await Election Result.

"You see it is quite possible," he said, "that when the dail meets on Wednesday it may vote to reëlect President Cosgrave or some member of the Free State party. It is, of course, possible that I may be elected, but until I am notified of such a development I shall not upset my plans nor make any further arrangements. As matters stand, my party is the minority party in Ireland at present."

"If a Fianna Fail government should take office," he dictated in a formal statement, "it will proceed with carrying out its declared policies —the unity and independence of Ireland, the rebuilding of Irish industries, and the restoration of the Irish language as the spoken language of our people.

"Economically, the Fianna Fail objective is to rebuild Irish industries so that we may produce for ourselves as far as possible, the hundred million dollars' worth of goods we now import annually from abroad. The production of these goods would give employment to the unemployed and provide the only permanent effective remedy for emigration."

Silent on "Irish Republic."

"What is implied in your policy of acquiring unity and independence for Ireland?" he was asked. "Does it mean that you will sever Ireland from her present status with regard to Great Britain, and substitute for the present Free State government an Irish republic?"

"I have said all that I wish to say on the matter in the statement I have made," is the answer of the man who figured so prominently in the turmoil in Ireland of a few years ago, still referred to by the Irish as "the troubles."

CAR CONFEREES REPORT ADVANCE TOWARD A PLAN

After a four hour discussion of the disputed and omitted sections of the proposed new transit ordinance the group of bankers, aldermen, and transportation executives, which met yesterday in the office of Attorney Walter L. Fisher, reported "substantial progress" but no definite decisions or agreements on any specific point. The session will be resumed today.

The ordinance, which the aldermen hope to submit to the voters this summer, should contain the specific location and length of the elevated lines' extensions that are planned for construction during the first ten years of the new franchise, according to the consensus of the group. The inclusion of the extensions, conferees said, would make the plans public and eliminate secrecy.

The proposed extensions of the surface lines, due to the difficulty of determining where the population will grow most rapidly, will not be specified, but the ordinance will contain a provision enumerating the number of miles, probably thirty or forty, that should be laid each year during the ten year period, according to the conferees.

TRIBUNE POLLS CANDIDATES ON WET-DRY STAND

Four Propositions Put to Legislative Aspirants.

THE TRIBUNE announces this morning the taking of a poll among the 442 candidates for the state legislature, to give them an opportunity to state their views on prohibition and to guide the voters in the April 8 primary.

To this end the following letter has been sent to every candidate seeking a seat in the assembly:

"In view of the great interest displayed by the public in the continuance or repeal of the prohibition law, THE TRIBUNE believes that you would like to place your views before your entire constituency.

"If you will express your views by marking the inclosed questionnaire and return it in stamped return envelope, THE TRIBUNE will print your views on the day your letter is received and again on the Monday before the primary election."

Questions for Candidates.

The questionnaire presents four statements of position, any of which may be adopted by the candidates by inserting a cross in one of the four squares placed opposite the alternatives. These four propositions are as follows:

"I favor the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law."

"I do not favor the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law."

"I favor submitting the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law to a referendum vote of the people of Illinois."

"I do not favor submitting the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law to a referendum vote of the people of Illinois."

Volsteadism is a prime issue before congress and before many of the legislatures of the nation. It is also an issue in the two great political parties and in the lives of the people generally. The attitude of legislative candidates on prohibition is believed by THE TRIBUNE to be of interest and importance.

Bill Passed by House.

In the last session of the Illinois legislature, in 1929, the house passed the Weber-O'Grady bill, providing for a general referendum on the repeal of the state prohibition act and the state search and seizure act.

The senate, however, failed to approve the action of the house. Twenty-one senators voted for the bill, lacking only five of the required 26 votes which would have carried the measure.

On two occasions the voters of the state have expressed themselves on prohibition. In August, 1922, fourteen months after the state prohibition act became law, a petition signed by 560,000 voters was filed with the secretary of state, seeking a referendum on the question of whether the existing state and federal laws be modified to permit the manufacture, sale and transportation of beer and light wines for home consumption.

On Nov. 7, 1922, the question was put before the voters, with the result that 1,065,242 voted for beer and light wines, and 512,111 voted in the negative, a wet majority of 553,131.

In 1926, at the instigation of the late George E. Brennan, who was then a candidate for United States senator, a similar referendum was taken, and the wet majority this time was 394,033.

The state prohibtion law is patterned directly after the national Volstead law. It has been put to frequent use by state prosecutors, particularly in the downstate territories, as a more convenient means than the federal procedure in dealing with violators of prohibition laws.

Two states, New York first and then Wisconsin, have repealed their prohibition enforcement acts, leaving prosecutions entirely to the federal authorities.

No Arguments to Candidates.

In polling the candidates for the Illinois legislature THE TRIBUNE has inclosed in its letter to them no arguments pro or con which might prejudice their views or in any way influence their votes. Only the simple letter of invitation to join in the poll, and the questionnaire, as published above, has been sent to the candidates. THE TRIBUNE will print all the replies and will print also the names of those candidates who fail to respond.

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter. The sender of every envelope which is reproduced will be paid one dollar..

FROM POONA, INDIA

A Chicago girl sent the above letter from India where she is engaged as a missionary. She is Miss Paula Rader, the daughter of Paul Rader, the evangelist, whose Chicago Gospel tabernacle contributes to the support of the Kurku mission at Ellichpur, Central Provinces, India. The mission is about 240 miles northeast of Bombay, the metropolis of western India and one of the main seats of British authority in the empire.

Poona, from which Miss Rader mailed her letter to Mrs. Ward, is one of the show places of India and because of its healthful location, 1,850 feet above sea level, is the residence of the governor of Bombay during the rainy season from June to September. It has a population of 215,000 and numerous educational institutions. Extensive gardens and many temples and palaces dating back from the 10th century to the 19th century also add to its attractiveness.

EX-KAISER SUES BERLIN PAPER FOR ARMAMENT LIBEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—The former Kaiser Wilhelm's libel suit against the editor of the Berliner Morgenpost went to trial today with the parties trying, with the aid of the judge, to reach a settlement out of court. The Morgenpost asserted last October that Wilhelm was a part owner of the Krupp works and favored them with armament orders in preference to other manufacturers. The result was that inferior armament was furnished the German army.

Wilhelm's representative, Col. von Kleist, opened the conference for reaching a settlement by insisting that the Morgenpost print a front page retraction under gigantic headlines reading, "We Take It Back." The Morgenpost editor, Herr Mendel, refused to do this.

It appears likely that a compromise will be reached under which the newspaper will print some sort of a retraction, although it will be much less drastic than the former kaiser wants.

CARBOLIC ACID IN THE PARALYSIS RUM THAT LAID HUNDREDS LOW

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—A drink compounded of crude carbolic acid or creosote and alcohol flavored with ginger is the concoction sold by unscrupulous bootleggers as Jamaica ginger that has caused hundreds of cases of paralysis in southern and southwestern states.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran made this announcement today after prohibition bureau chemists had tested more than a hundred samples of "Jamaica ginger" collected in localities where cases of paralysis have been reported.

The chemists found that three-fourths to seven-eighths of the solid content of the drink had been either creosote or carbolic acid and that the alcoholic content was as high as 80 or 90 per cent.

"Some scheming bootlegger who wanted to get rich quick devised the mixture and distributed it widely in the southern and southwestern states, where biting drinks have always been a favorite," Doran said. "We have traced the stuff to three focal points, two of which are in Cincinnati and St. Louis, and we expect to follow the trail until we have the perpetrators under arrest.

The commissioner held up the index finger of his right hand. The nail and tip were stained a dark brown and smelled of carbolic acid. He explained that he had placed the tip of his finger in some of the fake "Jamaica ginger." Three washings, he said, had failed to take off the stain or smell.

"And that," he added, "is what some persons are drinking as an intoxicating beverage."

DANIELS ASKS RASKOB TO QUIT TO PURIFY PARTY

Suggests He Pay Bills, Then Resign.

Raleigh, N. C., March 28.—(AP)—The Raleigh News and Observer tomorrow will say in an article written by former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, publisher of that paper, that:

"John J. Raskob was more interested in destroying prohibition than in the Democratic party, and owes it to the party to pay the debt he created against it and resign his connection with the national Democratic executive committee."

"The Democratic party," Mr. Daniels continues, "demands, or the best portion of it does, that the chairman of the committee shall have no alliances that are hurtful to the common good or that will work injury to party success.

"As long as he (Raskob) remains, millions of voters will believe the Democratic party is wet."

Mr. Raskob, the editor says, gave money to the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, and made "advances to the Democratic party."

No campaign, Mr. Daniels writes, "had such costly and unnecessary frills as that of 1928. Mr. Raskob wished them. He adopted them. He should pay for them."

Called Before Lobby Quiz.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee and a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, will be summoned to appear before the senate's lobby committee next week if Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.], lone regular Republican member of the group, has his way.

Robinson, still resentful of the treatment accorded Claudius H. Huston, Republican national committee chairman, by the lobby investigators, said today he would demand that the forthcoming investigation of prohibition lobbies include an inquiry into the activities of wet as well as dry organizations, and named Raskob as the first "wet" witness who should be called.

Truck Driver Held After His Car Kills a Man

August Weber, 74 years old, a retired business man, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a motor truck in front of his home at 7204 South Halsted street. The driver, Michael McNulty, 35 years old, 835 West 15th street, was held.

Weber's death and one other raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 208. The other victim:

John Oancea 46 years old, 1467 East 67th street, a baker. Died in the Jackson Park hospital of injuries incurred on March 7 when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at 67th street and Stony Island avenue.

TAX EXPERT PUTS BLAME FOR DELAY ON REVIEW BOARD

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

John O. Rees, director of the county's joint tax commission on real estate tax valuation, issued a statement yesterday charging that the board of review has been stalling on the reassessment. Mr. Rees said there is evidence "that the board of review is superfluous in fact, and directly and indirectly is a tremendously costly agency."

"Rees doesn't know what he is talking about," replied Charles V. Barrett of the board of review. "He is not a resident of Chicago and is not familiar enough to know what is going on."

To which Edward R. Litsinger, another reviewer, added: "Who is John A. Rees? What is he director of?"

The board of assessors yesterday requested the board of review to make 30 assessment changes in the country townships of Bloom, Oak Park, River Forest, Worth, Leyden, Stickney, Wheeling and Proviso.

The board of review sent back a notice to the board of assessors that after today no more requests for changes in valuation will be received.

Malone Overrules Reviewers.

At this point William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, served the following order on the board of review:

"It has been brought to the attention of this commission that there are a limited number of cases wherein mistakes have occurred in the individual assessments of real property in the reassessment, and wherein the assessors of this county are in possession of information necessary to correct the mistakes. The assessors stand ready to furnish this information to your board with reasons and changes as recommended by them.

"It is the sense and rule of this commission that such recommendations and changes as are brought to the attention of your board by the assessors be given consideration by your board until the reassessment in Cook county is completed. The taxpayers of this county have an unquestioned right to such corrections, and such corrections can be made at this time with a minimum of expense and delay, without impeding the reassessment in any appreciable degree, as the only time required will be such time as is necessary to enter the changes by the assessors in the tax books."

Board Tells of Work Done.

The reviewers late in the afternoon gave out the information that the valuations have been inked into all of the country towns' books, except those of Evanston and New Trier.

In 1928 and previously the local governments, which are now in financial difficulties, borrowed money on tax anticipation warrants at 4½ per cent interest. Last year the city started out paying 5⅞ per cent, and later in the year the city and the school board paid the equivalent of 10 per cent.

So far this year no purchaser has been found for tax warrants. The city, county, schools and sanitary district are dependent upon a $74,000,000 "rescue fund," raised by large property owners and dealt out in installments by the Strawn citizens' committee. It is said to be only sufficient to operate the local governments, on reduced rations, until July 1.

Politicians generally ascribe the financial troubles to the delay of the reassessment, but others assert that graft and extravagance have contributed to the situation. The Strawn committee has repeatedly asserted that the most pressing need of the local governments is the collection of taxes.

The reassessment was completed by the board of assessors last Sunday. It is now in the hands of William H. Malone, Edward R. Litsinger and Charles V. Barrett, the board of review.

June 1 Is Deadline.

At Gov. Emmerson's conference of tax officials on Feb. 1 the board of assessors promised to complete their work by Feb. 20, but did not finish until March 23. It was also promised the governor that the assessment would be reviewed by the board of review by May 1, so that tax collections might start June 1. Charles V. Barrett told the Strawn committee two weeks ago that the schedule will be carried out despite the extra month taken by the board of assessors. After the tax bills are sent the property owners have 30 days to pay before they become delinquent. If the tax bills are mailed out June 1 the bulk of taxes will be paid July 1. "On that date," Silas H. Strawn has said, "the citizens' committee will be through with rescue, because its $74,000,000 will have been exhausted. No more money can be raised. If there is a delay the local governments will be up against a stone wall."

LOCKED IN ICEBOX; ROBBED.

Peter Kiatre, 622 West 61st place, was locked in the icebox of the General Market store, 6012 South Halsted street, yesterday by a gunman, who robbed him of $220. Kiatre was freed by a clerk 20 minutes after the bandit had fled.

TEMPORARY PAROLE DENIED STEPHENSON BY INDIANA BOARD

Michigan City, Ind., March 28.—(AP)—The pardon board of the Indiana state prison today denied the petition of D. C. Stephenson, life term prisoner, for a 90 day temporary parole.

Stephenson, convicted of the murder of an Indianapolis girl in 1925, requested the parole so he might go to California to obtain evidence which he said would prove he did not commit the crime.

In denying the plea of the former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, the board expressed the opinion "that the attempt at this time to assail the character of a woman who is not in position to speak in her defense is an indefensible and unwarranted attack without a single fact worthy of consideration to sustain it."

In asking for the parole, Stephenson's attorney presented an affidavit signed by Dr. Mabel C. Faulds, a former Gary physician, in which she intimated that Miss Madge Oberholtzer, the girl for whose death the former klan leader was held responsible, had submitted to an illegal operation and had died as a result.

CUTMORE SAYS ASSESSORS PLAN TO DISMISS HIM

Board Denies Charge Made at Meeting.

Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, yesterday charged the board of assessors in open meeting with considering a plan to discharge him, now that his work is nearing completion. He demanded an immediate vote on the issue. The assessors denied the accusation and dismissed the matter without comment.

It was reported to Cutmore than a majority of the board favor his dismissal. The reports to Cutmore were that Adam Wolf has given his proxy to John E. Conroy if an ouster vote is deemed advisable; that Assessor Gene Oliver, under federal indictment for income tax evasion, is the third member of the board in favor of removal; and that Assessors Charles Krutckoff and Charles Ringer, who have sided with Cutmore in several disputes, are opposed to the move.

Cutmore Empolyed in 1928.

Cutmore was employed by the county board in October, 1928, on the recommendation of the joint commission on real estate valuations and the association of commerce. Cutmore is an employé of the Manufacturers' Appraisal company, which makes a business of assessments.

"You gentlemen would be doing me a great favor by firing me," Cutmore told the assessors. "I have been carrying on a thankless task to the best of my ability. I have tried honestly to return a fair and impartial assessment. On every hand I have met with opposition, which some of you gentlemen probably know more about than I do.

Charges Political Attacks.

"Even now politicians are crying against me in an attempt to make an ogre of me, an ogre responsible for all increases in tax bills and credited with none of the decreases. You all know I have nothing to gain in this work. I am not running for office and I could make more money on the outside. I may be a political football, but I have some personal satisfaction in my work and would like to see it carried through."

Cutmore declared that if he is removed and the old order is restored in tax affairs, fixers might destroy the work of the reassessment, which has cost, without interest charges, more than $1,000,000. He said that such a situation could reduce the 1929 and 1930 assessments to the state of inequality of that of 1927.

NEGROES URGE PROSECUTION IN WARD SLAYING

Massmeeting Is Called; State Fails to Act.

A massmeeting of Negroes was announced yesterday to urge State's Attorney Swanson to proceed with the prosecution of John Pampinella, who is accused of slaying William H. Slaughter, a colored preacher who was active in the 42d ward on registration day as an anti-Deneen worker. No action was taken toward the prosecution by the state's attorney's office during the day.

The crime commission, headed by Frank J. Loesch, made a protest when Pampinella was released on bonds. Assistant state's attorneys had said there was no evidence against him. At the inquest, conducted by Coroner Bundesen, two colored women testified that they saw Pampinella run up behind Slaughter and shoot him in the back of the head.

No Reason to Act.—Swanson.

Yesterday Mr. Swanson said he saw no reason for taking the witnesses before the grand jury at this time. He was notified by the police department that the city is under an expense of nearly $100 a day in keeping colored witnesses who said they had been afraid to testify against Pampinella.

Assistant prosecutors said the influence of Richard Prendergast, Deneen leader in the 42d ward, was not responsible for delays in court and inquest proceedings, nor for Mr. Swanson's failure to order a grand jury hearing.

Attorney William H. Haynes, who acted as a special assistant attorney general in the proceedings arising out of the murder in 1928 of Octavius Granady, a colored political worker of the 20th ward, announced that a massmeeting is to be held on Sunday at the Wendell Phillips High school, in which Congressman Oscar De Priest, Attorney Rufus G. Sampson, Irving C. Mollison, and he will call upon Swanson for action.

Haynes Urges Prosecution.

"Certainly no political reason nor reasons based upon factional politics will excuse a failure to institute prompt and vigorous prosecution of the murderers of Slaughter," Attorney Haynes said. "The colored people are interested in knowing whether or not it is safe for colored citizens to exercise their right of suffrage.

"The murder of Slaughter is as much an outrage as was the murder of Granady, and whoever is guilty should be promptly and severely punished, factional political affiliations notwithstanding."

UNLIT STREET LAMPS STIR IRE OF COUNCILMEN

Several aldermen were reported yesterday to be indignant over the tactics alleged to have been used by Michael J. Kennedy, commissioner of gas and electricity, to compel the city council to appropriate more money for his department. The department appropriation was set at $3,367,343, a reduction of $638,683 under than of 1929.

Complaints have been received that more than 5,000 street lights and hundreds of through street lights are out and that a number of other light globes are so dirty that they are dim. The aldermen charge that this is due to the fact that Kennedy reduced his light cleaning and repairing crews to meet the reduced appropriation instead of laying off unnecessary employés.

Commissioner Kennedy yesterday attributed the lack of street lights on the near north side to the reduced appropriation.

MUDDLED COUNTY TAXES HEAT UP PRIMARY BATTLE

"Beat Old Combination," Cornelius Appeal.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Getting ready for the windup week of the local campaign starting Monday, several county candidates yesterday threw off the inertia of routine organization operations and began to talk something besides themselves.

J. F. Cornelius, candidate for the board of review, opened up the Deneen program of attacking the "tax clique" in the county building as the primary cause of the present assessment tangle and the chaotic financial conditions in local governmental affairs. He went after both his opponents, William H. Weber, a member of the board of review who seeks renomination, and William R. Swissler, whom he described as a Crowe candidate.

Demands New Tax Deal.

"There can be no hope of improvement in the intolerable conditions created by the present combine so long as it remains in control of Cook county's tax assessing boards," Cornelius told a noonday audience at the Grand theater.

"Both of the candidates who oppose me come from the same political stable—the Thompson-Weber-Barrett-Crowe combination. This combination has held the board of assessors and the board of review in its grip for many years.

"William H. Weber, for nearly forty years a member of one board or the other, and Charles V. Barrett constitute a majority of the latter board. Through Gene Oliver and Charles Krutckoff they dominate the board of assessors. For years Oliver was Weber's secretary and succeeded him on the board of assessors when the boss of Blue Island went on the board of review.

Recalls Oliver's Election.

"Weber's election to the board of review created a vacancy on the board of assessors. The law provides that in such a case the vacancy shall be filled by election by the board of review. As a result Weber and Barrett, constituting a majority of the board of review, elected Oliver as an assessor.

"William Swissler, my other opponent, is nothing more nor less than the man Friday of Robert E. Crowe. That is enough to say about him.

"It must be apparent to the taxpayers that the only way in which conditions can be changed—the conditions which caused the state tax commission to order a reassessment and which created the present hopeless muddle—will be to defeat every member of the two boards who is a candidate for reëlection.

Savage Attacks Rivals.

Howard P. Savage, candidate for county treasurer, also departed from his usual impersonal style of address to charge that both Walter E. Bacon and Dr. John E. Stanton, the former now on the Deneen slate, and the latter an independent, are both Fred Lundin's candidates.

Savage made his charges at a Snow organization meeting in Myrtle Masonic temple, 4240 Irving Park boulevard. "These two Lundin candidates," he said, "either fail to recognize the tremendous responsibility which confronts the treasurer of Cook county or else they are prompted by their wily boss to try to pull the wool over the eyes of the voters by injecting the bugaboo of ghosts and shadows to frighten you from the real problem you and I as citizens and taxpayers must solve in the immediate future."

Deneen Appeal Issued.

"Two years ago at the primary self-respecting Republicans arose as an angry army of outraged citizens. They swept out of office an oligarchy of officials allied with influences which the voters condemned. This year's Republican primary is merely a continuation of the 1928 fight for good government in Chicago and Cook county.

"Good government means much more than a mere campaign phrase. So far as Chicago and Cook county are concerned it means redemption of this great metropolitan community's good name."

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Clara Timmons, 29 years old, 116 Pico street, Whittier, Cal., died at the Jackson Park hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when she fell from the steps of the Auburn Park station of the Rock Island railway.

Politicians Rate Sanitary District Control as Choice Prize at Stake in April Primary

BY PARKE BROWN.

In the eyes of the politicians the biggest prize at stake in the primaries of April 8 and the election next November is control of the sanitary district of Chicago. Strenuous efforts are being made to call the attention of the taxpayers to that fact.

The district is governed by a board of nine trustees. Five of the nine, a majority that if unified could take full control of the big pay rolls and the huge contracts at least for the next two years, are to be elected this year. And capture of even two of the places by some of the forces in the contest might settle the question of who will boss the district.

In this way the sanitary district fight has become one of those battles somewhat apart from the main warfare over the county ticket in the Republican primary.

Death Causes 2 Vacancies.

Two vacancies to be filled by the voters this year were caused by the deaths of Henry A. Berger and Lawrence F. King. Were it not for these vacancies there would be only three members of the board elected, with four Democratic and two Republican holdovers. But the present situation is that there are three Democratic holdovers and one Republican, President Elmore. Trustees Link, Lawler and Miller, whose six year terms expire this year, are not candidates.

If the Democrats elect two more members next fall they will have a majority. If five Republicans are elected they can dominate regardless of President Elmore, if they desire. If four Republicans in harmony with Elmore are elected those five can boss the district. If factionalism splits the Republicans there may be continued bipartisan rule.

Three Tickets Explained.

Some time before the opening of pre-primary activities by the Republican factions, President Elmore issued a statement urging that business men candidates enter the field. After responses he began, in conference with representatives of a number of business associations, making up a ticket of his own.

At about this stage, Charles W. Seabury, then president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, but acting personally, revived somewhat informally the "council of presidents" of war times, inviting into conference the heads of more than twenty large organizations including the Union League, the Industrial club, the City club and similar units.

At this conference there was created a committee headed by Rush C. Butler and including such men as E. E. Gore, A. A. Sprague and other well known Republicans and Democrats. That committee proposed to draft high class men for the purpose of submitting one complete slate for trustees to the Democrats and another full ticket to the two major Republican factions, their hope being that both would accept its recommendations.

The committee got nowhere with the Democrats. It submitted its Republican lists to the Deneen and Snow organizations. The Deneen people, according to gossip, had agreed even in advance to accept what had become known as the Seabury-Butler nominations, and did so as soon as they were presented.

Elmore Goes Ahead.

In the meantime, President Elmore, a Deneen man, had gone ahead with his own plan. It is said that he presented some names to the Deneen leaders and was told that they would not do, but was not told the whole story of the Seabury-Butler negotiations, which had been largely secret. Elmore therefore went ahead.

The two tickets were announced almost simultaneously. Elmore, who previously had had some difficulties with the Deneen leaders, broke with them and since that time has been waging a hard campaign for his own five entries. The Seabury-Butler candidates, now an integral part of the Deneen ticket, set up its own headquarters as a branch of the main camp. The title of the "Civic Ticket for Sanitary District Trustees" was adopted, and active work was begun.

The third ticket came into being through the regular channels of the Snow-city hall majority of the county central committee as a part of its program of having such candidates selected and approved by a conference of business organizations outside the loop which later developed the "Cook County Taxpayers' association." Later one of the five Snow candidates withdrew and the organization indorsed the first man on the Elmore ticket.

Who's Who on the Tickets.

As the three rival slates are made up they consist of the following:

ELMORE.

Walter T. Quigley, lawyer, associated with McElroy, Ehrhardt & Quigley; graduate of Loyola Law school; served eleven months overseas during war; residence 6444 North Talman avenue.

Frank J. Bilek, retired printer, now secretary of the Chicago West Town Chamber of Commerce; residence, 1638 Blue Island avenue.

CIVIC TICKET [DENEEN].

Joshua D'Esposito, consulting engineer who built the Union station; in service of Emergency Fleet corporation during the war; residence, 6963 Sheridan road.

Fletcher M. Durbin, manufacturer of corrugated bores and cartons; served as lieutenant of infantry in Spanish war; residence, 1409 Astor street.

Charles M. Moderwell, coal operator; president of the United Coal company since 1905; president of the school board under Mayor Dever for two years; residence, Evanston.

SNOW.

Patrick F. Sullivan, electrician; president of the Chicago Building Trades council; residence, 6929 South Green street.

Joseph F. Gubbins, real estate and insurance; assistant city superintendent of streets for three years and deputy coroner for nine years; president of the northwest park district; served in France with 20th engineers; residence, 2014 North Lawler avenue.

In addition to these slate candidates there are a dozen other entries for the sanitary district, among them John C. Sager, an engineer, who has campaigned on the platform that "an engineer should be elected to an engineer's job."

Deneen-McCormick Fight Grows Livelier.

"As it was necessary to organize the board so that the district could function, may I ask whether Mrs. McCormick, if she had the influence and power, would have had Mr. Elmore join the four Republican trustees who were under indictment in effecting a Republican organization of the board? Mr. Woodhull, as alderman, had been chairman of the finance committee of the city council and had a good reputation. The active management of the board was placed in the hands of Messrs. Elmore and Woodhull, and under their leadership the needless employés were discharged and the district reorganized. I gave every aid in my power to enable the district to clean its house and to conduct its affairs on business principles."

Mrs. McCormick's Address.

Mrs. McCormick, at the Darwin school, spoke of "Diamond Joe" Esposito, and asked if he was one cause of the Elmore-Deneen rupture. She said:

"In Evanston on Thursday night I asked a question of the Deneen group which has not been answered. I said then publicly that Jacob D. Allen, campaign manager for the Deneen group, had stated in a recent speech that Howard W. Elmore, president of the sanitary district board and formerly a Deneen adherent, had 'run out' on the Deneen organization and had 'refused to take orders' from the Deneen group.

"The fact that Howard W. Elmore has been an able and honest public official is the very reason for my question as to why he was forced to break with the Deneen organization because of orders from the Deneen group which he could not or would not obey. Could those orders possibly have had anything to do with 'Diamond Joe' Esposito, the Deneen ward committeeman who met a violent death?

"You will remember that the senator has been downstate describing 'Diamond Joe' as a 'martyr' to the cause of law and order, who was shot down in the 'common cause' during the primary campaign of 1928. The senate records and the records of the county Criminal courts and of the federal District court show that 'Diamond Joe' was a gangster, a killer, a bootlegger. I understand 'Diamond Joe' was on the district pay roll for several years at Senator Deneen's orders, and the hardest work he ever did was to collect his dole. I am also informed that another member of the Esposito family was on the pay roll.

"Did Senator Deneen's organization ask President Elmore to put this member of the Esposito clan back on the job, and did President Elmore refuse to do so on legitimate grounds? Was this one of the orders Mr. Elmore refused to take, and, if so, what other orders were there?"

At 7:30 tomorrow evening Mrs. McCormick is to be on the air over W-G-N.

IMPORT OF CANADIAN RUM DROPS 32,000 GALLONS IN A YEAR

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—A sharp decrease in liquor exports from Canada to the United States in February as compared to February, 1929, was shown in figures made public today by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman.

Statistics received from Ottawa, Lowman said, showed that in February, 1930, exports of intoxicating beverages amounted to 150,997 gallons, as compared to 282,985 gallons in February, 1929.

Customers Carried Thursday, March 27

The Rapid Transit Lines on Thursday, March 27, carried 1,008,929 customers—approximately 400,000 more than on an ordinary day—and established a new day's record for all time.

It was 128,562 more than on any previous day in "L" Lines history.

In spite of the handicap of attempting to direct nearly 400,000 people who were not as familiar with the service as are the "regulars", practically all trains OPERATED ON ORDINARY SCHEDULE TIME.

Had trackage in the Loop been adequate, this great army could have been handled more comfortably and at greater speed. Again the downtown terminal "bottle neck" was the controlling factor in all of Chicago's transportation.

American advertising must mend its ethics or lose public confidence

The trail of the trickster is becoming an easy highway over which unscrupulous advertisers are rushing to elusive Yukons.

A great work is being undone; the precious achievement of honest advertisers who have labored for years, by means of expensive public print to build up enduring faith in worthy American products, is being garbled and debauched by ballyhooers.

Quackery in advertising is being allowed to revive the old discredited patent-medicine humbuggery, because self-deceived advertisers are still stupid enough to believe that a generous share of the public can be fooled all of the time.

The spirit of Barnum survives in such extravaganzas as these—

—cigarettes that are boisterously proclaimed panacea for physical and social torments—

—soaps that are supposed to quickly transform ugly faces into visions of beauty—

—foods that are advertised as cures for every disease known to man—

—cosmetics sure to metamorphose prunes into personalities—

—inferior automobiles that are contended to be superlatively better in all details than real cars—

—scare propaganda which uses fake fear as an impelling factor—

—cheap imitations heralded as "the world's best"—

—and last, but not least, the purchased testimonial, a new form of genteel bribery, by which the cupidity of notoriety-seeking endorsers is exploited to a public not so gullible as some wiseacres assume it to be.

IT MAY BE A TRUISM that the more ridiculous some things are made to appear the more they will be talked about—just as a polecat on a hilltop may get more of the world's attention than a violet on a mossy bank; yet it is not the kind of attention that creates the desire to possess.

There are no soft colors on the mountebank's palette. He shouts only in high key. All of his fleas are elephants. And his small facts become fallacies by distortion and exaggeration.

The misuse of superlatives is a crime in advertising.

And let it be set down here that radio continuity carries its full share of the offending buffoonery.

This modernistic hocus-pocus is not a "noble experiment." Though it may have temporary successes, it is a costly way to achieve paltry results. And the tragedy of it is that it really deceives few except the fogged advertiser himself.

Such substantial institutions as those which produce Campbell's soups, Packard automobiles, Atwater Kent radios, Goodyear tires, Fisher bodies, Swift's bacon, Sheaffer pens, Heinz beans, Gruen watches, Quaker oats, Ford cars, Mimeographs, Kodaks, Coca-Cola, Jello—the list might be made tiresomely long—have never attempted to shanghai public consideration with a bait of buncombe; and they have done thoroughgoing jobs without extravagant expenditures.

The American public needs no defense against the implied indictment of its intelligence by the cheap methods of misled advertisers. It laughs in its ample sleeve at the antics of the burlesquers, even discusses them with its tongue in its cheek—and as a buyer keeps its own sagacious counsel.

BUT THESE THINGS would be little concern of ours did they not tend to bring all advertising into disrepute. The first task of sound American business is to maintain the faith. Every tricky, overreaching advertisement that appears in public print is just so much drag to progress—and harm to all honest advertising. Advertising must be believed. It is too fine and useful a force in the world today to be trusted to bunglers.

And besides, silly advertising is expensive. There's a better way.

And there is no dearth of good craftsmen to do the better job. But usually they don't pound desks, make pink promises, send representatives when they are not wanted, or pack a load of hokum.

American advertising must "de-bunk" itself or lose public confidence.

State Concludes Its Evidence.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 28.—[Special.]—The first degree murder case which the state has been pressing against Lila Jimerson, the Seneca girl, was concluded today by District Attorney Guy B. Moore. The prosecutor sent a parade of witnesses to the stand to tighten Lila's connection with the murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, wife of the Indian girl's sculptor-lover.

The prosecution rested late this afternoon after Henri Marchad and his 12 year old son, Henry Jr., had completed their testimony. Monday Red Lila will begin the real fight for her life when she will attempt to prove that she did not incite Nancy Bowen, the 66 year old Indian squaw who actually committed the hammer murder, to slay the white woman.

Marchand, the traveler, artist, and sculptor, was on the stand all morning, a figure in a shabby blue suit who seemed to take pleasure in taunting the red skinned defendant.

Tells His Many Loves.

He told of women he loved and tossed aside much as a scientist might explain a series of laboratory experiments—among them a squaw from across the Niagara river, with whom he shared a cottage at Crystal beach, and a newspaper woman in Albany who loaned him money.

Only once on the stand did he soften. That was when his son, Henry Jr., who returned from school on the afternoon of March 6 and found his mother's lifeless body at the foot of the living room stairs, marched bravely to the stand. As the boy walked to the witness stand and as they came abreast Marchand flushed. He patted his son on the shoulder and whispered "Courage, Henry, and be a good boy."

As the boy told of finding his mother's body, the glances of father and son met across the crowded courtroom, filled with Indian and white women eager for a thrill, and tears welled in the father's eyes.

Says Parents Never Quarreled.

The boy declared his parents never quarreled—"always got along fine, never had any words."

Thus, from the lips of his own son, came corroboration of Marchand's contention that he always had loved his wife, that he only made love to Lila out of pity.

Mrs. Hilda Bowers, the woman who lived next door to the Marchands and her daughter, Mrs. Ula Dressel, said they saw old Nancy Bowen entering the house on March 6 with the basket under her arm that contained the hammer and chloroform. A salesgirl testified to selling the hammer with which old Nancy beat the French-woman to death. She sold it to Lila, she said, for ten cents.

"At first she considered buying a twenty-five cent one," she explained, "but she weighed them in her hands and decided that the small one would do."

Mystery Phone Call.

A school assistant told the jury that on March 6, a woman called and asked if Henry Jr. were in school. She said he was and she remembered that the voice was not that of Mrs. Marchand, because there was no French accent. The state charges that Lila made the telephone call to make sure the coast was clear for old Nancy to kill the "white witch."

Will Connolly, assistant superintendent of police, told of the arrests—old Nancy also is held on a first degree murder charge—of hunting for the death hammer in Burning creek, near the Cattaraugus reservation, and of finding buttons in the stove in Lila's house, where he charges she burned a bloodstained coat.

Lila sat through it all with the same mask of boredom obscuring her true feelings, chewing gum and writing notes to John V. Maloney, her attorney. Only while Marchand was testifying did she seem to find any interest in the proceedings that may send her to the electric chair.

Artist Hotly Grilled.

Maloney bitterly attacked the artist in two hours of cross-examinaton, making him repeat often in telling of his relations with Lila—"I lied to her," "That was a lie," "I was only playing with her."

"You know that among the pagan Indians there is a custom that involves the taking of a lock of hair from some unsuspecting victim and willing him or her to some disaster?" Maloney asked.

"Yes, I know the custom," Marchand answered.

"Is it not a fact that two years ago Lila Jimerson asked you for a lock of Mrs. Marchand's hair?" Maloney continued.

PEDESTRIAN ROBBED OF $39.

THREE WEEKS

MRS. JANET SWANSON.

Mrs. Janet Swanson, 20 years old, 8447 Luella avenue, yesterday won a divorce from her husband, Arthur Swanson, before Superior Judge Sabath. She charged desertion. The Swansons were married Jan. 27, 1928, and separated the following Feb. 15.

BRIBE DEFENDANT ACCUSES LAWYER OF GETTING $900

Kin of Swanson's Son-in-Law Named by Bender.

Attorney Albert Olson, brother of State's Attorney Swanson's son-in-law, received $900 of the $1,000 paid by Emil Klein to have a bond forfeiture in the Criminal court set aside on Dec. 31, 1928, a short time after Swanson took office. Andrew Bender, former clerk in the state's attorney's office, made this charge yesterday from the witness stand in Judge E. I. Frankhauser's Criminal court, where he is on trial on a charge of accepting a bribe to alter public records. Bender was a witness in his own behalf yesterday.

Bender admitted under the questioning of Attorney Ben Short that he had received $1,000 from Emil Klein and his wife, Rosa, but said he was collecting the fee for Attorney Olson. He said he turned the money over to Olson after the bond forfeiture had been set aside on a petition filed by the attorney, and that the latter returned to him $100. That was all the money he received from the transaction, Bender testified.

Olson a State Witness.

Attorney Olson, testifying as a state's witness earlier in the week, said he had received only $50.

Bender told the jurors, who will decide his fate today, that Klein, who had signed a bond for a man who fled the city, came to him and said that an Attorney Micon wanted $2,000 to have the bond forfeiture set aside. He said he investigated the records and found that an error had been made and that the forfeiture could not stand if attacked in court on a petition. He said he told Assistant State's Attorney Lucius Winchester, then head of the bond department, of the matter and that Winchester had told him to send the case to Attorney Olson, his old law partner, and that his fee would be $1,000. Bender said he did as instructed and that Olson got the money and gave him $100.

Denies Altering Records.

The defendant said that Attorney Olson had handled other similar cases before. Bender denied that he had altered the records in the case so that it was possible to have the bond forfeiture set aside. He said he did not know how the error was made.

Assistant State's Attorney Grenville Beardsley has charged that the petition filed by Attorney Olson was a "deception and fraud on the court." Bender is the only one who has been indicted in the case.

PRISON REVOLT BROKEN UP BY HUNGER, CLUBS

Jefferson City, Mo., March 28.—(AP)—The backbone of the Missouri prison revolt was believed to have been broken late today when a group of 500 convicts who mutinied Wednesday and Thursday in the dining hall went meekly to dinner after nearly thirty hours of enforced fasting.

Warden Leslie Rudolph, who today put into effect strict rules designed to make the penitentiary a "hard boiled" prison, said the situation now is completely in hand and that he believes the trouble is over.

Carrying out his edict to rule with an iron hand, prison guards wielded their clubs today at the least provocation, with the result that the casualty list of convicts mounted to seventy-five, most of whom were treated in the prison hospital for head injuries.

Late today prison officials named twenty-two as the most desperate convicts in the penitentiary as ringleaders in the two days of disorder and sent them to solitary confinement in the punishment house. Some twenty others also were in solitary confinement pending further investigation.

HOLDS UP WOMAN IN STORE.

MORRIS ELLER DEFENDS HIS RIGHT TO VOTE

Election Board Hears 20th Ward Disputes.

Twentieth ward disputes over voting rights gave the election commissioners a busy day yesterday. Applications to erase from the poll books the names of many of the ward's registered voters had been obtained by Ben Jacobsen, who is a candidate for Republican ward committeeman against Morris Eller, city collector and present committeeman. Eller was one of those who appeared to defend his right to vote.

Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, Republican member of the election board, heard many protests against the requested erasures. She indicated displeasure about the challenging of Jacob Goldstein, 1225 Newberry avenue, who though more than 75 years old and ill, appeared at the board room to save his suffrage. Goldstein has lived at the same place for 25 years, he told Mrs. Reinecke, who agreed with him that he had been treated unfairly.

Eller Tells His Side.

Eller, in his hearing, said he has lived in the ward for 52 year and that he was married there 47 years ago. For the last twenty-two years he and his wife have lived at 1301 South Peoria street, Eller said. He declared this was known to the person who made affidavit that he did not reside there. His wife is ill, Eller told the board, but he said she will try to appear today to keep her name on the poll books.

Ninety-three applications to erase names in the Seventh precinct of the Twentieth ward had been filed by Jacob Eppenstein, 929 Roosevelt road, who certified that the registrants were unqualified. Dr. Samuel Epstein produced a birth certificate showing that Eppenstein is 20 years old. Marvin Eppenstein, a brother of the youth, also testified that Jacob is 20. All the applications were quashed.

Mrs. Reinecke Hits Trickery.

Mrs. Reinecke said her father and mother had been disfranchised through a trick. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilmore, 7370 South Shore drive, were in Florida at the time the poll books were revised, she said. Suspect notices were left for them, but they were unable to get home in time to call personally at the canvassing board. There is no way now for them to have their names restored to the eligible lists, so they will lose their votes in the primary, Mrs. Reinecke said.

In all about 15,000 applications to erase names have been filed, said Chairman Fred McGuire of the election board. The hearing today will be mostly on applications affecting the Forty-second ward, he indicated.

LAW TO LICENSE ALL PURCHASERS OF GUNS ASKED

Laws to compel every purchaser of firearms to obtain a license were suggested yesterday by the commission on the uniform firearms act which held a conference at the Congress hotel. The commission, which includes 7 members, will submit its recommendations to the American Bar association at the next convention of that body.

Chairman Joseph F. O'Donnell of Boston, Mass., a former congressman, explained that by the proposed legislation it is hoped to prevent criminals from carrying guns from one state to another.

HEIRS CONTEST FOR $600,000 IN GONZALES WILL

Children of Judge Seek Larger Share.

Notice of a contest on the will of Mrs. Gertrude Gonzales, widow of a Spanish tobacco merchant and former mother-in-law of Municipal Judge Joseph B. McCarthy, was given yesterday before Probate Judge Henry Horner. The estate left by Mrs. Gonzales is about $600,000, the court was told.

How Estate Is Divided.

Under the will a trust fund of $100,000 is created for Serafin Gonzales, the son of the testatrix, three-fourths of the remaining $500,000 is left to Serafin Gonzales' six children, and one-fourth to Judge McCarthy's two children. If the will is set aside, lawyers said, the McCarthy children would get half of the entire estate instead of $125,000.

Attorney Joseph Rolnick testified to drawing the will for Mrs. Gonzales in the Augustana hospital on Jan. 29, 1930, three days before the woman's death. He acted as a witness to her signature, he said, and in his opinion she was of sound mind.

Two Women Testify.

Two other witnesses to the signature, Mrs. Mary C. West and her sister, Mrs. Anna Alvarez, were called to testify as to Mrs. Gonzales' sanity at the time of making the will. Both said she was sane on Jan. 29, but Mrs. West said that at another time she was irrational.

Attorney James G. Gordon, representing William F. Nitz, executor under the will, was ready to continue proving up the will yesterday, but Attorney Frank Hiles, for Judge McCarthy, whose first wife was Mrs. Gonzales' daughter, asked a continuance till after the primary election and Judge Horner set the date for April 1.

Hoover to Demilitarize U. S. Methods in Haiti

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover today announced the adoption of a revised Haitian policy calling for the withdrawal of marines by 1936 and gradual relinquishments of American control.

Under the revised policy, recommended to the President today by the Forbes special commission, the office now held by Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner, would be abolished as soon as a president of Haiti had been regularly elected, and an American minister assigned instead to Haiti. The American minister would coöperate with Haitian officials but he would not have the power to direct Haitian affairs now held by Brig. Gen. Russell.

The commission recommendations, adopted in toto by Mr. Hoover, were based on a six weeks study of the Haitian problem on the spot.

The commission's conclusions were that while much good has been accomplished by the American occupation, this government has lagged in training the Haitians to govern themselves. It recommended a more progressive Haitianization of the insular government and the replacement as rapidly as practicable of American marine officers by Haitians.

The recall of Brig. Gen. Russell is expected to take place next fall, when, according to present arrangements, a new president will have been elected and inaugurated for a six year term. The plan is to have Haiti virtually under Haitian control when the 1936 treaty ends.

Not all Americans will be withdrawn, even when the marines depart. Certain American experts would be retained as assistants to Haitian officers in the conduct of the government as stabilizing forces, although it is pointed out that this should not be done without the approval of Haiti. Some control of Haitian customs would also be retained by the United States, although nothing like the 60 per cent control maintained at present.

The commission criticized the failure of the American commissioner to prepare the Haitians for self-government. "The acts and attitude of the treaty officials gave your commission the impression that they had been based on the assumption that the occupation would continue indefinitely," the report stated. "The failure of the occupation to understand the social problems of Haiti, its brusque attempt to plant democracy there by drill and harrow, its determination to set up a middle class—however wise and necessary it may seem to Americans—all these explain why, in part, the high hopes of our good works in this land have not been realized."

GIRD FOR WAR TO AVERT WAR, OFFICERS TOLD

An appeal for preparedness as the surest road to peace was made yesterday by speakers at the first day's session of the convention of the Illinois state chapter of the Reserve Officers association at the North Shore hotel in Evanston.

Pacifism was described by H. A. Jung, founder of the American Vigilance Intelligence association, as fostering communism and socialism. He said pasifists and communists have many points of contact, and that efforts to disarm America, if successful, will place the United States at the mercy of soviet Russia.

Pleas for preparedness and military training as a means of preventing war by inspiring other nations with a respect for the ability of the United States to defend itself were made by Col. Manus McCloskey and Judge John P. McGoorty. Former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Rear Admiral W. S. Crosley, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, and State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county also spoke.

The convention will be held today.

HINDENBURG ASKS FOR EFFICIENCY IN NEW CABINET

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—President Paul von Hindenburg today asked the Catholic Centrist leader, Dr. Heinrich Bruening, to try to form a national union cabinet with representatives of all the leading parties to succeed the cabinet of Hermann Mueller, which fell last night over a proposed increase in the jobless insurance rate. Dr. Bruening then conferred with the outstanding men of all parties and late this afternoon told friends that he hopes to be able to submit a complete cabinet to the president by Saturday noon.

When President von Hindenburg conferred with Dr. Bruening he explained that under present conditions a coalition government would be dear to the heart of politicians, but not a practical solution.

Sees Hope for Pet Project.

"I would prefer to see a cabinet of men picked for their efficiency, regardless of their political alliances," he said.

A cabinet of "outstanding men" from all ranks of the German people has been President von Hindenberg's dream ever since he became president.

Dr. Bruening asked the Nationalist, Martin Schiele, former minister of agriculture, to join his cabinet. Herr Schiele accepted despite the fact Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, his party leader, had previously declared the Nationalists would not support the new government. Herr Schiele is president of the Farmers' Federal federation and is powerful with the agriculturists.

The new chancellor also asked Dr. Paul Moldenhauer, former finance minister, and Wilhelm Groener, former minister of war, to remain at their posts. He also negotiated with the Socialist, Karl Severing, former minister of the interior, whose party violently opposes his participation in the new cabinet.

Republican politicians hope Herr Schiele's acceptance of a cabinet post will precipitate a crisis in the ranks of Dr. Hugenberg's Nationalists, many of whom are anxious for a share of power in the government.

Herr Schiele's acceptance, however, is likely to create difficulties, as he has already stated that should Dr. Julius Curtius retain the post of foreign minister he would not be able to guarantee Nationalist support to the government. With the evacuation of the Rhineland still incomplete, apprehension is felt in foreign office circles at the possibility of his being dropped.

GOV. GREEN URGES PREPAREDNESS IN ADDRESS TO VETS

Attacking the United States' lack of preparedness in the Spanish-American and the world wars, Gov. Fred W. Green of Michigan last night urged the council of the United Spanish War Veterans to "do all in your power to see that we are adequately prepared for any future conflict." Gov. Green, who is commander in chief of the veterans' organization, spoke at a meeting at the Morrison hotel.

"I'm in favor of guaranteeing that every resource of our nation, industrial as well as man power, be conscripted in case of future trouble," he said. "I know that America's business men are just as patriotic as you've proven yourselves to be, but I want to 'see it on the book.'"

Other countries, the governor pointed out, "are not so quick to start trouble if they are assured everything we've got will be systematically hurled at them if it becames necessary."

The governor described the Spanish War Veterans as "belonging to the last volunteer army the world will ever see." He told them he had recently been active at Washington in their behalf.

NEW DOLE LOAN OF 48 MILLIONS STIRS COMMONS

Laborite Admits Failure on Unemployment.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Wise cracks and bitter recriminations resounded in the house of commons this afternon when the government presented a proposal to borrow another $48,000,000 for the unemployment fund.

The proposal was explained by Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor, who anticipated the resultant attack by admitting the Labor régime's handling of the situation had been more or less futile, but maintaining it was less futile than under the Conservative régime. The government declared the reason for the necessary increase in borrowings for the unemployment fund from $194,400,000 to $243,000,000 was due to "world causes."

Churchill Called "Cherubic."

The fireworks were started by W. S. Morrison, Conservative, who, after defending the former chancellor of the exchequer, Winston Churchill, as a "cherubic gentleman who has been depicted as a robber," and describing J. H. Thomas, minister of unemployment, as "not so much a minister as a political device," declared:

"This has been a good government for those whose sole interest in life is to draw an unemployment benefit. For those who want to work it is a very bad government."

This was the signal for angry retorts from the Laborites, who demanded to know if Mr. Morrison would be allowed to insult men out of work.

In the midst of a general hubbub the situation was saved by a Conservative member, who said this latest loan for doles was "only a flea bite in the ocean of unemployment." This brought down the house in laughter and the discussion was able to continue in orderly fashion.

At present there are 1,611,800 registered unemployed in Great Britain, nearly 500,000 more than a year ago.

Indiana Officer Kills Two Men as They Try to Flee

FISCAL WOMAN NOT NAMED IN 3 ERLANGER WILLS

But She Says He Called Her His Lawful Wife.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Between 1920 and 1930 A. L. Erlanger, the theatrical producer whose estate of perhaps $75,000,000 is being distributed, made three wills, and not one of them mentions Charlotte Fiscal, who says that in those ten years, as his common law wife, she gained a right to participate in the estate.

This, Isidor J. Kresel, attorney for the executors named in the latest will, told Surrogate James A. Foley today at a hearing to determine whether the surrogate alone or a jury before him shall determine her status. On this important question of procedure Surrogate Foley reserved decision. Kresel said the wills were made in 1920, 1925 and 1927.

The hearing was marked by an outburst of bitterness, and in the course of it Max Steuer, attorney for Miss Fiscal, said that she and the theater man went through what amounted to a valid marriage ceremony after the 1927 will was made.

Fight Back at Steuer.

Mr. Steuer had just asked that a jury pass on the question, when Mr. Kresel arose and said, "I cannot permit Mr. Steuer to make the charges he has.

"He has said that we have been guilty of subornation of perjury and of intimidation of witnesses, and I cannot let this go by."

The surrogate, anxious to keep peace, asked, "Did you make such charges, Mr. Steuer?"

"What I have said is in the record," Steuer replied to the surrogate. "I stand by it. If Mr. Kresel believes that the cloak fits, he might wear it."

Property Right Involved.

Mr. Steuer's argument was that a property right is involved and that a jury should pass on it. He said that on Nov. 8, 1927, in Atlantic City, Mr. Erlanger said to Miss Fiscal, "We're going to be man and wife from now on."

The 1927 will was dated Oct. 12. Mr. Erlanger was not at liberty to marry in New York state, because the wife who had divorced him on statutory grounds still was alive, but Mr. Steuer contends he had a right to marry in New Jersey, did so under the common law by saying what he did, and that by doing so, after he had made the will in dispute, gave Miss Fiscal a right to half of his estate. He contended that it can be proved that a common law marriage existed.

Reads Her Affidavit.

Steuer then read part of the affidavit filed by the contestant in which she described their oral agreement to become man and wife at Atlantic City. Erlanger was reputed to have said:

"Whatever doubt exists I now take you for my lawful wife."

The affidavit continues that the late theatrical magnate got up from his desk. "I put my arms around his neck and kissed him. 'Abe, you are my husband,' I told him and he said, 'Darling, I am.'"

Kresel and C. L. Craig, attorneys for the executors, insisted that the trial should be held before the surrogate alone "in the interests of justice."

Surrogate Foley set next Wednesday as the time for the final submission of briefs.

SMITH AND RASKOB DENY ANY PART IN GOTHAM STOCK POOL

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob, his friend and the manager of his presidential campaign, and Michael J. Meehan, Wall street operator, took a total of seven minutes today to deny knowledge of a pool in which Robert Lee Harrison, missing broker, said he was interested with them.

Having heard them and some other witnesses, the grand jury indicted Harrison for grand larceny in the first degree. The bill was handed up in general sessions.

Harrison, who had expensive offices on Park avenue and a gorgeous apartment on East 71st street, vanished early in February. Complaints have been made against him, including the allegations of Mrs. Edith Y. Robinson, who says that in 1927 and 1928 he took $26,700 in securities from her, promising to make money for her in the pool, and that she hasn't seen profit or principal.

The decorators of Harrison's office and apartment say that their $31,500 bill was paid with a check which came back marked "insufficient funds."

Last July Harrison married Dorothy McCallum, 17 year old daughter of a prominent Pennsylvania family. He is said to have written $1,000,000 worth of checks which were honored, but to have been a heavy loser in the October-November crash.

GRUNDY FACES ROUGH SLEDDING IN SENATE RACE

Hoover Wouldn't Care if He Drops Out.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Senator Joseph R. Grundy [Rep., Pa.], who was a hero in his state when he took up the cudgels for its industries before the senatorial lobby committee, is now encountering rough sledding in his candidacy for renomination.

While Senator Grundy indicated today at Philadelphia that he would continue as a candidate, it would cause no surprise, on the basis of developments the last few days, if he withdrew. About ten days remain for withdrawals from the primary, set for May 20.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who is the leading candidate against Senator Grundy, said that he is in the race to the finish.

Hoover Keeps Hands Off.

President Hoover has kept his hands out of the Pennsylvania contest, but the impression prevails that he would not be displeased if Senator Grundy were forced out. The Pennsylvania senator, who gained fame as a super lobbyist for high tariffs before he was appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher to fill the Vare vacancy, has been critical of the President because of his failure to line up for the sky high protection demanded by eastern industries. The President in turn is understood to feel that Senator Grundy is a liability to the party from a national standpoint in view of the manner in which the Democrats and radicals have capitalized the Pennsylvanian's name in their attacks upon proposals to increase industrial duties.

Force Lewis to Withdraw.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had been counted upon as chief supporter of the Grundy primary ticket fight against the ticket of the Vare forces. Secretary Mellon and Gov. Fisher, however, seem to have forced the withdrawal of Samuel S. Lewis, the Grundy candidate for governor and to have placed Senator Grundy in such a frame of mind as to cause him to consider his own withdrawal. These developments followed the Mellon birthday dinner at Pittsburgh on Monday, which was attended by Mellon, Fisher, Grundy, and other party leaders.

Some weeks ago, Senator Grundy could have made his path easy by entering into a combination with the Vare Philadelphia organization. At that time, there were reports that William S. Vare, who previously had announced his own candidacy, would drop out if Grundy would support Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia, the Vare candidate for governor.

ANOTHER PATH TO PROSPERITY.

Given time enough, the nation will pull itself out of the industrial depression in which it finds itself, but there is little comfort in that thought for business men and less for the unemployed. If it is possible—and we believe it is—to speed the recovery, no opportunity to relieve the situation should be overlooked.

Government activity in such matters as the building of the Chicago postoffice and the construction of roads and waterways will help provide jobs for the unemployed. Other jobs can be provided in making needed household repairs and improvements. These activities can be supplemented by the larger corporations through the organization of building and loan societies for the benefit of their employés.

A number of the larger corporations have flourishing societies of this kind already. The Commonwealth Edison company, the telephone company, the Western Electric company, and THE TRIBUNE are among them. Many more could be organized to encourage employés to build and own their own homes. How these loan societies operate to provide jobs is well illustrated by the Medill Building and Loan society, which was founded for the benefit of employés of this newspaper.

The Medill society was organized in 1922 when the effects of the 1921 depression were still being felt. In the intervening years it has made loans totaling more than a million dollars, without one foreclosure and without one penny of loss to the society. The funds which the society lends are the savings invested by TRIBUNE employés in the society's stock. The borrower is charged no commission for his loan and pays only such essential costs as that of a title guarantee policy. The expenses of operating the society are paid by THE TRIBUNE, but the control of the society lies not with The Tribune company as such, but with the employé stockholders.

The existence of the society has encouraged a good many men and women to build and own homes who otherwise might not have done so. It has therefore served as a means of providing employment directly to hundreds of building mechanics and to countless others who have goods and services to sell to those who received the wages paid to the men who built the homes. It is generally recognized that a revival of the construction industries is the best of all stimulants for a nation suffering from business depression, and the organization of such societies as that described here is a sound means of providing the stimulus.

Any large corporation can well afford to supply the necessary initial capital and trained management to found such a society. We will be glad to assist other organizations in establishing similar undertakings, and we have no doubt that any corporation which has fathered a successful building and loan society will also explain in detail its methods and experience.

IN PRAISE OF MILITARY TRAINING.

Praise of military training in schools and colleges from the secretary of war will be discounted by the pacifists as the opinion of a man of blood, a militarist. Secretary Hurley, a particularly fine representative of wholesome Americanism, will not be recognized in that rôle by his normal fellow citizens and they will value his testimony to the benefits to the nation and to its youth of this kind of training.

Secretary Hurley summarizes his approval in a sentence, "It develops men." He does not overlook the value to the national defense system of this training among a class of youth from which leadership is or ought to be largely drawn. But he stresses the value to the individual of learning "the vital importance of doing the thing that is to be done at the time that it should be done," the importance of duty rigorously performed, of devotion, of discipline.

Sentimentalists who are trying persistently to do away with military training in the schools and colleges because they delude themselves with the fallacy that military discipline and knowledge make the individual bellicose have little regard for the moral values involved, but these values are essential to good citizenship and to a good life.

FAIR AND WARMER.

The second bright morning of the recent storm when Chicago and its environs again tried to tunnel the way to work was made brighter still by the weather forecast that the day would be cloudy to partly cloudy. Tuesday had so eminently justified the forecast of partly cloudy that the city had no doubt Wednesday would be cloudy. It was, as every one had occasion to observe. The cloudiness had a more substantial body than usually encountered, and it was low, seeming to touch the sidewalks and the streets. It also had a heavy precipitation which was noticeable under foot.

In fact, it was such a cloudiness as might have impeded a driver who, concluding that "cloudy to partly cloudy" would provide sufficiently good weather for a trip down south to meet the advancing flowers, had undertaken upon this information to begin his trip. He would have been in luck if the impeding had begun at his garage doors and if he had not been beguiled by the encouraging forecast out into the prairies where the cloudiness would have a better chance to drift.

For some time hereabouts reliance upon a forecast will be in the nature of a high achievement in pure faith. It may be that the delightfully eccentric weather of the Chicago region is something more than a daily chore for the weather bureau, but the bureau is as eccentric as the climate. After a month here a forecaster should be transferred to Arizona, where he can write "fair today and tomorrow" and be fairly sure of it.

Any one needing a forecast with which to direct his business or plan his pleasures may be advised to look in the Swamp Root Bitters Almanac for the day in question.

RAILROADS IN THE STORM.

The storm has demonstrated once more the value of elevated rights of way in the city and suburbs. Wherever the rails are elevated the problem of getting rid of the snow is a relatively simple one. Trains were running when street cars, buses, and private automobiles were stalled all over the metropolitan district.

As a matter of fact, the elevated right of way, with no grade crossings, offers year round advantages which the suburban railroads have largely neglected. Therefore the railroads have seen their business captured in part by rival electric lines, by automobiles and by buses. The business lost might have been retained with no great increase in operating costs. If, as the railroad managements say, suburban services are operated at a loss, the explanation is to be found largely in the lack of traffic volume.

The railroads start with the advantage of a high speed right of way through the crowded city. This advantage alone should be sufficient to discourage ninety-nine out of a hundred suburban dwellers from driving into town instead of taking a train. Few men or women would suffer the annoyances of driving down crowded streets if they knew that they could make the trip in equal or greater comfort in much less time.

The railroads have allowed the opportunity to slip away from them, but the business lost can be recaptured even now if they will undertake to electrify their suburban lines. Electrification permits the economical operation of shorter trains and therefore enables the railroads to provide more frequent service. Electric trains start faster and stop faster, and the running time is therefore greatly reduced, an advantage to the commuter and to the railroad as well, for it permits more intensive use of equipment.

The suburban steam lines started with every advantage. They had a monopoly. They have suffered from competition only because the railroad managements have failed to keep up with the times.

DOUBTFUL DIGNITY.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent at The Hague reports that the Netherlands are taking note of the campaign in the United States to acquire the West Indies. A distinguished Hollander who has just returned from a tour of observation in the islands discusses their conditions in several articles in the Amsterdam Telegraph, pointing out that there is a disposition to approve a change of sovereignty on economic grounds. But the Dutch colonial minister says that selling the islands to the United States does not comport with the dignity of the Netherlands.

British and French dignity is also perturbed at the suggestion of transfer, as we have been told. We think the objection is obvious buncombe, or at best perverted pride. All of these islands are war loot. Not a single one was obtained by its present holders by discovery or other peaceful method. They are all dependencies with populations of alien race. In other words, they are property and their sale or peaceful transfer to the United States would be fully as consistent with the dignity of their respective European owners as the many cases of territorial transfer in their history. France sold Louisiana to the United States. Spain sold us Florida. Russia sold us Alaska. Denmark sold us the Virgins. Were these transactions inconsistent with dignity? Is it undignified to sell territory for money and dignified to barter it for other considerations?

The dignity objection looks very thin from this side of the Atlantic. And it will not stand indefinitely. The West Indies belong to the western continent, not to Europe, and sooner or later that fact will conquer. It would be foresighted statesmanship and more consistent with common sense and true dignity to achieve a peaceful and profitable transaction rather than to lose them as France lost Haiti or Spain Porto Rico.

WHY NOT AN AMERICAN UNIFORM?

[Boston Transcript.]

Progress is being made in the war department toward supplying the National Guard with dress uniforms of blue, making it possible for our state troops to appear in fitting garb on ceremonial occasions. The "olive drab," which was the field service color, and became the national uniform of our army during the world war, never has been appropriate for other than service conditions. It is, and has been, the uniform in which brave men have fought and died; and is a most honorable livery for any citizen of the United States of America to wear. But it is no more fitting that our soldiers should be obliged to continue to wear the "O. D." on all occasions than it is proper taste for a citizen to appear on the ballroom floor in blue dungarees, just because they happen to be a most respectable garment of industrial citizens.

Our soldiers, regular and National Guard, have been kept too long in "O. D." It is a decade since the war closed, and we have not got out of the fighting togs even now. On special details officers have been permitted to wear full dress uniform of fifteen to twenty years ago, but comparatively few in the service have such garments. Now that the blue is to be reinstated, a new bill of dress must be forthcoming for all soldiers in the country.

It is unfortunate that the United States has always been a lap or two behind in the adoption of full dress uniforms; and has copied more than it has originated. With the possible exception of the brown "campaign hat" and the flannel shirt, both adapted from the plainsman's dress, we have contributed no original feature to military uniforms. From the days of the revolutionary war the American soldier's uniform has been a fairly close copy of the uniforms of English and European armies. We have aped the German in some details, resulting in a very cheap imitation; we have worn French caps, and before the civil war the "zouave" was a striking figure in his borrowed finery. Isn't it time now for a characteristic American uniform?

WE'D LIKE TO DEAL FULLY AND FRANKLY—

with this proposition of having these United States sign a consultative pact at the London naval parley, but we somehow can't get our mind on it. Besides, there's a lot of investigation that we ought to do before we say exactly and authoritatively just what America ought to do. We've got all the encyclopedias piled up on our bed of pain and misery and we're trying our best to read up on consultative pacts and find out what the joker is.

But when a fellow's sick his mind seems to keep on the subject. We got the encyclopedia and started to look up "consultative pact," and then thought maybe it would be better to read up on diseases and try and find out for ourself just what we have. Of course, we trust our good old family doc, but there's nothing like looking a thing up for yourself.

We looked for "naval parley," and before we had got anywhere near it we ran into winter itch. We read something about winter itch and we felt sure we had it, and we didn't care whether they sunk the battleships over in London or not. We were delighted at having winter itch.

We've heard lots of people talk about it, but we always had to sit silent and ashamed because we'd never had it. But just then we ran into beri-beri, a lovely plague of some kind that comes from the Philippines. The more we read of beri-beri the better we liked it, so we scratched winter itch and broke out with beri-beri.

We tried to get back to the naval parley, but we kept running into the most interesting diseases, yellow fever, bobnailed liver, in-growing toe nails and amnesia. All you've got to do to have a disease is to read about it and think of it for awhile and you get it. We've got a lot more to look up and after we've had 'em all we may see what a consultative pact is. If it's something that makes you feel as though you never wanted to work again and just go thousands of miles away and loll on a tropical sea shore under a nodding palm tree then we've got it in an exaggerated form. Anyhow if it isn't a disease we're not interested. But right now we're trying to remember if a parrot ever bit us or kicked us or whatever parrots do to give you their disease. We can't pronounce it, but we feel almost certain that we've got it.

Become a broken surf that streams
Into the hollow of a palm,
And over face and over limbs.

There is a tumult in the trees,
Green sunlight covers us with foam.

Must hearts yield to the monotone
Of light that flows, a sullen tide,
Along the acrid edge of flesh,
Touching the surfaces of pride
With water salt and pitiless.

Will that help us any, Katherine, if we start in again?

Well, let 'em say what they will, the reports on Cal's records, taken by and large, were not so bad.

ABSENT-MINDED ACCIDENTS.

IT is known that ninety per cent of accidents are of mental origin and result, not from insanity or continuous mental incompetency, but from thoughtlessness or carelessness. Psychiatry can try to throw some light on the predisposing causes of the carelessness or thoughtlessness [abstraction of mind from the work in hand] which causes ninety per cent of industrial accidents.

"A man at the time he causes an accident is not thinking happily of his work, but is thinking of himself, and of himself emotionally. A man who is comfortable in mind and body, and at ease with himself, adjusted to his work, to his environment, and to his home life, whose work record is good and shows longer and longer periods of employment, of better and better kinds of employment, thus showing he is neither sick, perplexed nor fatigued, and also showing he is not misplaced, inadequate nor discontented, is not predisposed to become a causative factor in any accident, provided he has established successful mental habits and practices good mental hygiene."

So said Dr. H. S. Hulbert in a discussion of "Mental Mechanics in Accident Prevention and Safety," before a meeting of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons.

Having gotten this introduction off his mind, Dr. Hulbert proceeded to discuss cause of safety, on the one hand, and accidents, on the other, such as character, surprise, happiness, fatigue, anger, phantasy of three kinds, discipline versus obedience, example versus negative awards, criticism, forgiveness, fear, anxiety, campaigns, grouping, fascination, respect and self-respect, inferences, morals and the habit of indulging in comparisons.

Speaking of phantasy, he says: "It has been estimated that eleven-twelfths of the thought processes of the average person, excluding the old, are of a certain type. This type is known by various names: phantasy, reverie, day dreams, wishful thinking. He divides phantasy into three types, discussing each: day dreaming, which may lead to dementia precox, worry, and retrospective reverie.

If ninety per cent of accidents are of mental origin and eleven-twelfths of thoughts of the average person are phantasies, it is time for employment managers and personnel officers to think about the subject. When the national safety council plumped into the midst of the preventive medicine movement they had in mind faulty machinery as the great cause of compensation losses. They have corrected most of that trouble. They now find that physical disease far outweighs all other causes of loss from absenteeism and from compensation. They are preparing to go into the field of disease prevention on a large scale. However, they still have need to consider "Mental Mechanics" as a cause of accidents.

A booklet based on Dr. Hulbert's paper is now ready. It is the thirteenth of the "How to Live With" series. Send ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy.

HEAD TUMOR REMOVED.

Miss M. B. writes: Possibly my experience with a wen on the top of my head may be of help to Mrs. R. G. H.

Mine was the size and general appearance of a raspberry and had lasted about four months. I went to see a plain country doctor who told me he had taken off a thousand or more with the electric needle, and after two applications it was gone, and the skin under it entirely smooth.

REPLY.

My guess is that your head tumor was not a wen, but what matters it since the cautery cured it?

KEEPING COFFEE GOOD.

Mrs. W. G. writes: What makes the coffee curdle in vacuum bottles? I have tried every way I know to mix coffee enough for four bottles. Two or three out of the four will be O. K. I have the bottles clean at all times. I mix fresh milk with the coffee. The corks are clean.

REPLY.

You do not put the coffee in when it is cold enough, on the one hand, or hot enough on the other. Food will not spoil in a vacuum bottle if you keep it colder than 50 or warmer than 135. If kept in between these approximate temperatures it spoils.

SLEEP ON EITHER SIDE.

H. K. writes:

1. Is it harmful to sleep on the left side? People have told me it hurts the heart.
2. Are raisins fattening?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes, if you eat them in large quantities. Otherwise, no.

ON BUYING BOOKS WITHOUT HUSBAND'S CONSENT.

Chicago, March 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A wife signs a contract for the purchase of a set of encyclopedias on the installment plan without the knowledge or consent of her husband. The husband does not consider the purchase advisable and refuses to receive the shipment of books. The company now is trying to force collection of payments. 1. Can the husband be held responsible for these payments? 2. Can a joint bank account of husband and wife be attached? 3. What legal means has the company for forcing the fulfillment of this contract? L. E. D.

1. The family expense act in Illinois makes the husband liable for family necessities purchased by the wife. It is a matter of doubt as to whether a court will consider these books family necessities. 2. Yes. 3. The company has the right to obtain judgment against the wife and also against the husband, depending on 1.

STAGNANT WATER HOLE.

Chicago, March 7.—[Friend of the People.]—Can't something be done to clean out an abandoned excavation full of stagnant water in the 5700 block on Montrose avenue? This disease spreading hole has been reported to the health department a number of times during the last year with no results. H. S.

You are advised that an inspector has been assigned to make a thorough investigation, and if any violation is observed over which we have jurisdiction proper action will be taken to effect an abatement.

NORTH NEVA AVENUE SEWERS.

L. T.

A contract has been awarded and work is about to begin on the Bryn Mawr avenue sewer system which is the outlet for all of the district in which this property is a part. An ordinance was passed Feb. 26th last for sewers in Neva avenue [formerly Nora avenue] and in Montclare avenue [formerly Neva avenue], both to be a part of the Balmoral avenue system, lying roughly south of Higgins avenue between Nordica avenue and Harlem avenue. This system will probably be built early next year.

Assistant Chief Engineer of Sewers.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 29, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Letters from the Army of the Potomac dated March 26 state that on that day the rebels were drawn up in double line of battle all along their front from Appomattox river to Hatcher's Run in anticipation of an attack from our forces. There was considerable skirmishing at times during the day and in front of the 2d and 6th corps it was very heavy. A big battle was expected this week. Most of Gen. Sheridan's cavalry is encamped near Hatcher's Run.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's Goldsboro, N. C., correspondent writes: "Johnston's entire force confronts Sherman at Smithfield, the latter being on the south side of the river and the former on the north side." The Tribune's Washington special says: "Gen. Grant has ample evidence that Lee did not send any considerable number of troops to reinforce Johnston and his whole force now will not number more than half of Grant's."

NEW ORLEANS [Via Cairo].—All news regarding the movements of troops near Mobile is considered contraband. Our forces are anxiously awaiting orders to march to whatever point they may be sent. It is regarded by some as doubtful whether all the troops will move to Mobile.

DUBUQUE, Ia.—Bishop L. L. Hamline of the Methodist Episcopal church died at Mount Pleasant, Ia., on March 23, after an illness lasting all winter. He was one of the most eminent divines in the church.

CHICAGO.—A great mistake has been made. The old man at Col. Woods' museum, we learn from a reliable source, is 142 years old instead of 139 as stated. He will remain here but a few days longer.

MARCH 29, 1900.

NEW YORK.—The Lewis bill, repealing the Horton law, was passed by the senate at Albany by a vote of 26 to 22. The passage of the bill kills professional boxing in New York after Sept. 1, 1900.

LONDON.—Gen. Joubert is dead, and President Kruger, it is announced, will take the field as the nominal commander in chief of the allied Boer armies. Gen. Louis Botha, now in Natal, probably will succeed Joubert in the active command of the armies. "The Lion of the Transvaal," as Joubert was known, died of peritonitis, according to the dispatches. With the news of his death comes the announcement that Lord Roberts has begun his long expected movement northward from Bloemfontein. From Pretoria comes news that Mafeking was heavily bombarded on March 23 and this is good proof that Baden-Powell's beleaguered garrison was safe three days ago.

CHICAGO.—Harvey L. Goodall, editor of the South Side Daily Sun and the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal, died of heart disease at his home, 5141 Hibbard avenue, at the age of 64. Another death yesterday was that of Albert C. Cone, treasurer of the W. W. Kimball Piano company, who died of pneumonia at his home, 4148 Drexel boulevard, at the age of 47.

CHICAGO.—Tornadoes throughout the middle west and south killed 103 persons. In Chicago and near-by towns 28 were killed. The storm smashed through Chicago, Elgin, Melrose Park, Evanston, Wilmette, and other suburbs. Hundreds were injured and thousands of homes, churches, banks, theaters, and business buildings were wrecked, with a loss of millions of dollars. Melrose Park and Elgin lost the most lives and suffered the greatest property losses. Eleven are dead in Melrose Park, seven in Elgin, and six in Chicago. In Elgin practically every building was struck by the storm. Martial law was declared there, and soldiers are patrolling the darkened streets to prevent looting. The entire business district of the town is wrecked. In the First Congregational church, Elgin, the Rev. J. W. Welch had just closed the morning services when the storm broke. The roof caved in on the congregation of 1,000. Three were killed. In Melrose Park soldiers, reserve militia, and National Guardsmen are digging into the ruins of buildings in search of missing women and children. Relief agencies immediately began the work of raising funds to aid the storm victims.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Frances Beyda, pretty 21 year old wife of Jack Beyda, a wholesale grocer, was strangled in her home, 1111 West Roosevelt road. Although fifty persons were near the place at the time, none saw the slayer enter or leave the home.

BERLIN.—The new Mueller cabinet met and received word that the General Federation of Labor is satisfied with the ministry. It at once took steps looking to the end of the war in the Ruhr coal basin.

HOW MANY WERE KILLED?

Morton Grove, Ill., March 26.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of March 25 carried an article attributing to a Mr. James Tracy, claims attorney of the George A. Fuller company, a statement to the effect that there were twenty-six deaths to workmen incident to the construction of the Stevens hotel and that all of them were the result of bad liquor.

If Mr. Tracy was correctly quoted, the most courteous comment I can make on his remarks is to say that he does not know what he is talking about. I never met the gentleman and so I do not think that he had very much to do with the actual construction of the Stevens. I was the owners' mechanical representative while the building was being erected and knew all of the contractor's officials that had very much to do with it. I was around it every day for from ten to twelve hours and know about as well as any one what went on. I know of only four men that were actually killed on the job. There was one other man killed at a steel yard several blocks away while handling steel for the building, so that if it is allowable to charge his death to the structure five is the maximum number.

None of those killed was intoxicated. One of them was killed, as Mr. Tracy says, by a fall down a shaft, but he did not "crash" any barrier. He was an elevator erector and was employed to repair a temporary hoist. He slung a scaffold under a car to work from. The scaffold broke and he fell five floors. I never heard before that any bottle was found in his pocket or that he had had any liquor. WILL COOPER.

SILENCE IS GOLDEN.

NICE, France, March 19.—Talkativeness is an insidious disease. If not checked in its incipiency, it ultimately enslaves its victim. Permitted to grow, it becomes increasingly difficult to eradicate.

The tenacious train talker is tantalizingly tiresome. You plan to go on a trip of quietness and relaxation. But the ubiquitous train talker soon dispels your dream of peace. He is in the dining car, the smoking car, in the seat opposite yours, or, worst fate of all, he has the upper berth of your sleeper!

The trip started, the fusillade of words begins. Possibly a word parade of diseases starts. Thousands of words per hour are exploded in your face without the slightest compunction. Unlike the train, this talker has no terminal facilities.

When two loquacious persons meet they do not converse, but engage in verbal and vocal combat. A word shower takes place which drenches both contestants and finally leaves them breathless and prostrated.

I estimate that a talkative person, with vocal machinery thoroughly burnished and lubricated, given exclusively the field, will use approximately ten thousand words in an hour and a half. This is a conservative estimate. A really rapid talker can speed the record up to fifteen thousand words. The damage to the nervous system, due to talkativeness, is incalculable.

There is a golden mean between talkativeness and taciturnity. A talkative person is invariably tiresome; a silent person is seldom a bore.

GRATEFUL, BUT TO WHOM?

Chicago, March 23.—Now that the prohibitionists have solemnly laid claim to our national prosperity, I wonder what the Republican party will do about its patented slogan. In view of these disputed claims, I am becoming skeptical whether heretofore I was right in being grateful to the heavens for the sunshine and the flowers. Since I was reared in the belief that gratitude is one of the sweetest blossoms that grows, I am quite anxious to know which of the above mentioned parties is rightfully entitled to my thanks for a brand new necktie and a 10 cent cigar.

JOSEPH E. JACK.

AGAINST DEBT COLLECTION.

Nevada, O., March 25.—If you wanted to hire two men to wreck the Republican party it would be impossible to find two better men for that purpose than Hoover and Mellon. The failure of the Republican party to solve the farm relief problem will eventually cause its downfall. The agricultural depression in the United States is aggravated by the refusal of the Hoover administration to cancel the loans which the United States made to Great Britain and France. The advocates of the cancellation of such loans have been denounced by such newspapers as THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE, but the truth of the matter is that if the editors of those newspapers knew what they ought to know they would be advocating the cancellation of such loans.

It is a well known fact that the exports of the United States now exceed its imports. For that reason the amount of gold in the United States is more likely to increase than to decrease. It is also a well known fact that if those loans are paid at all they must be paid in gold. If Great Britain and France are required to pay to the United States a substantial part of their loans, the amount of gold in the United States will be increased with each successive payment, but at the same time the amount of gold in Great Britain and France will be correspondingly decreased. As the amount of gold in the United States increases its purchasing power will decline, but at the same time its purchasing power in Great Britain and France will be correspondingly increased.

These changes in the purchasing power of gold in the United States and Great Britain and France will necessitate an upward revision of the tariff in the United States in order to maintain its effectiveness. Every time the tariff is revised upward the purchasing power of the farmer and workingman will be reduced.

Another well known fact is that the price of agricultural products in the United States is largely governed by the price of agricultural products in Europe. If the price of agricultural products in Europe is reduced by the collection of such loans, the price of agricultural products in the United States will be likewise reduced. The farmers of the United States will be hit both ways by the collection of such loans. The price of everything they buy will be increased and the price of everything they sell will be decreased.

NOT SCOTCH.

Chicago, March 26.—I'd like to brag about the people in our wonderful city. They talk about the Scotch for being tight, but I never saw so many tightwads in every nationality imaginable. And I'm not Scotch. These wonderful mornings, when there is no transportation, and people have to depend on others that are fortunate enough to have cars, do you think a man would offer any one a lift? Some do, but they are so few and far between you could count them on your fingers. Large crowds standing on corners and do you think a driver with an empty car would open his doors and offer any one a lift? Just try it if you do. I certainly never thought there were so many heartless people. After I got tired of waiting I opened a door myself and got in. Then I asked the driver how far he was going and went along with him.

NOTE ON THE SANCTIONS OF LAW.

Chicago, March 25.—It might be interesting to know that from 5:45 to 6:30 this wild March morning over 200 cars passed Pershing road and Michigan avenue, every one of them stopping at the signal—and no possibility of a motorcycle policeman. Some people are law abiding. I'm willing to bet that 75 per cent of these violate the Volstead amendment. There's a difference.

Story of Henley Will Be Told in New Book

"Invictus" Author Called Stevenson "Cad."

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—There is to be a biography and critical study of William Ernest Henley, the man who wrote "Invictus" (Unconquered), with these famous last lines:

I am the master of my fate
I am the captain of my soul.

W. E. HENLEY.

Henley also wrote plays in collaboration with Robert Louis Stevenson, and said after that author's death that Stevenson could be described in a little word of three letters. Stevensonians, who knew that the little word was "cad," were very indignant with Henley for that. Their indignation may have delayed the biography for Henley has been out of favor for a number of years.

Another thing which has delayed the biography is the fact that Charles Whibley always has been looked upon as the inevitable author of such a book. Mr. Whibley was, par excellence, one of "Henley's Young Men." He has the authentic bludgeoning manner of the Henleyans. And it has been known that he also had the material out of which a first class life of Henley could be written. But the writer of the biography is not, after all, to be Mr. Whibley. His name is Kennedy Williamson.

Mr. Williamson was at one time editor of an English magazine, the Sunday-at-Home, and he now edits a small literary magazine called the Writer. He has obtained a good deal of untouched material for his book, and has been helped by a number of men who were friends of Henley. I foresee an interesting volume and a considerable stir of emotion when it appears, particularly if any of Henley's private correspondence is available for publication in its pages.

The Book society is to have a rival upon the same lines as itself. It is to be called the Book guild, and the judges are to be Thomas Burke, J. D. Beresford, George A. Birmingham (who, of course, is Canon Hannay), Beatrice Kean Seymour, and Ethel Mannin. Mr. Burke has been telling potential subscribers that it is the object of the Book guild to supply them with books which they will not afterwards be ashamed of having read.

William Gerhardi's new book, "Pending Heaven," is out here, full of characteristic liveliness and "cheek." It is no secret that the book contains portraits of living persons. One cannot read twenty pages of it without coming to that conclusion. Amusing portraits, but devastatingly cruel ones. There is also an amusing interlude in which the hero, resident in the south of France, and sick of a surfeit of figs, receives from a California admirer an exciting package, with duty to pay and a dozen fascinating wrappings. The package contains California figs!

Stage Coach Days Revived in Story of Banning's Career

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—"Six Horses," just off the press, brings to New York a new author. And Los Angeles is deprived for a fortnight of the picturesque sight of bona fide stage coach and six which, as surely as comes 2 o'clock of an afternoon, is delicately guided by Capt. Hugh Banning through motor packed streets to the few dirt roads California has left him, there to exercise the fine and well-nigh vanished art of the master reinsman.

CAPT. HUGH BANNING.

One of the last of the old stagers is Capt. Banning . . . hale and hearty at 72 . . . with bronzed countenance and blue eyes that have learned the trick of meeting wind and sun . . . with wrists of flexible steel . . . and thick sturdy fingers trained, like a pianist's, to deft individual obedience. There's rare fingering of the lines involved, as well as calculated footwork on the brake, in driving each span of the six horses independently.

The captain's book brings belated justice to this art; and to the Yankee coach, which ranks with our vaunted Yankee clippers as a masterpiece of practical craftsmanship.

History is "Six Horses," every word of it truth—duly authenticated ere he set it down in fleet words by George Hugh Banning, the captain's nephew and collaborator.

A high percentage of literati were in evidence at St. Bartholomew's chapel last Friday evening. 'Twas the wedding of Elizabeth Drew and H. Charles Tomlinson. She had a very chic bookshop in the smart Sixties. He, son of H. M. Tomlinson, is connected with the rare book department of Harper & Bros. The bride's queenly train of lace and tulle was like a summer cloud, and the bridesmaids were laden with masses of spring flowers.

Meetings and Lectures

"The Woman of Andros," by Thornton Wilder, will be reviewed at the meeting of the Bookfellows this evening at six o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

Thornton Wilder will give one of the William Vaughn Moody lectures at Mandel hall, University of Chicago, on Thursday at 8:15 p. m. His subject will be "Great Books Versus Hasty Readers."

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. E. Coleman, 4655 Lake Park avenue, Mrs. George Sevey will give an illustrated lecture on Cathedrals of Spain at the meeting of the Chicago branch of the League of American Pen Women.

Mencken Pen Takes Up Job Voltaire Tried

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Treatise on the Gods," by H. L. Mencken [Knopf].

H. L. Mencken never has written for the family fireside of the great American nation. He never has been either determined or influenced in his writing by what the public will think—that deterrent to complete outspokenness.

He is, in literature, like those figures of the past that make history instead of reading it. He always has said, in whatever manner he chose to say it, exactly what he thought about any subject that intrigued his fancy.

Those who disagreed were, from his point of view, perfectly welcome to disagree; their disagreement was not only expected, but stimulating. If he sometimes wrote a little like a bad boy sticking out his tongue at an elder, it wasn't inconceivable that the elder, his anger abated, might see himself as the comic figure which had brought a grimace to the small boy's face. So far as it is possible for any one pen to stimulate a healthy skepticism about America, basking in Mr. Browning's "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world" (an English fanfare, to be sure, but one which America certainly adopted hook, bait and sinker, as soon as the words had crossed the Atlantic), Mr. Mencken's is that pen. He has been the Voltaire of his time and his place.

It was inevitable that Mr. Mencken some time should write a book about religion. It was inevitable that he should treat religion exactly as he had treated every other manifestation of the national consciousness. That he would write a book whose chief characteristic is scholarship masquerading as casual information was not inevitable, though to be expected.

As usual with Mr. Mencken's books, a whole slice of the body politic and the body literary will find "Treatise on the Gods" very much against their tastes. Another whole slice will find it, because it is about religion, just that much more obnoxious than his past fanfares.

Like all of his previous books, however, "Treatise on the Gods" is for those who accept his major premise—in this case, that religion is not a manifestation of divinity but man's own invention to explain the unknown.

Mr. Mencken considers religion as an historical and anthropological manifestation. He traces the interrelationships of religions, especially of those which contributed to the doctrines and the observances of the Christian faith and those which have borrowed from Christianity.

He considers the birth of religion in the world. The single function of religion, he says, "is to give man access to the powers which seem to control his destiny and its single purpose is to induce those powers to be friendly to him. That function and that purpose are common to all religions, ancient and modern, savage and civilized, and they are the only common characters that all of them show. . . ."

Three devices lay before primitive man for dealing with the accumulating unpleasantness that surrounded him, says Mr. Mencken. First, he could seek out the cause, modify the consequences or anticipate them; that was the device of discovery and invention. Second, man might deny the existence of unpleasantness; that was the device of poetry. Third, man could try to halt unpleasant events by appealing or protesting to the unseen; that was the device of magic or religion. Mr. Mencken feels that the last device was adopted before either of the other two.

Mr. Mencken traces the growth of religion, using historical data as much as possible, but being skeptical about the accuracy of the findings of those who claim that present day savagery has the same religious beliefs as primitive man, for, says he, with justice, savage man has been upon the earth quite as many years as civilized man and those centuries certainly have modified his religious beliefs and practices, even if they have not produced anything comparable to a civilized religion. He rather takes the scientifically recorded reactions of young childhood as typical of the childhood of the race.

One is tempted to quote Mr. Mencken in his more skittish moments, but, although the book is frankly a blast against modern Christianity as it is practiced, the book is much less skittish than most of Mr. Mencken's previous volumes. Lifting out phrases like "Everything that we are we owe to Satan and his bootleg apples" gives much less of the tone of the book than such a comment about the Bible as "a mine of lordly and incomparable poetry, at once the most stirring and the most touching ever heard of."

"Treatise on the Gods" is a stimulating book for the skeptic or for the faithful whose faith is so deeply rooted and whose desire to preserve it, intact, so passionate that any words are mere pebbles thrown against the window of his mind. Middlers, or muddlers will be confused and disconcerted by the book; be made violent by the fact that this author removes old foundations without offering new ones.

MEN PREFER MAGIC, HE SAYS

Chicagoan Purifies King James Version of the Holy Bible

A letter from Frank Chandler of our city accompanies a new edition of the Bible for which he is responsible called "The 20th Century Bible."

"This Bible," he says, "is the King James version from which has been eliminated many indelicacies, immoralities, and irrelevancies as indicated by the pamphlet 'Index Expurgations' . . . absence from the text being indicated by lines of stars, and thus, being purified, is made a readable and attractive Bible."

"The Index to the Bible," its companion piece, he says, is "really a guide book indicating where readily among the thousand pages or more of the Bible to find one's spiritual food, its best literature, its choicest texts, and most delightful Bible stories."

Mr. Chandler also is the author of "Che-Cau-Gou—A History—A Romance in the Evolution of a Great City from the Garden of Eden to the End of the Twentieth Century," by Onkwe Ganinwari."

British Author Depicts 20 as Monsters of Criminality

"Twenty Human Monsters," by Philip Beaufoy Barry (Macrae Smith) is one of those portfolios of historical characters (notorious and scandalous) which come each year from the fertile pens of England. This panorama includes such royal monsters as the Roman Emperor Caligula and Czar Ivan the Terrible, and such lesser ogres as the pair of murderers, Marin and Gabrielle Fenayrou, whose exploits are rivaled in almost any day's paper, although their trial in the 'eighties was a sensation.

William H. Taft Biography Will Come Out in August

"William Howard Taft," a biography, by Herbert S. Duffy of Cleveland, has just been announced by Minton Balch & Co. The manuscript is in the hands of the publishers, with the exception of the last few pages, which will carry it through the death of the ex-President. Mr. Taft himself and the Taft family helped the author in every possible way. The volume well might be called the official biography. The publication date is set for some time in August.

Erskine Tells His Ideas of Yankee Authors

"I am more interested in life than I am in literature," said John Erskine. He was sunk in a chair and it was the last round of a battle between us over his novel "Sincerity," every round of which I had lost. I took the count when he said those words, for he had proved to me that every word in "Sincerity" was actually true, every situation was veracious and that the reasons I didn't like it was because I didn't know enough about life to understand it.

"It is from the intelligent critic alone that an author can hope to get any help in improving," he said. "Other writers talk about how you did something—you had nerve to tell your story in the first chapter and then to tell it all over again, they will say. People who like what you do praise you without really helping you.

"Few people tell you what is the matter with your work. And that is why, I think, so many American writers do three or four books and are done for. They don't improve.

"The most intelligent criticism that I ever had was from a banker who, incidentally, likes my books, but who thinks that I am too abrupt in stating changes in the lives of my characters. I think that that is the way life is—sudden changes, with life offering explanations afterwards. He happens to think so, too, but he says that most people don't feel that way about literature. They expect literature to prepare for the changes. Perhaps he is right. But life seems more important to me than literary technique."

I asked Mr. Erskine about his new book, "Uncle Sam," which is to be published on April 3. He replied: "Many years ago I wrote in an essay that the cartoon of Uncle Sam was material for a novel; that some one ought to write the story of Uncle Sam and his family. No one else did it, so I had to do it myself."

I remembered his telling me last summer in Paris about Uncle Sam and his brothers and sisters, John and Orlando and Antoinette and Frederick [obviously England, Spain, France and Germany], and how he had treated them as characters of a modern novel and had tried to write a story in which the hero was the American spirit, for to so many of us "the cartoon figure of Uncle Sam is almost the portrait of a personality we have met," to quote Mr. Erskine.

Whether he has told the private lives of his characters, or even enough of their histories to explain their reputations, we shall see. F. B.

London Lecture Series Put in Book Form; Tells of Experiments

"Tradition and Experiment in Present Day Literature" (Oxford University Press) is the permanent form of a series of lectures delivered in London last year at the City Literary institute. In those ten lectures is to be found much of the law and the prophets of writing today. They form one of the most stimulating little volumes of the year.

Rebecca West and T. S. Eliot discussed tradition and experiment in criticism, Osbert Burdett talked on experiment in biography, and A. J. A. Symons on traditional biography. Drama was discussed, experimentally by C. K. Munro, and traditionally by Ashley Dukes.

Edith Sitwell championed poetic experiment, Edmund Blunden tradition in poetry. Tradition in the novel came under the expert pen of R. H. Mottram, and experiment in the novel that of J. D. Beresford. There's gold in them thar pages for young writers.

HENRY B. FULLER'S LAST TWO EFFORTS WIDELY DIFFERENT

"Not on the Screen," by Henry B. Fuller [Knopf].
"Gardens of This World," by Henry B. Fuller [Knopf].

The two last books to come from the distinguished pen of our fellow Chicagoan were these—as dissimilar as two books may be—one of them extremely successful in its metier, I think; the other a little faltering.

"Gardens of This World" is a difficult book to label. It is a literary travel book, perhaps as much as anything, with the literary having the same meaning that it has when applied to painting, and not the meaning of being devoted to literature. It is a book, perhaps one should say, about places written with more interest in the writing than in the material.

The delightful Chevalier de Pensieri Vani of Mr. Fuller's most successful book (of a quarter century ago) again flavors the pages, an aged man, a philosopher, a gentle hermit in spirit. He visits places, lovely, remote, quiet places (in civilization, not out of it, for Mr. Fuller was never a man for the jungles in either fact or fancy).

The chevalier's thoughts, his gentle reactions, the charm of natural surroundings, all of that Mr. Fuller gets into his delightful book, a book with the flavor of the past in it, in style and content.

"Not on the Screen" is a modern novel, the reënactment in life of a movie plot. It is about a young man from a middle class family in a small town and his rise in the city, through the help of a girl with a social background. There is nothing remarkable about it—the style is not Mr. Fuller's best, the matter of little moment. It sounds rather as if Mr. Fuller had determined to try his hand at something different from its skilled wont. It is written, at times, with great beauty, but that is because Mr. Fuller naturally wrote with great beauty, and even uncongenial matter could not entirely dim that beauty. F. B.

Scribner's Offers $5,000 for 15,000 to 35,000 Words

By way of encouraging an important form of fiction almost entirely neglected, Scribner's magazine announces a prize of $5,000 for the best story between 15,000 and 35,000 words submitted by an American author before Sept. 20, 1930.

The long short story includes many masterpieces in every literature, but in America it is difficult to find either magazine or book publication for one of that length, despite the fact that some of the most famous pieces of literature extant were long short stories—Edith Wharton's "Ethan Frome," Mark Twain's "The Man Who Corrupted Hadleyburg," Joseph Conrad's "Youth," Henry James' "Daisy Miller," Willa Cather's "A Lost Lady"—to name only a few. Scribners promises book publication to the winning manuscript and magazine publication to other stories accepted.

The Ace of Spades

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Jim Rutledge, accompanied by Sim Hart, is sent out with a herd of cattle to fulfill a contract made by his father, Chandler Rutledge. On the trail they are overtaken by some men from the Moss outfit, enemies of Rutledge. The Moss men start a stampede and drive off some of the Rutledge cattle. Jim recovers them, but in doing so shoots and injures one of the Moss raiders. The men of the Moss outfit swear to be revenged for the injury and pursue him. Jim takes refuge in a ranch house where he finds Ellen Lawson alone in the house. She hides him when the Moss gang comes to the house searching for him and sends them off on another trail, even though she learns that he has injured her brother. Jim rides on into the town, after saving Ellen from the unwelcome attentions of Pete Moss. Shear, the town marshal, threatens to arrest him for the attack on Steve Lawson, but Harrison Pendleton, an old trail driver, arrives on the scene in time to save him from arrest. Shortly afterwards Shear kills Doc Brown, who is claimed had threatened his life. This causes a great deal of excitement in the little cattle town. Jim goes into the local gambling den and is astonished to find Ellen Lawson there. She tells him she has come to speak to her brother, Steve. Jim guides her to where Steve is sitting in a poker game with Shear, Buck Roe and others. As they reach the table the lights go out and when the room is again lighted Shear is found crumpled in his chair dead with Jim's knife in him. Ellen's right hand is covered with blood. She had become separated from Jim in the dark and some one had jostled her. In putting out her hand for support she had touched the crumpled figure. Jim and Ellen are questioned by the sheriff, Manders, and Jim is arrested, but is later released. Jim is determined to find the murderer to clear himself. Ellen arranges a meeting to warn him against Dave Moss and Jim learns that Moss is trying to force her to marry his son, Pete. He suggests that she marry him and they are quietly married. He goes about his investigation and is led into a trap by the Moss gang. Old Dave Moss tells him he has not long to live. Chandler Rutledge comes to town and when Ellen tells him Jim has been out for some time he and Pendleton decide to go in search of him.

INSTALLMENT LIV.

THE RESCUE.

"Don't you see?" Rutledge said, "Dave Moss was dictatin' the words to Pete.

"He wrote what he was told to at first, then broke off to tell us the truth. Right then, if I guess it right, he knocked the lamp over an' went through the window." The eyes of Rutledge were shining with a hope rekindled in his heart. "Maybe they didn't get him. Maybe he's still alive."

"Where is he then? Where is the Moss outfit?" Roundtree asked.

Rutledge waved a hand. "Out there somewheres. . . . What's that?" He stopped to listen, then blew out the lamp. "Get into those two rooms. Don't make a sound. Be ready for business but wait for me to start."

He carried the lamp back with him into the bedroom. The hot globe might betray to the outlaws that some one had been in the house. His hope was to surprise them. The sound of a laugh, followed by a ribald curse, had drifted to him, carried by the wind. It had come from over the hill. Devil Dave's riders could not have seen the light. If the horses back of the house did not betray their owners by neighing, the Moss gang would come swaggering into a trap.

There was more laughter, more profanity, as the night riders trooped into the house.

There was a sputtering of several matches. From the kitchen some one called, "Here's a lantern." Pete presently brought it in, lighted.

"No need to bring it," Jim said. "I'll sign no confession to the crimes you did."

"We'll see about that," old Moss replied with silken menace in his mouth tones. "Tee hee! I kill. You bear the blame. It's a good joke. Laugh, young fellow. Gimme that iron, Clay."

"Throw up your hands."

Rutledge and Jerry Denver filled one doorway, with Steve Lawson craning over their shoulders. Harrison Pendleton and the other two Texans appeared in the other. Their weapons covered the outlaws, who stood staring at them caught by complete surprise.

Devil Dave did not have a chance. He was holding the running iron in his hands when the summons came. As he glared at Chandler Rutledge his face became convulsed with rage. He dropped the running iron and reached for a weapon. Already Buck Roe's .45 was sweeping up from the hip. Jim dropped to the floor and lay sprawled out.

The roar of the guns filled the room. The shapeless body of Devil Dave crashed to the floor before he could fire a shot. It was all over within a few seconds. Buck Roe spun half round, tried to recover balance, and plunged down upon one shoulder, his right arm with the revolver pinned beneath the weight of his torso. Clay had vanished through the door, Sam by way of the window. Pete still stood holding the lantern, a stupefied expression on his dark sullen face.

"Disarm the boy," Chandler Rutledge ordered crisply.

But his eyes did not once leave the bodies on the floor. Men shot to kill sometimes take a deadly revenge before their spirits pass.

From outside came the clatter of horses' hoofs. Clay and Sam Moss were galloping away with the fear of death at their heels.

"Anybody hurt? You all right, Jim?"

"None of us, I reckon," Pendleton said, glancing around. "Buck was a mite late. He got his before he fired an' shot wild."

"I'm all right," Jim said.

He had risen and stood looking at his father. He was a sorry sight, his hair matted with blood and his face covered by it. The color had been driven from his lips. He leaned against Steve, half inclined to sink to the floor. The reaction of joy was almost too much for him.

"Thank God," his father said fervently.

Chandler put an arm around his shoulder. The pressure of the strong muscles, the support flashed from the steady blue eyes, went coursing through the blood of the son like heady wine.

Dave Moss had died instantly, riddled through and through. It was a question of minutes for Buck Roe, but he looked up at Chandler Rutledge with no weakening in the hard eyes.

"You sure got us at last, sheriff," he said.

"You went too far, Buck," Chandler answered.

"You're right we did. It was comin' to us." He spoke faintly.

"Better come clean, Buck," the ex-sheriff advised. "We've got one of the Moss boys here, the others we'll have in a day or two. Have we got to hang them for killing this girl?"

"They didn't do it, Chan. That was old Dave's devilry. None of us got there till after he'd done it. I'll swear that."

"And Joe Shear?"

"He did that, too. Climbed through the window. Go easy on the boys. Old Dave was to blame." Buck spaced his words slowly and with difficulty.

"Anything we can do for you, Buck."

"Not a thing. I'm ridin' to hell—high—wide—an' handsome."

They were his last words. Five minutes later he passed away. He had come to the trail's end.

Good Morning!

He: "No man who gives his life for his country has died in vain."

She: "During the last war eight million men gave their lives that in the future there might be peace. If there is another war—they will have given their lives in vain."

The time is 1940 and the conversation quoted between Michael Deane, head of the European air forces, and Evelyn Seymoure, daughter of the chief of the peace forces, and herself a prominent leader in the interests of international amity. A prohibition killing on the frontier, advanced as a casus belli by a sinister and powerful group determined on starting war, has brought about the sought-for complications and another world tragedy, thrashing thunderous black wings waits alert for the proclamation that shall unleash it on its flight of destruction.

The European federation and the Atlantic States are snarling at one another, all ready to release their powerful gases, their educated bombs—all the means of death that science has delivered unto them, at The Moment, while—all over the world armies of peace strive to avert the Impending Awfulness. . . . A thread of romance glints through.

There, in a nutshell, is the subject matter of "High Treason," which advertises itself as "a film fantasy," and, as such, is effective. It is daring and imaginative and has not hesitated at slinging some sex appeal bait. You are permitted the sight of shapely Peacemakers in their undies and that of Miss Seymour in her bath. True, there is a screen between the audience and the lady luxuriously enjoying her shower, but it is a very thin screen and one might say tut, tut to the censors if tut-tutting at a censor ever achieved any possible end.

The acting fits in admirably with the story material. A bit overdone, perhaps, for the actual, it does all right for the fantastic. Jameson Thomas, who was so grand in "Piccadilly," is excellent here. Miss Hume reminds you somewhat of Evelyn Brent.

"High Treason" has a lot of action, some striking futuristic sets, has been ably directed AND—there's an idea behind it.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

The Answers.

Maurice Miller, 6451 Halsted street, radio dealer—I would distribute it amongst the worthy poor families of Chicago, and I would keep on with my store. I like to be busy, and retiring wouldn't keep me busy. Many poor families are deserving of help.

Miss Marion M. Raddatz, 1513 East 57th street, clerk—I would first build up a strong constitution so that I could safely undertake a trip to Africa with my father. He is a taxidermist, naturalist, and explorer, with the American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

Charles Eichin, 3932 North Hamilton street, postoffice station examiner—I would take a trip around the world. I would take my time, stopping off at every port that appealed to me. I would like to see whether various peoples are as contented now as they were before the world war.

Miss Edith Esther Walker, 6123 north Hoyne avenue, stenographer—I would take a trip around the world, spending much of the time in Europe. I would see the Bermuda islands. I would see that my folks get the benefit of it, too. On my trips I would collect rare paintings.

John Starr, room 610, 123 West Madison street, salesman—I would open up a big school in the interests of poor boys who are anxious to follow a trade or profession, furnishing them food and clothes until they won their diplomas.

Life is just one suit after another—the kind one airs in court—to Mae Murray. But that movie actress is a stanch believer in justice, she said yesterday as she stopped in Chicago a few hours on her way to New York.

"There have been plenty of lawsuits," said Miss Murray, who in private life is Princess Mdivani. "I'm going to New York now to see about my $1,800,000 suit against Tiffany Productions, Inc., for damages to my reputation in their production of 'Peacock Alley.'"

Miss Murray, dressed all in brown from head to foot, much to the delight of a random audience did a song and dance among her trunks on a dray at the Dearborn station. She talked a little about her home, where she says she is "awfully domestic," and her husband "the self-same one for the last five years," and her 3 year old son, "who really is quite a genius."

After attending to her more pressing court affairs in New York, she expects to make a ten week tour in vaudeville and motion picture houses before returning to Hollywood.

Tour of Religious Schools to Cause Development Here

The Rev. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary returned yesterday from a tour of theological seminaries in the east. He has been studying methods of other institutions in preparation for developments here. Dr. Palmer announced that the 75th anniversary of the Chicago seminary will be observed at the time of the June commencement.

Observation of other institutions of all communions, including the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati, Dr. Palmer stated, had led him to a conclusion that ministers for the coming days must be trained to meet problems in four fields. They are, social facts and forces at work, influences affecting conduct and the "cure of souls," religion as a historical development, and finally, professional skill in pulpit and general religious services.

Puffing fire engines and shrieking sirens provided an unexpected overture last night for the dress rehearsal of the Sells-Floto circus at the Coliseum. A false alarm just previous to the start of the grand parade brought most of the fire apparatus in that end of town clamoring to the doors of the show, where there was neither smoke nor fire.

A short time later another unscheduled "stunt" interrupted the smooth routine of the rehearsal. Miss Rose Sullivan, performing acrobatics at the north end of the arena on an aerial ladder, lost her grip and took a precipitate tumble into one of the boxes, twenty feet below. Neither the acrobat nor the spectators on whom she dropped were injured.

All the new paint and most of the old tricks were on display in the performance, although there were some major gaps for which substitutes have been made, thoroughly justifying the press agent's beloved phraseology, "Bigger and better than ever."

Chief among the missing are the roaring lords of the jungle, the lions and their cousins, the tigers. Timorous ladies who always shivered with apprehension while the "cats" were being put through their paces and their flaming hoops inside a frail looking network of bars will breathe more easily hereafter. The animal acts were dispensed with, it was explained by the managers, because of the work and inconvenience necessary in handling the beasts with safety to the audience.

This season the largest and only "lion" in the entire show is Tom Mix, late of the movies, who heads an expert and assorted group of wild west performers and participates in the stunts himself.

Hundreds of small boys invited by the management to attend the rehearsal were enthusiastic, especially over the diminutive Mable Pelke, who tossed her 105 pounds into a somersault near the roof exactly 101 times; the Adonis troupe of balancers; Koban, the Jap who walks upstairs on his head; the Cervantes tumblers, just over from Spain, and the high jumping horses that cleared the bars at the height of their own heads. But their excitement knew no bounds, and they whistled themselves hoarse, when Pallenberg's bears mounted bicycles seven feet high and circled the stages like experts.

And as the big audience streamed out into the night Jumbo and his herd sampled the first of the 1930 crop of peanuts and approved with sagacious nods of their huge heads.

Washington, March 28.—(AP)—President Hoover has been asked to unveil, on July 4, the 60 foot head of George Washington and two paragraphs of Calvin Coolidge's 500 word history of the United States chiseled in the granite of Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Gutzon Borglum, sculptor for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial association, said today the President had taken the invitation under advisement and that Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had indicated they wished to attend the ceremonies. The unveiling of the Washington head will mark completion of the first portion of four figures to be blasted out of the mountainside. Borglum expects to work in order on figures of Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt.

He said the first two paragraphs of Coolidge's history will deal in twenty to forty words each with the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the constitution. Other points to be covered will be the Louisiana purchase, the annexation of Texas, the entrance of the Oregon territory to the Union, the civil war, and the construction of the Panama canal. Borglum said the association believed these to be the salient points in United States history.

MISCHA ELMAN PLAYS STOCK'S VIOLIN MUSIC; STUDENTS WIN PRAISE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mischa Elman went into the second part of his double duties of this week by appearing as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon. In the course thereof he gave one of the most admirable performances that he has ever given in Chicago.

It is possible that his choice of composition had something to do with it. He played Mr. Stock's own concerto for violin, one of the finest of the extended modern works, and one deserving a high rating among them all regardless of age. It was the fourth time that it had appeared on these programs. Mr. Elman's predecessors with it were Efrem Zimbalist, Albert Spalding, and Jacques Gordon. I heard it with great liking and admiration the first time, and my liking and admiration for it have constantly grown.

It seemed to affect Mr. Elman with especial sympathy. Tone and technic need hardly be discussed in a case like this. His tone never fails, his technic is capable of meeting any concerto in the literature. The important point in this performance was interpretation, and Mr. Elman stood out as the sympathetic and understanding interpreter of an uncommonly imaginative composition.

Just before the concerto Mr. Stock introduced an interesting work for orchestra in Ravel's transcription of Moussorgsky's piano suite, "Pictures at an Exhibition." Although not so stated on the program, it was really a first performance in Chicago. The nearest to it was ten years ago when eight of the ten numbers were played in the orchestration of the Russian Touschmalow.

Ravel's orchestration is rather more skilled. His knowledge of orchestral color touches up the pictures amazingly, much more vividly than can be done by the most expert pianist. As always, there were sighs of rapture at the end of the "Ballet of Chickens in Their Shells."

The program began with Beethoven's overture to his ballet, "Die Geschoepfe des Prometheus." The symphony was Schumann's first. Both, in fact all the numbers, were given the best kind of performance.

The music supervisors closed their national conference at the Auditorium last night with what was to an outsider by far the most charming demonstration they have yet made. It was a concert by the National High School chorus.

A few statistical figures may not be amiss here. There were 419 singers in the chorus, being supposedly the best 419 of high school age in the country. They came from 182 high schools in some thirty states and were prepared by 134 supervisors and special teachers of music. They were directed by Hollis Dann, except at such times as he turned over the baton to Frederick Alexander.

But mere facts cannot describe the heavenly quality of those fresh young voices. They floated through the heights as though effort in singing was something they had never heard of. Apparently there was nothing beyond their capabilities.

They were good judges of their own music, too, though they showed it unconsciously. When there was a dull song before them—dull songs occasionally get on the best regulated programs—they sang it correctly enough, but perceptibly without the lift that they gave a more interesting one.

The program was partly divided between them and the supervisors in the audience. The supervisors joined in during a Bach chorale and a hymn and then sang most of the Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah" by themselves. But when Conductor Dann turned toward the stage and signaled the young singers to enter on the final "Hallelujah," there was an effect such as the whole rest of the chorus had not equaled.

It is such singing as this that makes one believe that all is right with the world of American music, or, if not quite all right, at least getting better in quite decisive progress.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The widow of William Howard Taft received an honor in his name today and was mentioned for a congressional courtesy.

Flower Show Opens as Sun Brightens Loop

Carefully grown flowers and shrubs were transplanted to the Hotel Sherman exhibition hall yesterday, to be viewed by the early admiring crowds at the fourth annual Chicago Garden and Flower show. The loop was brighter with sunshine after days of storm.

Ballrooms and hallways on two floors of the building became labyrinths of natural charm in the hands of landscape artists, while competitive exhibits of both amateur and professional gardeners were being judged yesterday. Trucks filled with blooming plants came through the snow from distant greenhouses, and the show opened with little delay, according to Kenneth Bangs, designer of the show.

Most of the attention yesterday centered in the nine contests between 103 garden clubs of Chicago and downstate Illinois, including table decorations, exterior window boxes, interior window arrangements, sun parlor and living room decorations, miniature home grounds, flower arrangements in shadow boxes, bud and bark classes and the poster contest. Judges declared last night they had never seen finer arrays of table decorations, eighty of them competing. Hollywood movie stars made several of these exhibits. Among those doing so, it was declared, were Mary Pickford, Vilma Banky, Marion Davies, Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer, Marion Nixon, Nancy Carroll and Clara Bow.

Mrs. Mildred Andrews shipped in some new and rare wild flowers for her garden display, while the professional displays furnished an imposing sight in the ballroom. The Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, who, in cooperation with state and city florist and garden associations, sponsor the show, also held their annual board meeting during the day.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, gave the opening address yesterday noon, with Mrs. Marc Fowler, federation president, presiding. Teas, garden talks, and other unique features of a flower show followed the opening ceremonies.

Cut roses from all parts of the nation are entered in the competition which will be judged today. Awards in the club events announced last night were as follows:

Poster contest—First prize, Matheson club; 2d, Palos Park Woman's club; 3d, Rogers Park Woman's club; honorable mention, Waukegan Woman's club.

Miniature garden contest—1st prize, South Side Art association; 2d, Portage Park Garden club; 3d, Taylorville Garden club; 4th, Flossmoor Garden club; honorable mention, Seventh District Garden Study club, Woman's club of Oak Park, Woman's club of the People's church, Bryn Mawr Woman's club.

Interior window box contest—1st prize, Catholic Woman's league; 2d, Woman's club of the People's church; 3d, Will County federation; honorable mention, Park Ridge Improvement association.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Newest Married Set Returning to Homes Here

BY THALIA ——.

In a few weeks, there will be quite a sizable group of returned honeymooners to be feted and welcomed. The numerous late winter brides and grooms chose a wide variety of places for their wedding trips. Most of them, however, will be back in town by the middle of April.

Paul Gardner and his bride, who was Mrs. Elliot C. Bacon before their marriage on Feb. 1, have been at Nassau in the Bahamas, and are expected at Mr. Gardner's apartment at 33 Bellevue place early in the month.

Robert and Betty Borden Pirie, who were married during the winter, sail today on the Mauretania, having prolonged their stay in Europe to take a quick trip to England for the Grand National at Aintree, after traveling about in Africa and France. They probably will stay with Mrs. Pirie's mother, Mrs. Waller Borden, in town, for a month or so, until they go out to Lake Forest to occupy the William Mitchell Blair house for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Laflin [Beatrice Clow] returned this week from their lune de miel to Honolulu. They motored back from the west, and are in their own place in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Mark [Mrs. Miriam Ormsby Annan] also are back and are in an apartment at 5818 Blackstone avenue, after a brief trip to Bermuda. Clymer S Bowen and Mrs. Bowen, who was Miss Esther Stockton Ely of Pittsburgh, before their marriage, have returned from Bermuda and are residing in Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Prussing [Mrs. Ralph H. Bourne] are in California, and are expected in Chicago sometime before April 15, but their plans from then on are indefinite; Mr. Prussing's residence is Cleveland. Mrs. Prussing's daughter, Miss Carol Bourne, and her mother, Mrs. J. Hill Whiting, have just returned from a trip to Florida. They were with Mrs. Whiting's son, Bradford Whiting, on his yacht at Miami Beach.

The Vocational Society for Shutins is to have an Easter sale on April 9 and 10 at the apartment of Mrs. Charles King Corsant of 20 East Cedar street. The sale is to be conducted from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening, and luncheon, tea, and dinner are to be served. Members of the board assisting will be Mrs. Henry C. Murphy, president; Mrs. Dexter Fairbanks, Mrs. J. Sidney Burnet, Mrs. Alex Kirk, Miss Gertrude McCarthy, Mrs. Catherine B. Osborne, Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine and Mrs. Earle J. Zimmerman.

In these days when society's calendar is almost devoid of activities, the Arts club, with its generous program of exhibitions, lectures and recitals, must be looked upon by its members as an oasis in a social desert. Invitations have just been sent out for a lecture recital by Aaron Copland, Sunday, April 6, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Copland's subject is to be, "The Younger Generation of American Composers." Tea will be served after the program.

Among those who have made reservations for the dinner dance to be given on April 8 at the Petrushka club for the benefit of Russian officers invalided in the world war are Mrs. Ballard Moore and Miss Frieda Foltz, who are to have parties of 10 guests each; Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, who will be hostesses to groups of 8; Mrs. Waller Borden, who will have 6 guests; Barrett Wendell Jr., Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Charles Edward Brown, Miss Eleanor Holden, Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis of 232 East Walton place are in New York City now, after a month's stay in Sarasota, Fla., and will return to Chicago some time next week.

The Potter Palmers are going to move from 1350 Lake Shore drive on May 1.

The daughters of the W. R. Ruffners of Highland Park are scattered hither and yon, having pleasant holidays. Miss Marianna returns soon from Schenectady, N. Y., where she has been visiting the Charles Ruffners. Miss Virginia is not coming home from the Dow school, but is going, for the spring recess, to Long Island to visit relatives and school friends. Louise, the youngest member of the trio, has been ranching it in Arizona with the Burridge Butlers of Hinsdale for several weeks, and they are to return next week.

Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson and her daughter, Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman of Lake Forest are sojourning at Edgewater Park, Miss.

Word comes from Cairo concerning that much traveled lady, Mrs. Harry Channon of 1434 Astor street. She has been visiting M. and Mme. Pierre Montet at their Egyptian camp. Prof Montet is a prominent French Egyptologist and is now conducting an excavation in what at one time was the capital of Ramses II.

Miss O'Shaugnessy attended Northwestern university and is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta and Omega Upsilon. Mr. Remien attended Loyola university and is a member of Pi Alpha Lambda. The wedding will take place in May.

New York, March 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Jr. and their daughters, Miss Edith Drexel and Miss Marjorie Drexel, who spent the latter part of the winter at Nassau, where they rented a house, are sailing for Europe tomorrow morning on the Minnetonka.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould returned by automobile today from Palm Beach and are at the St. Regis before going to Newport for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fitz Hugh Whitehouse and Miss Adelaide F. Whitehouse have left for Hot Springs, Va., where they will remain for ten days.

Mrs. Clarkson Potter and Miss Nora Potter sailed tonight on the Olympic for Paris before going to Carlsbad for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong have returned from Jekyl Island, Ga.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Chaliapin Halting Sale of Memoirs; Denies Authorship

PARIS, March 28.—Feodor Challapin, famous Russian baspo, had the unpleasant experience recently of finding in a Russian book store here a copy of his memoirs that he never had written.

On investigation it has been disclosed that the book was printed from notes he had left in his former home at Moscow. The notes apparently were stolen by the cheka. Challapin has not received a single cent from the sale of the book and never was even notified of its publication. He has brought suit against the booksellers and the soviet government. Today the police, at his request, seized all of the available copies of the book in the original Russian and in the pirated French translation.

Modern, Sure Enough; Art, Too, if That Is Spectator's Art Idea

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club is offering an extraordinary quartet of exhibits. Two of them are in a certain sense alike; the other two differ from them and from each other. Ossip Zadkine is a sculptor who already has made something of a reputation for himself. He is a brilliant colorist, but has little or no imagination. He and Picasso, whose canvases running over the last thirty years, almost (1902 is the earliest date), are in the adjoining room, are brothers when it comes to the dissecting of put-and-take puzzle pictures. They are both skillful in dealing with abstractions and in turning a collection of matter-of-fact articles into weird implications their original manufacturers would gasp at.

Zadkine is a blend of Modigliani, Matisse, and Picasso when he comes to handling the nude female figure. He stretches the torso to a painful length, fills it with an insipid head on a thick neck and plasters on thick, unwieldy legs at the other end. The legs are painfully short and fat as the torso is long, and, if not thin, then peculiar. At all events no one who knows women would credit Zadkine with any first hand knowledge.

It is remarkable how he can stamp the same rhyme out in picture after picture, nothing saving any of them except his flair for color and his up to the moment seasoning of ribald sensuousness. When it comes down to brass tacks, however, with each letter underlined gives away nudes their significance and the perversion of their bodies is the morbid thrust which modernism forces upon the artist who wants to be in the fashion.

From these go to the Picasso paintings. This is a rather cold room in some confusion. There is color in plenty but extremely little meaning. "Les Amoureaux" are sweetly insipid lovers; the "Harlequin" a mild painting of boxlike breeding; "Le Guitariste" (loaned by the Art institute) a melancholy figure, by all odds the strongest painting in the room. "Dinard" is a gay swirl of color and dance and the "Supper Party" is seen after too many bottles have gone the round, a sickly yellow and green and white.

The best thing in the Arts club is the group of sculpture by Isamu Noguchi. These are portrait heads and are superb. Simple, powerful, full of personality, they are among the finest things of the year. The Arts club is to be congratulated on introducing him here. In a further room are the contemporary Chinese paintings, but these are weak. They are pretty and charming, but the contemporary Chinese painter has not yet found himself. The art of his forefathers is lost to him, and if this be a good example, still is stumbling for a foothold in the life of today.

Medical Journal Says Mental Disorders Are on Increase

While there is an oversupply of general hospitals in the United States, the need is growing for places to treat mental and nervous diseases. This need, including institutions for the insane, is growing "far faster than that for all other types of hospitals combined," according to information released this morning by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

An annual compilation of information concerning hospitals all over the country is published in the issue of that journal which comes out today. It states also that the most striking rate of increase in any type of hospital is found in the institutions under combined city and county control. Fraternal hospitals scarcely hold their own, it states, while industrial hospitals remain almost stationary. A large decrease was shown in hospitals owned and controlled by individuals and partnerships.

It is indicated that hospitals for mental and nervous diseases and for the insane are among those mostly operated under the dual control of cities and counties.

The compilation does not give any conclusions as to reasons for the increase in nervous and mental diseases, but says:

"There are just nine more nervous and mental institutions than there were two years ago. In that period their average number of patients and inmates has increased from 349,667 to 495,407. This situation most seriously challenges the government and the people of the United States."

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—(AP)—Joan London Malamuth, daughter of the late Jack London, was sued for divorce here today by Charles Malamuth, assistant professor in Slavic languages at the University of California. Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

If you want to know, and I know that some of you do, about a charming book which connects gardening and cooking, you may like to make the acquaintance of "The Gardener and Cook." It is an English book by Lucy H. Yates, the author of another book of the same type called "The Professional Cook." This one, which includes "The Gardener," was put out in 1913 by McBride, Nast & Co., New York. With this data you can go looking for it among the dealers in second hand books, or perhaps you could get a fresh new copy by having your dealer order it for you. In 1913 the book cost a dollar and a half.

To plant a garden is to think ahead, and no sort of thinking is more practical or useful to a human being than that sort. To think of planting a garden also touches one's imagination and brightens one's eyes. To read a book of this type is an exceedingly pleasant thing, if one cares for the out of doors, and the relation of all sorts of plants to cookery.

The gardener of this book had the delightful name of Charlemagne, and the cook was Charlotte, the stanch ally of the person in whose service both were. Charlemagne, however, was not as much interested in planting an herb garden as were these two.

In this connection we have this: "Charlotte says that you cannot have savory dishes without the help of bouquets. She culls the petals of marigolds for her soups, plucks the nasturtiums, flower and leaf, for her salads, chooses the blind flowers of the marrow for an entrée, and seeks constantly for those fragrant sprigs which formerly she found all ready to her hand in the marché in her southern town."

This book is delightful because of the quotations in it from the old authors. In this discussion of the herbs and bouquets there is a long quotation from "good old Sir Thomas Moore," which tells how many a plant there may be in the garden and barnyard (paddock), which the fastidious would neglect. He would, he says, teach children the use of common things and how people have long known how to season a pottage or salt meat with wood sorrel or chicory, etc.

Children Love to Laugh; Do You Join with Them?

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A list of toys and playthings for children from babyhood up will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We've been "frightfully" serious for a "terribly" long time, both in the column and out, and so by contrast it occurred to us that fathers and mothers—O, and teachers, too, [don't you remember the thrill you used to get when your class had a good laugh and the teacher joined in?]—don't laugh half as often as they might with their children.

That may sound silly to you. You may think, O, how can you make yourself laugh?

Of course you can't make yourself laugh. But you can let yourself laugh. And there are lots of times that you don't when you could. We grownups with families to support have a serious time, to be sure, and one of the worst things it does to us is to make us laugh too little.

If we have children, that is too bad. Because children are naturally joyous, naturally spontaneous—and they do love to laugh. And, better still, how they adore it when you laugh with them!

Notice it the next time you burst into laughter with them—not at them, heaven forfend! Notice the way they glance at you and the added gusto it gives to their laughter. Or let a guest come and tell funny stories and see how their eyes dance and how they drink it in. Notice how keenly they enjoy laughing with the grownups.

Did you ever—from another room, or when you were indoors and they were out—listen to the laughter of children? Doesn't it ring in your heart? Doesn't the sound of it set something free in you? Isn't it a delight?

Children—of all ages—love to laugh, and especially to laugh with you. You can't make yourself laugh, but you can be ready to laugh with your children. And if you realize how serious and even solemn you sometimes are, you can loosen up, and laughs will surprise you by bubbling through.

Slight Difference in Ages Need Not Block Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A girl of 20 is engaged to be married to a boy of 19, but wonders if the year's age difference will matter in the future.

The boy has been earning since he was 15 and supporting his mother the last two years, so can hardly be classed as a juvenile.

The girl admits a worrying temperament, which is in most cases the one objectionable phase to marriage in which the woman is older. If she is going to worry about it, she had better abandon the idea of marriage.

While all students of matrimony agree that it is well for the husband to be the senior in years, there are loads of exceptions that are proving the rule that other things matter more than age in conjugal living. Wide age disparities are not recommended, of course. But a year, two or five need make little difference in the lives of two people in love who want to marry, unless the woman worries her age into a barrier to happiness.

Some women do spoil their chances for happiness by constantly bringing up reminders of their excess years. If one does this often enough, she will succeed in making the man think he has married an elderly person.

There was a time when a woman who married a man her junior almost courted ostracism. But that was in an era in which the male was supposed to be the high mogul and supreme head of the household. Since he has lost his dictatorship, so to speak, and marriage and home financing are conducted in the modern manner, the matter of a wife being a few years her husband's senior takes on comparatively little importance if tastes are congenial and all other things are agreeable to a fine companionship.

Another influence brought to bear on the question is modern woman's ability to maintain her youthful appearance years and years later than her predecessors.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Kindly Young Man.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love is attentive to my girl friend, but when we are alone he says he loves only me. KENTUCKY."

He is considering your friend's feelings. That stamps him as a thoughtful and kindly young man.

He Is Ungentlemanly.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I went out with promised to meet me later, but did not show up. How can I find out whether he still cares for me? "BROKENHEARTED."

He wouldn't disappoint you if he still cared. Or if he found it impossible to keep the appointment he would send word.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eye with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Soft Suit Becomes Fashion's Pet Child

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special]—Midway through the spring fashion shows it is obvious that the pet child of Paris fashions is the soft suit, the kind of suit that looks as if a dressmaker made it, but, of course, a super-seamstress with all the tricks of the trade in her needle.

A vast number of practical daytime ensembles in the Paris openings are soft suits composed of waist, skirt, and wrap. The last may be any one of a dozen kinds of jacket or cape. The key word to this statement is WAIST. Blouses have replaced the sweater, everywhere crowding it out of fashions for town, and a whole long chapter is being written about waists because they are so smart.

Jackets of suits have quit being cardigans. They are now boleros, etons, fitted and flared waistcoats with sleeves, and softly flowing sacques like the jacket of the Lucile suit shown here. Their sleeves leave the straight and narrow, and take on variety both as to length and width. AND there is the blouse. The blouse of this biscuit colored wool volle suit is made of Pompeian red crêpe, and a good part of its undeniable chic is due to the fact that it flares in a peplum over the top of the skirt and is belted at normal by a red leather belt.

The collar is made of red crocheted wool with a biscuit border, and so are the cuffs that show below the seven-eighths length sleeves. The jacket pockets and cuffs are bordered with crochet in the two colors, and this same handwork is placed all around the bottom of the gently flaring skirt and up the center front seam.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must be original. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

She replied, "No, I don't want to."

One glance at her mother's face told her that perhaps it would be best to obey. As she picked up her glass, she said, "All right, I'll drink it so I won't 'aggrebate' you." L. L.

Finger Nails Imitate the Lobster, or Appear in Deep Blue Lacquer

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A certain woman with a penchant for collecting jewels and husbands and other decorative adjuncts to a well established career is reported as putting her finger nails in deep mourning polish. For what purpose we know not, since our reporter reports the effect was hideous. They earned the lady some publicity here and there, and perhaps that was the object. And besides, girls just have to amuse themselves in between working hours, haven't they?

Well, some one just returned from the other side, reports the appearance at a Parisian night club of a fair emerald collector done in emerald frock with her nails lacquered in green. Another story comes of the introduction of blue lacquer to conform with the dress ensemble color. Maybe we are in for a spell of nail lacquering of every color.

But those blood-red nails that have been seen hereabouts for some little time now—do they do to your appetite what they do to mine? I wish the girls wouldn't start lacquering until after meal time, especially if I have a nice big lobster half in front of me. I get delusions, I'm afraid I'll pick up one of the nails and dip it in the butter.

It sure do take all of us funny ones to make up our funny show-off world. But I think I'd prefer the mourning lacquer, the green and the blue to that murderous looking red. It's so unappetizing. But, then, that may be only my opinion and you are just as privileged to your own.

We used to be able to say with such smug finality: "Nice people do not do this or that!" They do, though. Nice people and all kinds of people do all kinds of things, especially if fashion sponsors them. So that Victorian line is out. And I suppose if you have a beautifully shaped hand and you want to call attention to it, there's no law stopping the performance.

However, when fads are adopted, extreme fads, that is, I think girl or woman should belong to the groups known as rarely exotic, extremely chic, unusually clever in dress and makeup or very, very gay if you know what I mean. Otherwise, the safest policy is to lean a bit heavily toward the conventional.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER.

Grapes must be pruned every year if good crops are expected, and now is the time to do it before the buds swell, it is recommended by Dr. A. S. Colby, chief in small fruit culture at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. The job should be done even after the buds swell rather than not at all.

The Kniffin system is the best to use. The four cane system is recommended for all ordinary conditions, but the six cane probably will give the best results if the vines originally were planted too close and if the variety is a strong grower in a fertile soil. The four cane system consists of a two wire trellis with the wires about three to five feet above the ground on which the fruiting canes are trained in either direction.

The extra wire necessary for six cane system should be placed about a foot and a half above the one just below it. The canes should originate within eight inches of the trunk. From four to six, depending upon which system is being used, should be selected and cut back to leave a total from 40 to 80 buds on the vine, depending upon the variety, the vigor, soil conditions, and the system which is being used.

In addition, three or four short canes, or spurs, about two buds long and arising close in at about the level of the wires, should be left at pruning time. Shoots which will grow from buds on these spurs may be used as fruiting canes the next season. This is called the long cane renewal method.

If the vines produced a large number of very vigorous shoots, as measured both by length and diameter, the previous season it is an indication that they were pruned too heavily. More buds should be left at pruning time this year. The number may be doubled over that of last year in most cases. Where a good many shoots resulted from the last season's growth which ripened out to the end, but did not make an excessive growth either in length or diameter, the same number of buds should be left as before. If a high percentage of canes of low vigor is found on the vines, fewer buds should be left and the vines thus given a chance to regain its balance.

At the Office.

I work in an office, and usually after 3 o'clock in the afternoon there isn't much to do but sit around and talk.

One day one of the fellows asked me if I was nervous. I said I did not know, so he filled up two glasses of water and told me to place my hand on the table, palms down. Then he put a glass on each hand and walked away, leaving me helpless.

After he left, who should walk in but the big boss, and in trying to hide my hands with the glasses on I dropped both of them on the floor with a resounding crash.

You can imagine my embarrassment. W. P.

Too Many Walking Away from Radio, Detroit Woman Says

Inattention of the American people to what comes by way of the radio is casting a shadow on music, and creating a public of nonlisteners. That was the opinion expressed yesterday by Edith Rhetts, educational director of the Detroit Symphony orchestra. She was a speaker at the final day's sessions of the Music Supervisors' National conference at the Stevens hotel.

"Some one turns the radio on. Father goes out to garden, the children scatter about the house or yard while mother retires to the back of the house," was the picture this speaker drew. "The radio grinds on, and the whole family becomes as oblivious to it as the passing street car. It is not the fault of the radio, but the habit of inattention on the part of the listeners."

Honor Pioneer's Memory.

Murray, Ky., March 28.—(AP)—A monument crediting Nathan B. Stubblefield with having been the first to broadcast the human voice by radio was dedicated on the campus of Murray State Teachers college today. Stubblefield is said to have made the first public demonstration of radio in 1902. He died two years ago today. Two daughters unveiled the monument.

HUNGRY RUSSIA GETS U. S. LARD IN FOOD PACKAGES

Latvian Importers Bare Big Trade in Fats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, March 28.—Russia is becoming a large consumer of American lard according to Baltic importers. They report that 60 per cent of the lard, according to Baltic importers, goes the soviet frontiers in food packages.

Thousands of Baltic families having relatives in Russia are sending weekly packages to them containing between $1 and $4 worth of food staples, consisting chiefly of flour, rice, macaroni, American lard and sugar. Meanwhile the soviet government continues to export and sell at dumping prices very large quantities of food supplies.

According to hundreds of letters published in the Baltic press the urban population of Russia is threatened with tuberculosis because of an insufficiency of fats in the diet. The spread of tuberculosis is confirmed by the soviet press, which admits that improper food and undernourishment is mainly responsible. White plague heads the list of the diseases in the increasing death rate in Russia. A study of obituaries of prominent communists in recent months show that four out of five died from tuberculosis.

The number of meatless days, which are at present 12 in each month, will soon be increased, says the Moscow Izvestia, one of the official organs of the government. It reports that only 60 per cent of the projected meat supply has been obtained from the peasants by government packers and that the amount of live stock has decreased 40 per cent during the last six months, making it less than 30 per cent of the pre-war figure.

Faherty Board O. K.'s Projects To Cost $1,397,000

Despite the protests of a delegation of property owners led by Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], an order for the widening and paving of Sunnyside avenue between the north shore channel and Sacramento avenue was issue by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements yesterday. The estimated cost of the work is $73,000. The delegation expressed its opposition to the project at a public hearing held by the board.

A number of other improvements, mostly street widening and paving projects, were ordered by the board at a total estimated cost of $1,397,000. Among the larger projects is the paving with asphalt of a system of streets bounded by 81th and 86th streets and Elsmore and Hamilton avenues at a cost of $274,000.

Four street paving projects in the 37th ward were abandoned by the board when Ald. Sheldon Govier of that ward presented petitions signed by a majority of the property owners protesting against the improvements.

Macomb, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—The McDonough county Republican central committee voted today to send as uninstructed delegation to the judicial convention of the Fourth district which will name a candidate for the Supreme court branch. In voting, the delegation will follow the unit rule. The committee's action came after Judge Paul Samuels of Jacksonville had branded as untrue the charge that Gov. Emmerson was using a bludgeon in his behalf.

Paints Radio Picture of Life in Manchuria

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

If Manchuria were not so inconveniently far away the travelogue concerning it, given by Alfred Lyman Flude over W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 o'clock last night, would be travel news of value to our thousands of spring and summer tourists.

And Mr. Flude expects all of us to go there some day. He told us so. Undoubtedly every one who listened to his description of "quaint old Manchuria" will want to go.

One of the amusing features of his talk concerned the camels of Manchuria and their trick of kicking forward. The raising of silkworms, as described by Mr. Flude, is a subject which the women hearers may discuss among themselves. The speaker told how the Manchurian women raise the silkworms.

INDICT 30 FOR $30,000,000 OIL COMPANY CRASH

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—[Special.]—The grand jury tonight topped a month's investigation into new disclosures covering the Julian Petroleum company's $30,000,000 collapse in 1927 by issuing forty secret indictments. Those indicted are said to include civic and financial leaders of Los Angeles. Until arrests are made names of those indicted will be kept secret.

A previous grand jury indicted sixty persons, including bankers and brokers, but the prosecution failed. In a followup action for corruption Asa Keyes, then district attorney, was sent to San Quentin penitentiary by his successor in office, Buron Fitts. Fitts revived the Julian inquiry which resulted in today's indictments.

In 39 days more persons implicated in the Julian crash, which swept away the savings of thousands of persons, could not have been prosecuted because the statute of limitations would have run.

SHIRES' STOP, 4 HOMERS HELP SOX WIN, 8 TO 4

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Waco, Tex., March 28.—This was an eventful day in Waco. The White Sox got revenge for a defeat of last spring by beating the Waco Cubs, 4 to 4; the Great Shires made his 1930 baseball debut; and a great sun chased away the rain, the snow, and the blues.

The White Sox won mostly because Kamm, Cissell, Reynolds, and Blankenship were able to furnish homers at pleasant moments. These blows were in the total of fourteen acquired by our boys off two pretty good left handers, Thormahlen and House.

And now that the technicians have been told about the hitting we're going to talk about The Great Shires for a while. The anonymous knockers can waste their postage stamps and be derned.

Shires arrived at 10:30 this morning dressed in modest garb. He had his stick, but that was all of the famed sartorial flash to be observed. He said he was ready to play, and Manager Bush told him that he could play the last four innings. This announcement made C. Arthur happy, and he was happier when Boss Donie kept his promise, though the score was 4 to 4 when it was the kid's time to get into the picture.

The great one didn't get a fielding chance in his first inning, but he came through in the next inning with as good a play as he'll make all year. The score was tied, men were on second and third, and Bandrimer cut one over first that was labelled for a double or a triple. While it isn't nice say more to say anything about diving in connection with Mr. Shires we claim exemption in describing the play. George Trafton surely didn't make nearly so graceful a plunge as Arthur did when he went after the Bandrimer slasher. He speared the ball as he lit on his shoulder and the side was out. All the Sox took a deep breath, and immediately stepped forward and wrecked the ball game.

Blankenship Goes Route.

Ted Blankenship pitched the entire game, the first Sox pitcher to go all the way this year. Yesterday Ted reached exactly the weight he scaled in 1926, his big year, and he asked to celebrate the accomplishment by being the first to go the distance. He allowed only seven hits and, though he was a bit wild at times, he had a world of stuff. Ted, incidentally, has lost 26 pounds since last season.

After today's game the club went to Fort Worth, where it is scheduled to play the New York Giants tomorrow. Tommy Thomas will do his first pitching of the year in tomorrow's game. Sunday the Sox and Giants will play at Dallas and Lyons will be the starting pitcher.

The Cubs were the first to score. In the second inning, after Winegardner and Bandrimer had flied to Blackerby, Molesworth sent the ball in the same direction, but a bit higher, and it cleared the left field screen for a homer. Heath was hit by a pitched ball, then Thormahlen flied to Reynolds.

Kamm's Homer Scores 3.

The Texans got another run in the third inning. Zoellers led off with a single to right, but was forced at second by Rye. Stuvengen struck out, but Monson walked. The runners moved up on a wild pitch, and when Winegardner beat out a hit to deep short, Rye scored and Munson stopped at third. Bandrimer flied to Reynolds.

In the first half of the fourth the Sox took the lead by virtue of Kamm's long distance smack over the left field fence. Cissell opened with a double. Reynolds flied to Rye, and Jolley walked. Kamm, having fanned on his last trip to the plate, sort of slipped up on Mr. Thormahlen. The ball still was rising when it went over the stands. Cissell and Jolley trotted in ahead of Bill and the score was, Chisox, 3; Waco, 2.

Zoeller's homer in the last of the fourth switched the advantage back to the Cubs. Molesworth fanned and Kamm threw out Heath, but Thormahlen beat out a roller to Kamm and came in ahead of Zoeller when the Texan leaguer knocked the ball over the right field wall.

Cissell's Homer Ties Score.

The Sox tied the score in the sixth on Cissell's homer. The score became 5 to 4 in the eighth because Reynolds, who was first up, knocked the ball over the screen in left center.

Another homer, Blankenship's, accounted for two of three runs scored in the ninth. Jolley drove in Cissell with the extra one.

EARLIER CHICAGO

DEAR WAKE: Henry A. Ward, said to be the only living person born in the village of Chicago, celebrated his ninty-fifth birthday anniversary in San Diego, Cal., where he now resides, yesterday (Friday). He was born March 28, 1835, in Fort Dearborn, when Chicago had a population of 3,279. His father, originally of Boston, served as an officer of the garrison and as alderman of the first village board.

In early years, Mr. Ward worked in a brick yard at $4 per week, later drove a team for three years on the Illinois and Michigan canal, and in 1852 made a trip across the plains with an ox team to the Pacific coast. He enlisted in Company A, 72d Illinois volunteers at the time of the civil war and was discharged in 1865. With an ox team he hauled brick for the original Sherman house. He went to Sycamore in 1883, built Ward's Opera house and conducted Ward's hotel, a favorite with traveling men. He has for several years resided in California.

William H. Bilney.

Helper C. M. C. is misinformed in regard to the first building erected in the business district at the time of the Chicago fire. Chase & Hild, sign painters, built on the north side of Randolph between Clark and Dearborn. The Kerfoot building was built in a west side lumber yard and hauled by wagon to its site. W. H. Field.

Field & Leiter erected the first building after the fire, a red brick structure near the Madison street bridge. Merchants who had been burned out erected small wooden shacks along the lake front on Michigan avenue where they booked orders for goods to be shipped from the east. The lake at that time came right up to Michigan avenue.

Malone, Teachout Greet Pirates in Third of Series

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—[Special.]—Third of the series with the Pirates tomorrow. McCarthy will probably pitch Malone and Teachout. The Pirates will come up with Kremer and Swetonic.

Carlson derives his greatest pleasure from foiling the Pirates. When Hal was fighting in France Barney Dreyfuss, the Bucco owner, conveniently forgot to register him as a spit ball hurler. When Carlson returned he had to go back to the minors and learn to pitch all over again. He hasn't forgotten that.

CUB BLOWUP IN 9TH GIVES GAME TO PIRATES, 9-8

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—The Cubs were riding high this afternoon until Guy Bush appeared in their behalf. The bronzed Mississippian swung his windmill delivery into action in the eighth and was satisfactory in that session, but in the ninth wasn't. Several fellows did some hitting, a couple Cubs blundered, and four runs dashed over the plate to give the Pirates a 9 to 8 triumph in the second of the series.

Bush can thank an ex-Cub, George Grantham, for the distressing finish. Grantham came up in the ninth with a man on base, one dead and the Buccaneers trailing by 8 to 5. He already had a single, triple and homer to his credit so by the law of averages should have passed out easily in his last attempt. Instead he pounded his second homer over the wall after which Hornsby and Beck completed the dizzy conclusion with fielding offenses for which there was no excuse.

Cubs Blow Up.

After Grantham's home run Paul Waner grounded directly into Hornsby's hands but the Rajah kicked the ball and then failed to pick it up when there still was time to accomplish his purpose. Clark drove a single straight back at Bush, Waner reaching third. When Suhr cracked a liner toward short the base runners started but Beck leaped up and stabbed it with one hand. There was a world of time to double Clark off first but Beck pegged wild; Waner scored the tying run and Clark went to third. A moment later Comorskey's single sent Clark home and the show closed.

The Cubs got on the trail of one run in the first inning because of an error. The flashy Bartell booted Grimm's roller with one dead. Hornsby fanned, possibly to prove he could do it in spring training as well as in a world series. Wilson slashed a single to right, Grimm halting at second. Cuyler clubbed a single between short and third, sending Grimm home. Then Stephenson, for whom all pitchers have great respect, bounced into a forceout to complete the session.

McCarthy's hirelings put themselves into a 2 to 1 lead for a few minutes in the fifth by collecting a tally from a double, single, and pass.

Cubs Break Loose Again.

The Cubs had such a big party while scoring three in the sixth that nine of them batted against French. The first happening in the rally was an infield hit by Cuyler. Stephenson walked. Blair cracked a single to center, scoring Cuyler and putting Stevie on third. Blair went to second on the throw in. Hartnett filled the bases by walking, after which Carlson fanned. Then Beck lined a double over first base, Stephenson and Blair registering. Grimm forced Hartnett at the plate. Hornsby walked and Wilson grounded into a forceout to end the attack.

The B. B. twins, Beck and Blair, again carried the burden in the three run splurge against Kid Bednar in the seventh. The lad from the Nebraska State league was a bit nervous and walked Cuyler and Stephenson, the first major leaguers ever to face him. Blair walloped a two bagger to the bleachers, Cuyler racing home and Stephenson to third. Hartnett fanned and Carlson popped out, but Beck refused to let the rally subside. He sailed a single to center, sending Stevie and Blair home.

YOUNG PRO TAKES PINEHURST GOLF TITLE WITH 291

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28.—[Special.]—An Arkansas professional who will not be twenty-two years old until July, captured the united north and south open golf championship here today. Paul Runyan, who has won the Arkansas open championship three times in the last four years, finished seventy-two holes over the No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country club with a total of 291, leading the field by two shots.

Runyan came east only a few days ago, having signed up during the winter as assistant to Craig Wood at the Forest Hill Field club near Newark, N. J. He never has been east before and has yet to see New York.

Last Round Tells Tale.

A fine card of 70 on his final round brought Runyan in first in a close race in which more than a dozen players started the final eighteen holes with a chance to win. He was tied with two Ryder cup players, Joe Turnesa and Ed Dudley, starting the final round. Their total was 221 and the leader was Whiffy Cox of Brooklyn, with 220. Cox took a 79 on his last round and finished tied for last place in the money. Turnesa, playing behind Runyan, was even with him with two holes to play, each player having two pars left for a 70 and a total of 291.

Paul Outlasts Turnesa.

Runyan made both of his pars but Turnesa finished 4-6 for a total of 294, which tied him for third with Tommy Armour and Billy Burke. Frank Walsh of Chicago slipped into second money with a final round card of 69 for a total of 293.

This was Runyan's first visit to Pinehurst but he was playing under familiar conditions. He learned his game at Hot Springs Golf and Country club in his native town of Hot Springs., Ark., where they have sand greens familiar to those here. For the last two summers he has held down a professional job at the Concordia club in Little Rock.

Canadiens Defeat Rangers, 2-1; Set Record Overtime

BY HARLAND ROHM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 28.—Les Canadiens, known as the Flying Frenchmen, staggered a step nearer the world's championship tonight when they beat the New York Rangers, 2 to 1, in the longest major league hockey game ever played. Gus Rivers, a Montreal lad, scored the winning goal after 68 minutes and 52 seconds of overtime.

The two teams had agreed to call it a draw after 130 minutes. Rivers scored just 68 seconds before that agreed ending.

The 129 minute game exceeded the record for length set by the Chicago Hawks the night before last when they played 111 minutes before the Frenchmen won. Just a week ago, in the same rink, Boston's Bruins and the Montreal Maroons had set a record of 105 minutes.

A game that started brilliantly and spectacularly went through a slambang hour of hockey, a knockdown and drag out fight, and ended with the players so weary they missed a dozen easy goals as the endurance contest wore on. Ching Johnson and George Mantha had been knocked cold, Bill Cook got a broken nose, and Howie Morenz had an ugly welt on his forehead.

Les Canadiens tied the score late in the third period. Armand Mondou, the lad whose pass to Morenz beat the Hawks, came through alone from his own defense area. Twisting and dodging.

Then the battle of hockey history.

SAPORA, ILLINOIS MAT STAR, WINS

State College, Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Two defending champions, Midget Joe Sapora of the University of Illinois, and Lawrence Mantooth, University of Oklahoma, led the parade of favorites today through the opening round of the annual National Collegiate association wrestling championships in the Penn State gymnasium. Sapora easily gained his decision over Roy S. Mazie of Penn State, in the 115 pound class, while Mantooth defeated Howard Cline of the defending championship squad of Oklahoma Aggie grapplers.

C. A. A. U. PICKS FIGHTERS FOR NATIONAL MEET

C. A. A. U. Champions

Flyweight—Lawrence Strong.
Bantamweight—Herbert Derex.
Featherweight—William Gladstone.
Lightweight—William Kenny.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Four steel hearted lads battled to amateur boxing championships of the Central A. A. U. last night at the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium. These winners, with the four who were crowned best in their weights at the Medinah Athletic club Wednesday night, will represent the central states in the national tournament at Boston April 7, 8, and 9.

The semi-finals and finals of flyweights, featherweights, welterweights and heavyweights composed last night's program. And in these twelve bouts were packed enough clever boxing and heavy socking to more than satisfy the fans who filled the I. A. C. gym.

Gladstone Whips Goldblatt.

William Gladstone, Summerdale Athletic club, is the new featherweight champion. He was the popular winner, not only for his clean cut ring tactics, but more particularly because he defeated the defending title holder, Benny Goldblatt, in the semi-finals. From the fans' viewpoint, that was the match of the evening.

Gladstone was the lighter by several pounds, but he stood up under Goldblatt's rushing, wrestling style for two rounds with honors even. Then in the third round, Gladstone bored through Benny's defense, landing a left to the body and a right to the jaw which sent his opponent to the floor for a count of five. Benny was tangled up with the ropes and so befuddled he tried to climb out of the ring.

Lawrence Strong is the flyweight king of the central states' amateurs. After winning from Armand Cormier, he came back to wear down and finally knock out Gordon Roth in the second round of title bout.

The heavies provided a series of ponderous pushing matches until the concluding battle between John O'Brien and Marvin Hite. Hite demonstrated a right which landed with pile driver force, that is, when it landed. The first round was his, but he missed so many haymakers he was exhausted and O'Brien evened the score. An extra round was ordered. With thirty seconds remaining Hite quit the battle and O'Brien took the title.

Suggests Bust of Eckersall in University Hall

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28.—[Special.]—A movement to dedicate a bust or plaque at the University of Chicago in memory of the late Walter Eckersall, former football authority for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was started today by John Messmer, varsity gridiron captain at the University of Wisconsin in 1907. Messmer, now Milwaukee county construction superintendent, today was in communication with Chicago athletic authorities.

Mr. Messmer, who styles Eckersall the greatest of all football players, suggests a bust to him in one of the buildings at the University of Chicago or a plaque to him on the Maroon campus.

New York, March 28.—(AP)—The dynamite in Jimmy McLarnin's right hand failed to explode tonight as the Clouting Celt from Vancouver, B. C., was forced to stage a rapid fire finish to gain a close decision over Young Jack Thompson of Oakland, Cal., in the ten round feature of Madison Square Garden's fistic frolic.

Banged and battered, frequently outpunched and outboxed, McLarnin needed all his remarkable courage, generalship, and skill to save himself from defeat at the hands of the slick wiry Negro puncher. A rally in the last three rounds won him the unanimous verdict of Referee Jimmy Crowley and the two judges.

A near capacity crowd of 18,000 was in an uproar throughout most of the fight. Although McLarnin was the popular favorite, Thompson's spectacular but also erratic work won the approval of the crowd and there was considerable booing when the Irishlad's hand was lifted in victory over Joe Humphries.

Five Rounds to McLarnin.

On the Associated Press score sheet McLarnin was given five rounds, Thompson three, with two rated even. The Irishman was given the first, third, fourth, eighth, and ninth. Thompson the second, fifth, and seventh, with the sixth and ten registered even.

Thompson, wary and on the defensive at the start, gathered courage after weathering the first four rounds and had McLarnin in a bad way with a sensational two fisted drive in the fifth round. This was the most exciting round of the fight. Thompson forced Jimmy around the ring with short, jolting punches to the head and drew blood from the Irish lad's nose. McLarnin, groggy and all but knocked from his feet, needed all his generalship to weather the storm.

The Negro forced most of the fighting throughout the next two rounds but slowed down, and McLarnin, seizing his advantage, again took command of the fight. The Irishman seldom was able to land solidly on the elusive, shifty Negro scrapper, but he outboxed and outsmarted Thompson at close range.

A number of unintentional low lefts nearly proved McLarnin's undoing in the height of the most furious part of the fight. At least a half dozen times in the fifth, sixth, and seventh rounds Jimmy's left landed inches below the belt line. He was warned three times by Referee Crowley.

McLarnin Comes Back.

SHEA SHADES BASS.

St. Louis, Mo., March 28.—(AP)—Eddie Shea, slugging Chicago featherweight, shaded Benny Bass of Philadelphia, junior lightweight champion in some states, in a slashing, maulin ten round bout here tonight. The decision was that of newspaper men.

The title did not change hands, as the Missouri law prohibits official decision fights. Shea could have won the title only by a knockout or a foul.

The fight was bruising throughout and went at a fast clip. Bass floored Shea for the count of nine in the fourth round and he was plainly groggy for the next two rounds, but the Chicago featherweight came back strong and in the seventh knocked Bass completely over with a smashing right to the head.

CARNERA WINS IN ROUND.

Denver, Colo., March 28.—(AP)—Primo Carnera's thirteenth knockout victim, Jack McAuliffe of Detroit, fell before the giant Italian after two minutes and 13 seconds of fighting in a bout that was set for ten rounds here tonight. A crowd of 6,500 attended.

Lott, Doeg Play Today for Florida Net Title

Miami Beach, Fla., March 28.—(AP)—Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., today advanced to the singles finals of the annual South Florida tennis championships. Tomorrow he will meet George Lott of Chicago for the championship.

Leiter Makes Purchase of Virginia Colts

BY FRENCH LANE.

Joe Leiter, one time Chicago wheat king, is not one of those sportsmen who believe that all great thoroughbred race horses must hail from Kentucky.

At the Saratoga yearling sales last August Mr. Leiter began to assemble a racing stable. Among his purchases was a yearling son of Royal Canopy-Exalted Ruler, which he later named Prince D'Amour. It wasn't necessary for him to make an extra high bid to land the colt.

Wins Juvenile Stake.

On last March 3 Mr. Leiter stood along the rail in front of the club house at the Fair Grounds track in New Orleans and watched Prince D'Amour race to victory in the Louisiana Juvenile stakes. The triumph carried with it the winter 2 year old title at New Orleans. It ranked Prince D'Amour with Siskin, the Agua Caliente juvenile champion, and Vanderpool, the Miami titleholder, at the top of the heap in the early chase for 2 year old honors in America.

Leiter had purchased Prince D'Amour from Kenneth Gilpin, a young Baltimore millionaire who maintains a thoroughbred nursery in Virginia. And soon after the former Chicagoan had watched Prince D'Amour win so handily at New Orleans he made a hurried trip to the Gilpin breeding farm in Virginia.

Buys Entire Crop.

After several days' negotiations he purchased the entire yearling crop on the Gilpin farm. There were some 25 young thoroughbreds in the lot, some by Royal Canopy, the remainder by other famous sires which stand in Virginia. It was the biggest thoroughbred horse deal of the year and shortly after it was completed Mr. Leiter sailed for Europe, where it is reported he will purchase other thoroughbred stock.

Prince D'Amour has been sent to Maryland to be raced at Bowie and Havre de Grace. Then he will be transferred to Chicago for a summer's campaign. There is a chance that Prince D'Amour, Siskin, and Vanderpool will hook up in some of the early season stakes at the Maryland track. It should at least settle the winter track 2 year old title dispute

Hertz Stars Mated.

The long awaited mating of Anita Peabody, winner of the Belmont Futurity of 1927, with Reigh Count, which finished second to her in the same race, and which later won the 3 year old championship of America, has taken place at the Leona Stock farm of John D. Hertz, near Cary.

Both the famous thoroughbreds are owned by Mr. Hertz. Reigh Count took his place as sultan of the Leona farm nursery this year, while Anita Peabody is among the three score brood mares in the harem.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AINTREE, England, March 28.—More than 150,000 spectators were cheering wildly this afternoon when the Grand National, the world's greatest steeplechase, was won by W. H. Midwood's Shaun Goilin, paying 100 to 8 in the betting. He nosed out W. Wilson's Melleray's Belle in the last minute and crossed the line a neck ahead of the second horse.

Third and fourth places were both taken by horses belonging to Americans—Jock Whitney's Sir Lindsay and R. K. Mellor's Glandesia respectively. Out of 41 starters only one other finished, although there were no serious injuries.

The Grand National is considered the most dangerous race run anywhere, and it remained true to tradition today, providing thrills galore during the ten minutes it lasted. One after the other, the horses fell taking the high jumps until there were only five left. It was not until the last fence was cleared that Shaun Goilin, after racing gamely throughout, forged ahead of Melleray's Belle. It provided a thrilling climax.

Today's Grand National was one of the gayest ever held. For the 150,000 persons who attended it was the occasion for merrymakings which started yesterday and will not be finished until the early hours tomorrow morning. The great pilgrimage from all parts of England began yesterday morning, the roads to Aintree being blocked with autos and wagons of all descriptions, while thousands tramped on foot.

A dozen special air liners took last minute London crowds from Croydon to Aintree. Two airplanes carried a party of 40 women, who lunched in the air and took tea in the planes on the return trip. Seven special de luxe trains from London were stocked with 1,200 bottles of champagne and had nothing but empties when they returned.

The Grand National is one of the most notable and sportiest events of the present day. It is claimed that the chances are fifty to one against a horse completing the course, which is filled with jumps that are apt to trap even the finest of nags. Last year only nine out of sixty-six finished, while the year before only two out of forty-two. The best record in the last ten years was in 1926, when fourteen out of thirty finished.

Two Win $9,000

HULL, Que., March 28.—(AP)—Norman Richards of Bowmanville, Que., and H. F. Carson of White Fish, Mont., are each $9,000 the richer as a result of Shaun Goilin's victory in the Grand National today. They held joint tickets on the horse in the Chairty sweepstake of the Hull Columbas club.

Michigan Boy Victorious in $10,000 Race

New Orleans, La., March 28.—(AP)—Michigan Boy, the keen three year old of J. L. Pontius of Detroit, today won the $10,000 Louisiana Derby, but paid the backers only sixty cents to a dollar in the mutuels.

The muddy Jefferson Park course made the Michigan horse a favorite over Bad News Bob and Brother Rank, the two entries of H. C. Hatch of Chicago and favorites for a fast track. The winner trailed along under restraint close behind Bad News Bob and Judge Dixon until the half-mile turn, where Jockey J. Shelton let him have his head.

Taking the lead quickly he held off the challenges of Bad News Bob and Brother Rank to win by two lengths. Bad News Bob finished second and a tiring Brother Rank came in third. Colonel Bell took fourth place, four lengths ahead of Byproduct, then General Jackson, Cabildo, Judge Dixon and Ell Weir. Dabster and Reveille Boy were scratched.

BIG ED WALSH IMPROVES; HAS FAIRLY GOOD DAY

Meriden, Conn., March 28.—(AP)—A slight improvement was noted today in the condition of Big Ed Walsh, former Chicago White Sox pitching ace, who is seriously ill at the Meriden hospital following an operation for appendicitis and peritonitis.

Walsh passed "a fairly good day," it was reported at the hospital. Dr. I. S. Otis, his surgeon, said tonight that "everything is very satisfactory so far."

Leland Defeats Bracey in Dash at Texas Relays

Austin, Tex., March 28.—(AP)—The southwest's greatest sprinter, Cy Leland of Texas Christian university, today proved his right to the title by defeating Claude Bracey, the Dixie flier, a full two yards in the 100 yard dash, feature of the sixth annual Texas university relays, here. Leland's time was 9.6 seconds.

It marked the second time in a fortnight that Leland had shown his heels to Bracey. He distanced his rival in the 100 and 220 yard events two weeks ago at Fort Worth.

A stiff wind faced the two stars today and the track was damp from yesterday's rains. They were away together, but Leland jumped into a two foot lead at the halfway point and was pulling away at the finish. Treps of Marquette university broke the tape third, a yard behind Bracey.

1,000 Athletes Compete.

Leland's time in the century was one-tenth of a second slower than the relay record of 9.5 set last year by Bracey with a wind at his back. The furiong was not included on today's program.

More than 1,000 university, college and high school athletes participated in today's carnival. Three meet records fell by the wayside in the university division.

Bausch, Kansas university husky, set a new mark in the shotput with a heave of 48 feet 7¼ inches, beating the former record by two inches. Thornhill, also of Kansas, flung the discus 145 feet 9⅞ inches for a new relay record.

Butler Wins Relay.

Marquette's great relay team set a new meet mark in the university medley with a time of 10 minutes 29 4-5 seconds.

Butler university won the 4 mile relay after a gruelling duel with Nebraska. The two teams ran shoulder to shoulder until the final quarter mile, when Joe Sivak, Butler anchor man, pulled away to win by 20 yards.

Practically the same field will take part in the second annual Southern Methodist university relays tomorrow at Dallas. Points were not compiled in today's meet.

STOCK TICKER IS HUMMING TUNE OF BIG TRADING

Business Reviews More Cheerful.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The crowds are back in the brokerage houses these days, the ticker is humming a song of growing volume and rising prices in the stock markets and everybody is sure that business is going to be all right. So La Salle street is more active and cheerful than at any time since the big blow-off last October.

And there are numerous grounds for optimism. In fact, some of the weekly mercantile reviews wax almost lyrical over current progress and future indications, while others, more conservatively but none the less cheerfully, recite immediate happenings.

"With buoyancy securities markets and an old fashioned touch of late pickers," Business Week says, "April is certain to bring some seasonal stimulus to general business unless growing federal reserve fear of runaway speculation makes them nip the frail blossom of trade recovery in the bud. Business news itself is a bit chilly. The steel thermometer is not very sure of itself, but has practically ceased its disconcerting drop. Commodity prices, too, are beginning to dig out of the snow. But building, now definitely and strongly on the rise, is the real sunshine of the season. The frost cannot linger long under the showers of easy money and the returning warmth of building activity."

More Active Construction.

The Engineering News-Record reports that engineering construtcion is maintaining the gains made in recent weeks and is more active than a year ago. In the last week awards for all classes of heavy construction work totaled $96,153,000, compared with $81,668,000 in the preceding week and $65,251,600 in the same week last year.

This week also shows an improvement in "business mortality." There were 533 failures, compared with 558 last week and 560 two weeks ago; although the current total is slightly higher than the 512 bankruptcies for the same week last year. Bank clearings continue to run fairly heavy, with the week's total at $11,339,732,000. This is only slightly below the previous week's total of $11,911,853,000, which was swelled by income tax payments, although it was 16.7 per cent below a year ago.

"The week which was practically closed the first quarter of the year has been marked by a better business tone in certain respects, yet without any broad stimulation of activity," Dun's review says. "Response to the change in seasons lacks a full development and has been retarded lately by a blizzard in the central west and low temperatures in some other sections. But the tenor of different advices is becoming more cheerful as spring progresses.

Gains Plainly Visible.

"Actual gains in trade, although not widespread or emphatic, are now rather more plainly visible. The unsatisfactory aspects of the three months' period now ending, the slowness and irregularity of the recovery and the conflicting reports of trends have not obscured the underlying factors pointing to ultimate revival."

Bradstreet's review reports that while wholesale and jobbing trade has continued its relatively gradual gains over recent weeks, retail trade, especially in the south and central west, has been affected by the pushing of the freezing line far to the south and by the heaviest snowfall in years.

"Sales in half of the reporting lines of wholesale trade in this district declined in February from a month previous and decreases from a year ago were general except in groceries," the Chicago Federal reserve bank says in its monthly review. "A decline of 1 per cent from January was shown in the aggregate sales of 112 department stores. Among the larger cities, both Chicago and Detroit showed substantial declines in the comparison with February, 1919.

"Sales of twenty-two chains totaled 1 per cent less in February than in the preceding month and with very little change in the number of stores operated average sales per store showed the same recession. The aggregate for the month exceeded that of last February by more than 10 per cent but the number of stores was 14 per cent greater, so that in this comparison average sales declined 3½ per cent."

Foreign Grain Sales Slump Is Explained

BY SCRUTATOR.

Restrictive legislation designed to regulate or minimize speculation in the United States, added to recent efforts both here and in Canada by grain growers to set their own prices on their products, has seemingly had the effect of cutting into foreign sales.

There is even a certain amount of evidence to support a belief that sales efforts are less marked on behalf of American and Canadian grain in the overseas markets.

A half dozen years back, before the Canadian wheat pool was formed, there were a number of dealers in the British isles who made a living supplying the product of the western prairies of the dominion to British millers. It is said that these men, balked in their sales attempts by the high prices demanded in a competitive market, were faced with the necessity of handling the grain of other countries, notably the Argentine, and have as a consequence lost all interest in their Canadian business.

Gets Indirect Support.

The Canadian pool was not at first a governmental activity, but recently it has had the indirect financial support of three provinces. In the beginning it had special legislation permitting the pool's form of organization.

In the United States something similar has occurred. The grain trade knows that exports have not been made to Liverpool because there prevail here prices that will not permit shipment overseas. In spite of the carrying charges by rail and ship, there have been many days recently when the Chicago price, government supported, was equal to that in Liverpool.

The Board of Trade in Chicago grew up out of the necessity for a sales agency for midwestern grain. Speculation for many years was untrammeled. Abuses occurred. There were political onslaughts against the organization. Between 1884 and 1914 there were introduced in congress at least 120 laws designed to prohibit future speculation. One, the Hatch bill of 1892, actually was passed, but was thrown out on a technicality of parliamentary rule.

It was a striking fact that the earlier complaints against speculators was that they ran the prices of farm products up too high, thereby causing the workingman to pay too much for his loaf of bread or his cotton undershirt. The agitation to minimize speculation, as the marketing act puts it, now is based on the theory that the producer is being discriminated against.

Speculators, as a whole, probably never made much money. It is doubtful if they ever made any. But to curb them, at least to the extent of bringing them into the open, there have been a number of laws. Under one of them the government may call for reports on who is buying or selling large amounts of any grain.

Reduces Big Buyers.

This has been useful in preventing any cornering of grain supplies, but it has cut down on the number of willing buyers of large amounts. There are no longer in the grain futures markets men who "take a position" and hold it for six months. In their place are smaller speculators, who run at a loss of a cent or take profits at the same rate per bushel.

It is noteworthy that with the government establishing prices at which its agencies will buy grain, there has been a falling off in the interest of outsiders in the market. The grain trade itself acknowledges that it cannot sell abroad for prices higher than other countries are willing to take. Salesmen overseas are being lost.

Meat Demand Continues Good Despite Bad Weather

Despite adverse weather conditions, the demand for meats and leading packing house lines continued good with the possible exception of dressed beef, declares the weekly review of Armour & Co., on packing house trade conditions. Lamb receipts were liberal and the live prices steady. Unusual weather conditions, particularly in the dairy sections, limited veal receipts with the dressed market demand somewhat slower.

Demand for fresh pork continued good in all sections, with prices in Chicago steady and somewhat higher in other markets. Smoked meats business also continued very good with excellent prospects for Easter trade

Increase Estimates for Raw Rubber Consumption

With the automobile tire factories at Akron, O., and elsewhere showing increased operations, members of the rubber exchange of New York have correspondingly increased their estimates of crude rubber consumption for the month. They now figure that between 38,000 and 39,000 tons will be used, compared with previous estimates ranging between 37,000 and 38,000 tons.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—The enormous expenditure required to construct and maintain inland waterways seems disproportionately large when measured by their present day usefulness for transportation purposes, according to J. M. Davis, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, in a discussion of the subject in the company's annual report.

"The necessity for the expansion of our national system of inland waterways is a much talked about subject," said Mr. Davis. "The chief reason for this development, according to the enthusiastic friends of waterway appropriations, is the bringing about of lower freight rates for manufacturers and farmers and consequently lower prices to consumers."

Taking as an example the New York state barge canal, which competes with the Lackawanna, Mr. Davis continued: "It has been given a fair trial. Farmers do not receive any more for their products shipped by water between Buffalo and New York than for those which move by rail. The cost of a loaf of bread is the same, regardless of whether the wheat or flour from which it is made is floated by canal or shipped by rail. The actual benefit of the canal is not, therefore, apparent."

The annual report of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, shows total assets of $223,639,210, compared with $214,064,441 a year earlier, and profit and loss surplus of $73,782,965, against $72,210,318 a year earlier.

Approve 20% Dividend for Railway's Creditors

Minneapolis, Minn., March 28.—(AP)—Payment of a dividend of 20 per cent on preferred claims of creditors of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railway, amounting to about $50,000, has been approved in an order filed by Judge W. F. Booth of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Judge Booth also authorized William H. Bremner, receiver and former president of the road, to purchase new equipment, including four gas electric motor cars and 500 box cars. The motor cars will be used on runs out of Minneapolis to Des Moines and Watertown, S. D.

Hear Peerless Co. Seeks Front Wheel Drive Rights

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Wall street heard today that the Peerless Motor Car corporation of Cleveland is negotiating for American rights to manufacture a front wheel drive automobile under patents held by a group of individuals in Europe. The process is believed to be of French design. No official confirmation or denial has been made.

Amerada Corp. Reports Increase in Earnings

Net earnings of the Amerada corporation, petroleum producers, for 1929 totaled $2,758,900, equal to $2.99 a share on the common stock, as against $2,214,109, or $2.40 a share in 1928, the company reports.

Puritan Malt Merges with Pabst Corp.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28.—Merger of the Pabst corporation, manufacturers of malt and cheese products, and the Puritan Malt Extract company, Chicago, was announced today.

The two companies will operate separately, with each continuing its policies, personnel, and sales organization, according to a joint statement issued by Fred Pabst, president of the Pabst corporation, and Joseph Magnus of the Puritan company.

Mr. Pabst said that while economies were contemplated by the merger, its main objective is to give the distributors and consuming public the benefits resulting from coöperation in research and manufacturing. Mr. Magnus will remain in charge of the Chicago company.

Builds Up New Lines.

The Pabst corporation's large plant covering four city blocks in the vicinity of Ninth street and Juneau avenue was not permitted to remain idle with the advent of prohibition.

One half of the buildings are occupied by Pabst in the manufacture of cheese products, which the company has made almost as famous as its old pre-war brews. A complete line of Baker's malt extracts, the old Pabst malt products for invalids; soft drinks, a processed near beer and other allied products are manufactured. The remainder of the buildings are rented to other manufacturing concerns.

By the merger, the Pabst interests will unite in the malt field, its own and the formerly competitive Puritan products. Between 500 and 600 men are employed by the Pabst company.

With the exception of a few years after the coming of prohibition, the Pabst plant has been in continuous operation since 1844 when it was founded by Philip F. Best, grandfather of the present head of the company.

Terms Not Revealed.

Financial considerations of the merger of the two companies were not revealed. Mr. Pabst, in addition to his manufacturing interests, conducts extensive farms at Oconomowoc, Wis., residing there on Oconomowoc lake. When reached at his home there tonight he declined to discuss the financial aspect of the merger, but declared it would not mean a change in personnel of either concern and that both plants would be conducted separately.

TEACH WOMEN TO MANAGE MONEY, IS REED'S PLEA

Education of women in the management of money is one of the crying needs with which the country is faced in the opinion of Howard E. Reed, Pittsburgh financier.

In a talk yesterday before members of the Executives' club at the Hotel Sherman, Mr. Reed said that American women last year invested $700,000,000 in fraudulent securities. The blame, he said, can be fixed on the fathers, husbands, brothers who do not take time to teach women how to invest money.

The necessity for education is particularly important, the speaker declared, because women spend 85 per cent of the cash in the American pay envelope.

"The fact that the per capita saving of Americans is only $235 a year, when the total income was $90,000,000,000 last year show that we need to teach women how to manage incomes," Mr. Reed said. Their place in the financial world is becoming more important every day. A tenth of the transactions of the New York stock exchange last year were made for women and 80 per cent of the accounts of the New York mutual savings banks are in women's names."

Missouri Pacific Asks for $361,054,359 Valuation

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The Missouri Pacific railroad today asked the interstate commerce commission to fix its valuation at $361,054,359, instead of the $238,048,297, as of June 30, 1918, tentatively set by the commission. For the purpose of producing new evidence to show that its valuation should be higher, the Missouri Pacific and its ten subsidiary roads asked a complete reopening and reconsideration of the case.

WHEAT PRICES RISE ON BULLISH NEWS OF CROPS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish crop advices from Kansas and Oklahoma attracted more attention yesterday from wheat traders than at any time this season.

While the market was unusually dull early, there was a wave of scattered buying both here and at Winnipeg toward the last which found offerings limited and prices advanced sharply. Sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves. The close was at the top with net gains of 1⅜@2c, with May $1.09⅞@1.10 and July $1.07⅝@1.07¾ to $1.07⅞.

While a good part of the buying of wheat was credited to short covering by locals who pressed the selling side early, the market showed a firm undertone the greater part of the day, and at no time were futures below the finish of Thursday. Winnipeg gained 1⅞c for the day in the face of a slow foreign demand for Manitobas, and sales of only 300,000 bu were reported in all positions.

Lack of Moisture.

A bullish construction was placed on the Oklahoma weekly weather crop report, which said rain was urgently needed over the entire state, and the Modern Miller's summary showed a lack of moisture over the western third of Kansas and generally spotted conditions through the southwest, while late in the day there were private reports of winter killing in eastern Kansas and southwestern Missouri.

Many wheat operators continue decidedly bearish, due to the large stocks of cash grain in sight not only here but also abroad. The department of agriculture, in a report on country mills and elevators, estimated holdings at 95,950,000 bu, against 82,419,000 bu last year, while total stocks in all positions, including farm reserves, visible and mill and elevator stocks, aggregate 384,437,000 bu, compared with 360,192,000 bu last year and 281,513,000 bu the previous year.

Dry weather reports are increasing from Rumania, one of the largest of the Danubian exporting countries, and that country has received a credit of $10,000,000 from a European syndicate for farm relief. With the exception of Argentina, all of the leading exporting countries are being influenced to some extent by government operations in some shape or other. England is also considering farm relief, while Brazil is contemplating increasing the wheat acreage at the expense of coffee. Liverpool closed ⅜d lower to ⅜d higher, with Argentine shippers again buying May. Buenos Aires was ½c higher at the last.

Corn Closes Higher.

Corn market was dull early, but trade enlarged toward the last when wheat started upward and the close was at net gains of ¾@1c, with May 84⅛@84¼c and July 85⅞c. The market is regarded as lacking leadership, and the outside trade has not increased to the extent anticipated a short while ago, despite the strong statistical position. Cash basis was ½c lower to ½c higher, with white showing the most strength. Purchases of 150,000 bu were reported to arrive, mainly by a local industry, from other terminals. Shipping sales were 65,000 bu

Trade in oats was light, with cash and commission houses fair buyers, the finish being unchanged to ⅝c higher, with May 44⅛c and July 43¾c. Rain is now needed for the newly sown oats in the southwest.

Will Redeem $5,000,000 of Swift & Co. 10 Year Notes

Redemption of $5,000,000 principal amount of the 5 per cent ten year notes of Swift & Co., dated Oct. 6, 1922, will be made April 15, according to an announcement made yesterday. The notes to be redeemed, which were drawn by lot will be paid at par and accrued interest to April 15 together with a premium of three-fourths of one per cent of the principal of each of the notes.

Steel Combine Now Assured, Campbell Says

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—"The proxies already in our hands leave no doubt in my mind that the merger will be approved," James A. Campbell, chairman of the Youngstown Steel and Tube company, said today in answer to the assertion of Cyrus E. Eaton he had enough proxies to block the company's consolidation with Bethlehem Steel corporation.

"The irresponsible character of so many statements which have been made in opposition to the merger of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and Youngstown Sheet and Tube," Mr. Campbell said, "is again manifest in the statement of the specific number of shares the opposition claims to be able to vote.

"It is absolutely foolish for any one to make claim as to specific number of votes for the reason that proxies can be revoked up to the time of the meeting. All we care to say is, and we say it with full responsibility, that the proxies already in our hands leave no doubt in my mind that the merger will be approved."

A clause in the original merger agreement as tendered by the Bethlehem Steel corporation as a proposition to the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, reading to the effect that if 2 per cent of the sheet and tube stockholders demand cash for their holdings, the merger offer is invalid, was discovered tonight.

Youngstown Steel men pointed to the discovery of the clause, which was not generally known to exist, as a possible deterrent to the merger plans.

FOREMAN-STATE BID ACCEPTED BY SO. PARK BOARD

The bid of the Foreman-State corporation for $2,650,000 worth of south park bonds was accepted by the south park commissioners. $1,350,000 in 4 per cent 18 year Fine Arts bonds were sold at a price of $95.44 and $1,300,000 in 4 per cent 20 year lake front and park improvement bonds went at $95.22. This is nearly a point higher than the price other municipal bonds were sold for last week, the commissioners said. There were two other bidders.

The cost of reconstructing the Fine Arts building in Jackson park will not exceed the $5,000,000 appropriated by the commissioners, E. J. Kelly, president of the board, said. Leo F. Wormser, representative of Julius Rosenwald, founder of the Industrial museum, which will be housed in the remodeled building, announced a few days ago that Mr. Rosenwald plans to contribute $2,000,000 to make up a deficit in the expense of restoring the Columbian exposition relic.

North Western Trust and Savings Votes Dividend

Directors of the North Western Trust and Savings bank yesterday voted a dividend of 4 per cent on the capital stock of the bank. The dividend is payable April 1 to holders of record March 15. Previously the bank paid four quarterly dividends of 3 per cent and an extra at the end of the year of 4 per cent.

BULLS REJOICE, PUBLIC IS BACK IN MARKET AGAIN

Van Sweringen issues were prominent. Evidence of improving business conditions was made much of by the followers of these stocks.

Bearish interests kept up their efforts to depress groups or pivotal issues, but as a rule the selling was well absorbed. One of theri favorite targets of the last week or so, however, Montgomery Ward, proved a vulnerable point and was battered to the lowest price levels of the year.

The selling was accompanied by unconfirmed reports that the net earnings of the company for the current quarter may not be sufficient to cover dividend requirements.

Utilities Battle Ground.

The utilities again provided a battle ground for efforts of opposing market elements, but the more important changes were once more on the up side. American Power and Light up 4¼ points, People's Gas up 3, Pacific Lighting, 3; Consolidated Gas, 2¼, and American and Foreign Power, 2¼—of such elements were the bull victory on this sector of the front compounded.

Many of the more popular investment trust issues were in brisk demand during the day, with substantial gains the rule in such issues. Basis for the buying here was probably to be found in the analysis of United corporation's position, which appeared early in the day. It was estimated that on the basis of its investments on Dec. 31 last United corporation's common shares had a breakup value of around $44 a share, its holdings showing an appreciation of $35,000,000, or 28 per cent over cost.

Surprise Is General.

To say that Wall street was surprised by the drop of $21,000,000 in loans reported for the week would be putting it mildly. The financial community had anticipated another substantial increase, basing its calculations on the rise in values and on the rather general evidence of increasing public participation in the market.

Evidently a good deal of short covering contributed to the volume of business and the rise in values, but the street believed it saw another condition which partially explained the unexpected drop. It has been gossiped about that some large firms have carried preferred customers' accounts in the red since the break. Stocks in these accounts probably went into loans at much higher figures than the same shares now command. Under the circumstances the release of any quantity of stocks held in that manner would tend to reduce the loan total.

uch was the assertion today of n W. Davis, special counsel of the ndard Oil Company of New Jersey. a result of a statement published the Examiner of San Francisco such a merger had been agreed n.

r. Davis' statement was made pub- at the offices of the Standard Oil pany of New Jersey in reply to uiries regarding the report from Francisco. He said:

I addressed an inquiry a year ago the department of justice at Wash- ton as to the attitude of the de- tment toward such a combination merger. No contract or agreement been entered into prior to this uiry.

The department expressed the nion that such a merger was for- den by the dissolution decree of 1. Since receipt of this intelli- ce no further action looking to h a combination has been taken either the New Jersey or the Cali- nia company. There is no founda- n for any stories to the contrary."

Hogs held generally steady, but finished slightly lower, while cattle and lambs declined unevenly again yesterday. The extreme top and general average hog prices were steady at $10.50 and $9.90, respectively, but these declines of 20@30c compared with last week's close.

Small packers, city butchers and shippers purchased readily at prevailing quotations, while large houses remained practically out of the market, having 4,000 at the close. Five western markets expect 22,500 hogs today against 20,400 the previous Saturday.

Hog Futures Decline.

Losses of 10@15c were general in the hog futures yesterday, with April and May light showing the most decline. April light opened at $10.40 and closed at $10.35. May light sold at $10.40 and September medium at $10.10. June light were offered at $10.45@10.50, and September sold at $10.75.

Heavy for April and May were offered at $9.60@9.75. On the "to arrive" market light weights for all used were bid $10.40 and heavy, $9.60. With the exception of a few well finished steers, cattle lost all of the last week's advance on yesterday's dull and unevenly lower market. Arrivals were larger than usual for Friday and also the week-end demand, in spite of the fact that quality graded above normal for the time of week.

One load of choice 1,400 lb steers sold at $14.00, while $13.75 was paid for 1,353 lb averages, and $13.50 for 1,310 lb yearlings. On the previous Friday's market, the extreme top topped at $15.00, due to quality. Cows and heifers shared in the uneven trade. Calves were steady. Stockers and feeders were scarce, but slow and weak.

Lambs Weak to Lower.

Fat lambs sold weak to 25c lower yesterday, a big share of the supply showing the full decline late in the day. Light weight wool lambs brought $10@10.40, while 95@100 lb averages were sold at $9.00@9.50, and best light shorn stock at $9.00@9.25.

Aged sheep held firm, light ewes selling $6.50, while yearlings were unchanged. Feeding and shearing lambs were scarce and steady. Fat lambs are closing mostly 25c lower than a week ago, while aged sheep show gains of 25@50c, the spread between the two classes being the narrowest in many years.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 10,000 hogs, 1,000 sheep, against 297 cattle, 31,161 hogs, and 3,004 sheep, the previous Saturday, and 236 cattle, 3,782 hogs, and 4,780 sheep; a year ago.

GAINS IN COTTON SMALL

Trading in cotton yesterday was not so heavy and the markets showed the effects of recent heavy covering of May and July positions, making them comparatively easy as compared with the deferred months. Operations of the co-ops apparently received less attention and the general trading was lighter. Prices moved within a narrow range and at the close futures in Chicago were 3 to 11 points higher, with May in New York unchanged and July 3 points higher, while other months were up 4 to 17 points. In New Orleans gains were 4 to 11 points. Liverpool closed 3 points higher to 3 points lower with sales 8,000 bales. Weather conditions were rather unfavorable with rain and fairly low temperatures over part of the belt.

Spinners' takings for the week were 261,000 bales, compared with 247,000 bales the previous week and 280,000 bales last year. The into sight movement for the week was 95,000 bales, compared with 131,000 bales the previous week and 177,000 bales last year.

Spots in New York held at 16c, the same as the previous day, while New Orleans gained 5 points to 15.50c, Galveston was 15.80c, and Houston 15.65c. Prices follow:

United Founders corporation announced that its offer of March 4 to exchange shares of United Founders for shares of American Founders was terminated yesterday. As a result, the company has acquired approximately 75 per cent of the common stock of American Founders corporation, the purpose being to secure majority control of American Founders. The exchange was on the basis of two shares of United Founders common for three shares of American Founders common with adjustments to cover May 1 American Founders dividend.

A bill in equity was filed yesterday by a creditor of De Wolf & Co. in the federal district court. The Chicago Title and Trust company was appointed receiver by Judge Wilkerson for the purpose of conserving the assets.
